But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1873. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines know which these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined with Iron the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Life Giving and Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning the blood, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and wasting tissues, cut out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Reissues, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the above. Copies of the claim of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a Journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved Inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The charming variety with this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has not led the times, should cause the conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted and above invitation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the principal name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book-illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous binding of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and salesmen, because it is absolutely NEW, and "has money in it." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. The Evolution of Our Solar System.

Mr. Proctor's ninth lecture before the Lowell Institute, Boston, was an interesting one. He approached it, he said, with some anxiety, because it was so generally associated with religion. The theory is a universal one, and if we admit it for a portion of our universe we admit it for the whole. In comparing it with the theory of special creation we have only to ask which is the more probable, and we must reason from analogy for our answer. We attach a greater wisdom to one who is able to observe, and to deduce conclusions from his observations and to predict occurrences from his conclusions. If we recognize evolution as the true theory we should recognize a higher power in the Almighty. We are acquainted with three forms of matter, —the self-luminous gas which extends billions and billions of miles off into space, and which composes our nebulæ; then the intensely heated matter of which our sun and like bodies are composed; and finally the more condensed matter which forms planets like our earth and their satellites, opaque bodies shining with reflected light. The discovery of the self-luminous gas belongs to modern science. When Sir J. Herschel first examined these nebulous masses they were supposed to be groups of stars so far away as to appear as points of light. He first recognized two kinds; one composed of star groups, the others of a mass of self-luminous gas. He found them having different shapes and appearing to be undergoing a process of condensation. He witnessed then a process of growth, going just as we do when we go into our gardens and see the different plants in different stages of development. In some it seems as if the nebulous matter gathered toward certain centres which stood out boldly, then others where stars had formed in the centre of the mass, next where the mass was very much contracted, and finally those where the stars had separated completely. In his time the theory rested only on argument, but we have since been able by the spectroscope to prove the nebulous matter to be a gas, and in a heated condition. The spectrum is a very simple one, only three or four lines. One is the hydrogen, another the nitrogen, line. This leads physicists to believe that this simplicity in the beginning shows that what we believe to be elements are with these exceptions, compounds. The other lines are of elements with which we are not acquainted. La Place had also a theory of evolution resting upon his study of the solar system. The first law we recognize is that all the bodies travel round in their orbit in the same direction, the sun, the eight planets, the 135 asteroids and the satellites of all the planets but Uranus. The latter fact was unknown to La Place. The lecturer showed by a mathematical calculation that the probabilities that this was the result of chance were very small. We next find, he said, that the sun and the planets all rotate on their axis in the same direction. From these facts La Place reasoned that the solar system resulted from the condensation of nebulous matter; that this matter was rotating, and as it became condensed considerably, it rotated faster and threw off rings, each of these forming a planet. These rings continued their rotation, and on further condensation some of them threw off other rings which formed the satellites.

The difficulty with this theory was that it takes account only of general facts and does not account for details. If it were true, the outer planets must be the lightest and the inner the heaviest; and in La Place's time this was supposed to be the case, but it has since been shown to be untrue. The planets, too, would have been composed of different elements,—whereas we find similar ones in all. It does not account for the distribution of the matter, for we find the greater bulk of it in the sun at the centre, which we would not expect on this theory. We find the planets arranged irregularly as regards their size. We find that they do not rotate on their axis upright to the ecliptic. Hence we must look to another theory. We find that some of the nebulæ which have been closely studied, appear like great spirals, with streams flowing into a centre. This is continually gathering strength, is attracting to itself matter and is being condensed. We find in other portions of the nebulæ bright spots showing centres of condensation also. Now our system was evolved probably in this way, the sun being the centre; then Jupiter was formed and then Saturn. Then they must have appeared as a triple star. Formed in this way they must all revolve in the same direction. Then, at that point where Jupiter and the sun exert a like force, we find the asteroids. Of those in the inner group we find the one midway between the sun and Jupiter the largest, and dignified by a satellite. The satellites are supposed to have been formed in accordance with La Place's theory. Now, when we examine the inclination of the axes of the planets, we find, as we should expect, that Jupiter revolves quite upright, and Saturn very nearly so. Another proof of the truth of this theory is that our system is growing to-day. We know that, as we approach the sun, the cometic and meteoric masses grow denser, and even form the solar corona. We know, too, that 40,000,000 of these are daily falling upon our earth. Professor Kirkland has also shown that there are certain orbits of the asteroids which Jupiter should control, and on examination he is found to control them. So the gaps in the rings of Saturn are shown to be due to the influence of her satellites. In closing, the lecturer spoke of Dr. Hunt's theory of the development of our earth; that it began to solidify at the centre; then the atmosphere contained chlorine, sulphurous acid, carbonic acid and nitrogen; the lower part was covered with hydrochloric acid, which decomposed the silicates with the formation of salt, and the ocean was produced; then the amount of carbonic acid in the atmosphere was slightly changed, and the earth was fitted for life.

The next lecture will be upon celestial measurings, especially as connected with the coming transit of Venus; and the two following will be upon the stars, and one will be illustrated with views shown by the calcium light.

No Such Thing as Money Left.

Mr. Richard B. Kimball begins an article in the Galaxy on the panic with the following good story:

"There's no such thing as money in this country!" was the exclamation of an Englishman a few years ago after a brief sojourn in New York. It happened in this way: The Englishman, in the course of his business, found it necessary to obtain an advance on some merchandise. He made the usual arrangement with a large commercial house to accommodate him. On going to consummate it and receive the cash, he was a good deal surprised when, in lieu of it, the senior member tendered to him the acceptance of the firm, payable at ninety days' date. "What am I to do with this?" he inquired. "Take it to B. B. & Co.," (naming some well-known bankers), was the reply. "They will give you the money at the legal rate." The Englishman did as directed. He met with no difficulty. The paper was acceptable, and although our hero did not touch the cash, he received a check for the proper amount on a neighboring bank. Thither he repaired in the full confidence of having something tangible. He was mistaken. The individual at the bank to whom he presented the check for payment, seized it nervously and, in a rapid, incoherent manner scrawled some hieroglyphics on its face, and thrust it back into the hands of its astonished owner, motioning him at the same time to stand aside for the next comer. The check had been duly "certified." That was what the scrawl across its face meant. In a state of suspense and anxiety the Englishman betook himself to the person to whom he was indebted, and timidly exhibited what he had to offer. To his surprise his friend's countenance brightened. "Many thanks!" he exclaimed. "By the way, this amount is too large; there will be something over a hundred dollars coming to you," and he proceeded to fill a check for it. The Englishman groaned in spirit. It was only another "piece of paper." And then it was that he exclaimed: "There is no such thing as money in this country!"

Emigration En Masse.

One of the most stupendous emigration schemes of the present age is that now being agitated in Ireland, and looking to the emigration of that people en masse to the United States. Liverpool papers mention that Mr. P. O'Leary, who had just returned from Ireland, whither he was delegated on a tour of inspection by the English Agricultural Laborers' Union, had received a letter from Mr. P. F. Johnson, the Honorable Secretary of the Irish Agricultural Laborers' Union, in which the writer says: "At our monthly meeting it was resolved, that in the event of the government failing to introduce a comprehensive measure dealing with the waste lands of Ireland, I be empowered to proceed to America, and have an interview with the authorities there, with the object of our initiating an emigration en masse to the Western and Pacific States. Of course, I feel deeply that it should be necessary for us to leave our native land; but what could I do? All faith is here lost in political platitudes, and little left in our public men. I struggled hard, but the Irish laborer will not remain a slave by the Shannon while there is a chance of his becoming a freeman in a people's land. I had to accept the office, but I am consoled that I am to have the assistance of one whose services I shall not soon forget. You were chosen to accompany me. Will you? Yes, I know you will give your services to remove your brothers from slavery. I have had many conversations with members of the constabulary. Do you think the American government would refuse them as settlers with us in the United States? On receipt of your letter I shall go to work to mature our scheme. If we are denied a home in Ireland, we can build up a nation in America." The proposal of the Irish Union has been accepted by Mr. O'Leary.

—This is the way the Brooklyn Argus sums up the present excited condition of the country:

"Ring out, wild bells! The time is past
For eating humble pie.
Ring out, wild bells! The die is cast;
Our Fish is going to fry."

—Among other curious things done in England a gentleman shooting his own preserves is most remarkable. It is understood that for rifle practice, green gage plums are mostly used; but with a shot gun more fun can be got out of a blackberry jam pot than anything else.

—History repeats itself in this quotation from a newspaper printed one hundred years ago: "It is computed that no less than one hundred and twenty considerable merchants, bankers and traders have been absolutely ruined since June, 1772, owing to speculation, made bills, and every species of deceitful credit."

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1873.

"Not for Joseph."

An inconsiderate correspondent of the Boston Advertiser telegraphs that paper that Hon. Mason W. Tappan may receive the republican nomination for Governor. Mr. Tappan had been a trusted leader in republican ranks for years, was honored with a seat in Congress and was supposed to have further inclinations in that direction. When the republican party needed him most, he deserted to the opposition. Why any member of the party having its welfare at heart should suggest that it should tender the gubernatorial nomination to Mr. Tappan is beyond our ken. Should he choose to return to his old associations and serve in the ranks, it is well; but the republicans of New Hampshire want no such man as their standard bearer. Namby-pambyism is of all political diseases the most dangerous. There are vigorous men in the republican party who honor the party with their support. When men like Hackett, Bell, Haile, Wyatt, Cole, Brackett, Richards, Rollins, Gilman Marston, Hall, Morrill, Griffin, et id omne genus, cannot be found to lead republicans to victory, it will be high time to consider the propriety of rewarding treachery by trust. Mr. Tappan would be available as a candidate who might secure the votes of the liberal republicans and the prohibitionists, but the gain in that direction would be more than offset by the loss of positive men who have some regard for political honesty.

The Spanish Imbroglio.

It is thought, at Washington, that the Spanish Government has no intention of making reparation for the wrongs inflicted at the Santiago massacre. The belief gains ground there that the Kansas was sent to Santiago de Cuba to demand the surrender of the Virginius and the survivors of her crew.

The Boston Transcript's special says a call for volunteers will doubtless soon be issued.

The President has become so entirely satisfied that the Spanish government will make the reparation demanded on account of the Virginius affair that he has consented to extend the time for a definite answer to the demand made, and Minister Sickles has been notified to so inform President Castelar.

The residence of Gen. Sickles at Madrid was mobbed on the night of the 19th, but the Spanish troops drove off the rioters. A later dispatch, which is not credited, says Gen. Sickles was shot.

In the French Assembly, an amendment to the report of the committee on prolongation, providing that President MacMahon's powers be prolonged seven years independently of the constitutional bills, was adopted.

A peculiar accident occurred on board the brig Elizabeth Winslow at sea on Wednesday. The main boom broke loose during a gale and the sheets caught Henry Strops around the neck, broke his spine and severed the jugular vein, of course killing him instantly.

Recently at Wilmington, Del., a policeman noticing a man hurrying away from a butcher's stall with a stolen steak under his coat followed him to his home, and peeping in at a window, beheld him give it to his children, who devoured it raw. Not desiring at once to make an arrest, the considerate officer reported the case to the butcher, who at once sent to the starving family a basket of meat and a little money with which to buy fuel to cook it.

Beware of the Oyster Called the Clam.

Professor Anton Siegafritz, of Gorlertz, who was selected two years ago, through the action of the Prussian Parliament, to examine into the practicability and expediency of making plantations of oysters, similar to those of Ostend and St. Nazaire, has just made a preliminary report, in which he claims to have observed, in the case of all those who do more bodily than mental labor, and in proportion as the physical exceeds the mental exercise a distinct and positive tendency in the oyster, when eaten, to produce emotional insanity. In making his investigations he came to this country, and refers as follows to one of our national institutions: "While I was in America I saw the excitements caused by immoderate indulgence in shell-fish violently illustrated. They have there a sort of political assemblage called a clam-bake, where speeches and music and songs are interspersed with profuse feasts upon a species of oysters called the clam. Vast crowds attend these celebrations, and no sooner are they gorged with the insidious comestible than they become full of excitement and furors; swear themselves away in fealty to the most worthless of demagogues; sing, fight, dance, gouge one another's eyes out, and conduct themselves like madmen in a conflagration."

—There has just died in London a man who made his living by drawing pictures, in chalk, on the sidewalks, and hiring them out to the highest bidders, who received in alms from the passers-by the means to pay their rent.

State News.

At the meeting of the republican State committee at Concord, Thursday evening, it was decided to hold the State convention Jan. 7th, 1874. The councillor convention for this (now the 2d) district will be held at Dover, Jan. 8th; the Rockingham county convention at Exeter, Jan. 15th; and the senatorial convention for the first district at Portsmouth, Jan. 9th. The committee listened to speeches from Hon. Walter Harriman, Hon. E. H. Rollins and Senator Wadleigh. Hon. Chas. H. Bell and Hon. Daniel Hall were appointed a committee to prepare resolutions on the death of Hon. John P. Hale.

George W. Frost of Newmarket, agent of the factories there, has presented the village with street lamps.

A petition is being circulated in Epping for the erection of a high-school building. It is proposed to have the school free to residents of the town, and open to others on payment of tuition.

The tug-boat Seneca, with two large row boats, broke from her moorings, Tuesday morning, and drifted out into Winnipesaukee Lake. The eastern gale that was blowing at the time drove them upon the shores of Long Island, dashing them in pieces. Loss about $3000.

The Dover mills bought cotton cloth for printing before that commodity fell to its present price and as a consequence spent $60,000 more than would purchase the same amount now.

Making Her Own Hat.

Mr. Howard Paul, in his Entertainment says that "when a sudden sharp fever of economy attacks a woman, and she determines to make a hat or a bonnet for herself for a brief period between the formation of the resolution and the consummation of the deed her mind passes through various amusing stages of agitation. First, she gets herself up in her most attractive guise, and proceeds to purchase a 'shape'—as I believe the fragile outline is called—then, taking a 'bus home, she drinks in the details of every hat that enters, and learns them all by heart, and does mental sums over the cost of the ribbon, and makes up her mind to have flowers in hers like those worn by the woman in the corner and lace like that gaudy-looking creature in the middle. The next day she walks down the street, and studies all the hats that come along; and, when a woman passes her with one on, she twists her neck round to see how it looks behind, and is disgusted to see that the woman is also dislocating her neck to see how she trims her hat. When she arrives in front of a milliner's she lingers until she has analyzed all the hats in the window, and she determines to trim hers nineteen different ways, and decides not to have flowers like the woman who sat in the corner. Then she shoots into the shop, and asks to 'see hats' with the air of a person who wishes to spend a small fortune in head-gear. She examines every hat in the establishment, overhauls ten bushels of flowers, gets about fifteen shillings' worth of work out of the saleswoman, and then says she will 'look farther.' Then she gets home with her mind fixed on thirty-eight or nine different styles in which she wants to trim her hat. After a while she begins to think she ought to have a feather in it, and she passes two or three sleepless nights in trying to decide whether to put one in or not. At last she resolves she will. Then she lies awake for two more nights endeavoring to determine whether it shall be red or blue. She settles on blue. She buys the trimming, and sews it on in twenty successive positions, her mind filled with anxiety as to whether the feather should go on the right side, the left side or on top. She puts it on the right side; but just then Mrs. De Boots passes the window with a feather on the left side of hers, and so she changes it next morning. Mrs. Fitzbrown calls and her feather is on the right side, and then another change is made. At church next day, Mrs. Smith has feathers on both sides, and Mrs. Johnson has one on the top. Then more sleepless nights and painful uncertainty. At last in utter despair, she takes the hat to a milliner, and pays thirty shillings to have it trimmed. When it comes home she pronounces it 'hateful' and picks it all to pieces, and broods over it, and worries and frets, and loses her appetite, and feels life to be a burden for two weeks longer, until suddenly she has just the right thing, and becomes once more happy, and makes millions of other women miserable because their hats are not trimmed exactly like hers. As a wife, woman is a blessing; as a mother, naught can compare with her; as an organizer of new hats, she is simply an object of amusement or—compassion."

Would't Marry, Ladies.

[Syracuse Journal.]

Gough's "head is level" on the woman question. He thinks it is better for a woman to be laughed at for not being married, than to be unable to laugh because she is married. The marriage that takes all the life out of a woman, like the sunshine that takes the sweetness out of the grape, is an exceedingly suspicious commodity, and ought to give the divorce doctors something to do. But the idea of trying to reconcile a woman to an unimpaired life because another woman found it uncomfortable, is as absurd as to try to keep her from eating apples because of Mother Eve's unfortunate pomological experience.

A Protest.

The following notice has been drawn up and sent to the President and Directors of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad by Hon. Wm. B. Small of Newmarket:

The undersigned, on their own behalf, of the towns and corporations which they represent, hereby give notice that the bridge now in process of erection by said railroad across the river at Dover Point, will, when completed, entirely destroy the navigation of the Exeter and Lamprey rivers, and thereby cut off transportation by water between the towns of Exeter, South Newmarket, Newmarket and Portsmouth. The filling up of so large a portion of the river as is now being done, and in contemplation by said railroad with said bridge, will not only render the current so rapid in the space unfilled, as to make navigation through it extremely dangerous; but will so prevent the flow of the tide into Great Bay, and up said rivers as to render those rivers unnavigable. The corporations mentioned below are largely interested in the free navigation of said rivers for the transportation of coal and other materials. Said towns are also interested therein, owning, as they do, wharves and buildings upon said rivers that will be rendered worthless, or nearly so by a serious infringement upon the navigation of said rivers, and the citizens of said towns, and many other people in the vicinity are largely interested in the free navigation of said streams, and said railroad is hereby notified to desist from further filling up said rivers at said Dover Point; and remove the obstructions which said road has already placed there; and that if said road shall attempt further to fill up said river at said Dover Point, legal redress will be sought.

The above notice was signed by leading manufacturers and citizens of Exeter, Newmarket and South Newmarket.

Tom Hyer and Horace Greeley.

[St. Louis Republican.]

There is an anecdote of the Chicago convention and the part Tom Hyer played in it that is worth crystallizing in print. The struggle between the Seward, the Bates and the Lincoln factions was intense and bitter. The Chicago Democrat, Long John Wentworth's paper, then bristling all over with fierce Saxon, was putting in its hardest hitting for the rail-splitter of the Sangamon, and, as a matter of course, no salient point in the lines of his adversaries was permitted to escape assault. After Greeley, on behalf of Bates, had made a combination with the Lincoln men, it was determined to attack the Seward men in front and flank—or, to use an expression more in keeping with the tenor of this instruction, it was arranged to throw sand in the eyes of the referee, and, before he could recover, to knock Seward out of time by a blow below the belt. So the morning after the coalition was effected the Chicago Democrat came out with a scorching denunciation of the tactics of the Seward people, and the main objective point of the assault was Tom Hyer's presence as a Seward delegate. The famous pugilist awoke to find himself a famous politician. The trenchant pen of Greeley had been busy all night making him the cynoscure of surrounding eyes. He was paraded as the leader of the Seward forces, the originator of the Seward strategy, and the hitter of the Seward blows. In short, this intellectual giant had made a political Titan of the physical Hercules, and he had then, after investing him with all manner of horrible attributes, made him the representative of Sewardism. So, then, there is no telling to what extent the presence of that prize-fighter at that convention operated to mould the destinies of this nation, inasmuch as his "heavy weight," which had already broken the back of Yankee Sullivan in the prize-ring, proved the last straw that fractured the spinal column of Seward as a Presidential aspirant. When Tom saw the papers that morning he laughed heartily enough at what he, in his "great, big, good-natured way," thought a good joke. But the intellects of the Seward party saw in what Tom thought to be a good joke the token of their disaster. But they determined to have their fun out of it anyway. So they took Tom over to the Briggs house after breakfast to introduce him to Mr. Greeley. When the party reached the Briggs, Mr. Greeley was very busy; but, as "a delegation of Seward men" was announced, the philosopher, fondly imagining that they had come to patch up a truce or make a bargain that would obviate contest and allay bitterness, went out to meet them with his guileless face one solid smile, and both hands extended. A gentleman from Chenango county, New York, who was one of the party and who knew Mr. Greeley very well, grasped the proffered hand of the prize agriculturist, and forthwith dragged him into the centre of the group with: "Mr. Hyer, let me introduce you to Mr. Greeley; Mr. Greeley, Tom Hyer!" Before the astonished journalist could even how his acknowledgements his own puny hand was in the grasp of the paw that had done service in conquering Morrissey, and the prize-fighting Seward delegate inquired with an asperity which he had been carefully informed to assume: "Mr. Greeley, did you write that abusive article in the Chicago Democrat this morning? I have been told that you did."

"Yes—yes, no; well, yes, I suppose I wrote one of them," said Greeley, still taken aback and confused. But, suddenly recovering his wonted equanimity, the mild old man blurted out: "Suppose I did, what the devil are you going to do about it? You are all a pack of d—n ruffians, and I won't have any communication with you. Get out of my apartments instantly, or I will call the po—"

Here the great editor's shrill voice was drowned in a roar of laughter as the nature of the joke dawned on the bystanders, and the Seward party, with Tom Hyer towering up in their midst, broke for the bar-room to brace up against the defeat that stared them in the face.

WARLIKE RUMORS.

By Telegraph to the Chronicle.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.

The latest reports are the most warlike of any yet received, indicating great excitement at Madrid, which may render it impossible for the Spanish government to accede to our reasonable demands, even if so disposed.

A Washington special has the following further despatches from Madrid this morning: A report is circulated of a second attempt to assassinate Gen. Sickles, and he was wounded; the report is not credited in official circles, though it is outside.

The Secretary of the Navy returned this morning and was at the department at a very early hour. A large number of naval officers have been ordered to duty to-day to the ships now being fitted out for immediate active service.

The navy department has received up to this time 150 applications for service under government in case of trouble from ex-volunteer officers of the navy.

The most important assignments are: Commander E. C. Merriman to the Colorado as executive officer; Lieutenants Wainwright and Kingsley to report to the bureau of equipment for special duty; Ensign Collins to recruiting duty at New Orleans; Paymaster Crosby to the Franklin; Engineer Entwistle to the Dictator, and Dixon to the iron-clad Ajax; Capt. Shufeldt as executive officer at the Brooklyn navy yard, vice Capt. Truxton, relieved from duty; Lieut Rodgers to the command of the despatch boat; Lieut. Commander Pearson to the Brooklyn as executive officer; Lieut. Commander Wm. K. Wheeler to take passage on the Powhattan, and on falling in with the Juniata to report for duty on board as executive officer.

The Youthful Granger to His Love.

The moon is shining on the grange,
The winds are hushed, the leaves are still,
The patient stars look softly down
Upon my cot at Shannon Hill.
Then come, my horny-handed love,
And wander through the dell with me:
And gaze upon the Durham bull,
And listen to his pedigree.

Once I was in the railroad ring,
But now my hands are hard with toil;
I've scattered hay seed in my hair,
And blacked my boots with harness oil.

* * * * * * *

I think I know a new-milch cow
That's just exactly what I need;
She's thin from running out to grass,
But only wants a change of feed;
I'll mix a mash of free-trade bran,
Swindle, high taxes and back pay,
And coax her to the ballot-box,
And feed her till election day.

Exit Sharkey.

The New York papers give full accounts of Sharkey's escape from the Tombs. It appears that Sharkey has been receiving visits from Minnie Jourdan, to whom it is supposed he was betrothed. For the last fifteen days also a woman dressed in black has been paying him visits. Mrs. "Wes" Allen, whose husband is at present in State prison, has been very devoted to Sharkey, and had also a visiting acquaintance with other inmates of the Tombs. Since Sharkey's sentence he has been lodged in cell 40 of the second tier, and for four months has been locked in, never being allowed to walk about the tier. Every visitor to the Tombs has a card of admission from the commissioners of charities and correction, which is exchanged at the outer gate for a pass. That secures release at the inner gate, when the visit is over. Just before noon Miss Jourdan visited Sharkey, conversing with him, according to rule, through the grated door. Keeper Phillips was on duty at the time and through all that happened just after, Mrs. Wes Allen, dressed in light clothes and broche shawl, came in and also visited Sharkey's cell, standing with Miss Jourdan at the door and remaining in conversation. Both retired, Miss Jourdan leaving the prison, and Mrs. Allen going up to the third tier, to see one Tinsman. Phillips then lost sight of her. She next appeared at the gate, seeking egress. Her card was of course demanded, and after some delay she failed to produce it, pretending to have lost it. This at once aroused suspicion, and the alarm was sent back to the inner prison. The keepers examined each cell, and found No. 40 empty, though the door was closed. It was not locked, however, and strict search of the entire prison revealed no Sharkey, and an examination of the tickets of exit taken at the gate showed that Mrs. Wes Allen's was among them. When Sharkey made his toilet, or when and how he left his cell, does not appear. Possibly he was dressing when the two women blocked the door of his cell, apparently in conversation with him. What is known is that in the disguise of a woman's deep mourning, veil and all, he did get out. That Mrs. Allen wore a light suit adds to the mystification. One of the keepers, it seems, said to another as Sharkey in disguise passed him: "That looks like a man in woman's clothes." He was ordered to take a look at him and see if it was so. Thereupon he followed Sharkey either out of the prison into the inclosure, or out of the gate upon the steps, but as he "didn't see how he could tell whether he was a woman or not," concluded that it was all right, and failed to push his investigations. One of the keepers, it is reported, said to the veiled fugitive, "Please raise your veil, madam," according to rule. Sharkey raised his veil, and his examiner saw what he thought was a woman's face. This was soon after one o'clock.

Sharkey shot and instantly killed, on Sunday evening, September 1, 1872, Robert S. Dunn, alias Bob Isaacs. The shooting took place in the bar-room known as "The Place," at No. 288 Hudson street. Sharkey escaped from the bar-room after the commission of the deed, and on Monday night delivered himself up to Captain Garland of the twenty-eighth precinct, at a point on Washington street between Charles and Perry streets, which he intimated to the police captain. On September 4, 1872, Sharkey was lodged in the Tombs, and July 3, 1873, he was sentenced to be hanged on August 15, 1873. A stay of proceedings having been obtained, his case is now before the court of appeals.

—The other day, at a concert, a gentleman having put his hat upon a chair to keep a place, returned to claim it after a short absence. The hat he found, sure enough, where it had been left, only there was a stout lady sitting on it. "Madame," said he, "you are sitting on my hat." The lady blushed a little, turned round, and said in the blandest manner: "Oh, I beg pardon I thought it was my husband's."

The Man of Enterprise creates; the weak imitator tries to copy him. Does any sensible man suppose that legions of "Buchus" so-called, that infest the drug stores, possess the real merit of Dr. Helmbold's Genuine Extract? Any sufferer from Kidney Complaint, Dropsy, Diabetes, or other urinary diseases, in male or female, will detect the difference at once by the result. Helmbold's cures: the others fail. The genuine bears Dr. Helmbold's signature. For sale by all druggists.

Hack, Hack, Hack! Cough, Cough, Cough! Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of Bronchitis, from incipient Consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent attack, or a lingering cough, the Discovery is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it, not by drying it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the inflammation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a Cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous disease of the lungs is liable to result. 765

Worn to a Shadow.

Flesh, muscle and mind alike deteriorate when the stomach falters in its duty and the bowels do not perform their part as scavengers of the system regularly and naturally. In chronic dyspepsia the body is usually emaciated, and the muscular fibre loose and flabby, and the brain incapable of prolonged or vigorous exertion. Every organ, every member, even the immortal mind itself, is to a certain extent dependent upon the stomach for support. Strengthen and regulate this feeder of the system with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when it fails to perform its functions properly. A good appetite, an increased flow of the gastric juice, and perfect digestion and assimilation will assuredly be the result. The manner in which the great tonic and alterative effects a cure of dyspepsia is direct and simple. It stimulates the digestive organs, cleanses without convulsing the bowels, regulates the flow of bile and determines it into the right channels, and exercises a tranquilizing influence over the nerves.

"The Universal Ayer." On my journeys over the continent—through Turkey, India, China, Japan, Peru, Chili, Paraguay, Brazil, Mexico, and the United States—in them all to some extent, and in some to a great extent, I have found the UNIVERSAL AYER represented by his family medicines, which are often held in fabulous estimation. Whether they win their marvelous reputation by their cures, I know not, but I know they have it to such a degree that it frequently gave me a distinguished importance to have come from the same country.—[Field's letters from abroad.

On Friday, Superintendent Prescott and other railroad officials appeared before the Court for a mitigation of damages in the case of Capt. Robert Norton, killed by the Seabrook accident. Judge Foster, however, assessed the Eastern Railroad in the sum of $5000 and costs of trial, the full extent of the law, saying that he regretted that he could not make the penalty greater.

The Manchester & Lawrence Railroad was mulcted in the sum of $3000 and costs for running down and injuring Benjamin Woodbury, at Salem, N. H.

Court adjourned until January.

Says the Biddeford Journal: Some few days since the Portland Press said it was rumored that the E. R. R. and the B. & M. managers had struck hands and were in accord. And now a private letter to us from the interior of the State adds this paragraph: "I hear most positive assurance that the E. R. R. and B. & M. are in entire harmony in the inner circles, and that the vituperation of underlings is a sort of Chinese thunder to amuse the people." But what about the reported offer to Judge Rice to assume the Presidency of the B. & M.?

The other day a rustic gentleman stepped into the police station to look after some friends there confined. The officer in charge being engaged in some other business, the stranger concluded to wait until he could get a hearing, and being thirsty, looked around for something wherewith to wet his whistle, and espied the fire extinguisher in the corner. He mistook it for a soda fountain, or a new kind of water cooler, and calling a boy to turn the faucet, he applied the pipe to his mouth. A copious draught convinced him that Portsmouth water is the worst he ever tasted. The office came to the rescue, and explained the use of the machine and nature of its contents but it was almost impossible to convince Rusticus that he was not poisoned.

Mrs. S. L. Greene is canvasing the city for DeWitt Talmage's paper, the Christian at Work. We need not say that this is one of the ablest and most popular of the religious periodicals of the day. It is handsomely printed on large, clear type, each number containing sixteen pages of reading matter, treating all the current topics in Talmage's well known style. Spurgeon is also a regular contributor. The chromos given to subscribers are of unusual excellence, one of them "The Twins," being an accurate copy of Sir Edward Landseer's famous painting. The others, "A wee bit fractious," and "Sabbath Afternoon," are pictures of home life that will commend themselves to every beholder. Both paper and chromos are worthy of consideration.

An Isles of Shoals Joke.

[Portland Transcript.]

Some years since Rev. Mr. Burroughs, of Portsmouth, spent several weeks on Star Island for the benefit of his health, and the pulpit of the little stone church being unoccupied, he volunteered to preach for the people during his stay. The church was accordingly opened and he ministered unto them in spiritual things to their apparent acceptance. The preacher, however, did not learn in what appreciation his labors were held, until he prepared to take his departure, when his interested hearers sent him a bill for the use of the Church.

Chloroforming the Chicken.

Captain Vandiver, of Illinois, who, by the way, is quite a stirring farmer, recently hired three young men to work on his farm. He told each man that he must be up in the morning by the first crowing of the cock. He had a faithful old rooster who never failed to crow at the earliest dawn, and it was agreed all around that his first notes should be the signal for the boys to be up and about the duties of the day. Monday morning came, and the Captain awoke, as usual, before day, and listened long and patiently for chanticleer to "sing his earliest greeting," but he sang not. Day began to dawn, and the old hens were singing in the barn-yard, but no crowing was heard on the farm. By and by the sun arose and sent his first and brightest rays through the Captain's window. Then again he awoke from his second snooze, and seeing the sunshine on the floor, sprang from his bed with the exclamation: "What in the —— is the matter with that chicken?" From the bedroom of the boys came three snores, loud and long drawn out. "The ——," says the Captain, "them lazy rascals are asleep yet! What in the mischief can be the matter with my old rooster?" Putting on his clothes, he hastened to the hen-house—all the chickens had flown the roost except chanticleer, who sat with drooped wings and head between his feet—fast asleep. The boys had chloroformed him.

Measured Lightning.

The length of a flash of lightning is generally greatly under-estimated. The longest known was measured by M. F. Petit, at Toulouse. This flash was ten and a half miles long. Arago once measured a series, which averaged from seven to eight miles in length. The longest interval ever remarked between a flash and the report was seventy-two seconds, which would correspond with a district of fourteen miles. Direct researches have shown that a storm is seldom heard at a greater distance than from seven to ten miles, while the average are barely heard over four or five miles off. This fact is the more curious as cannon may be distinctly heard double or treble that distance, and in special cases much farther.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the heaviest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. S. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,

No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps not one ever acquired a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the early and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

WILLIAM CRITCHLEY,
Agent for Portsmouth and vicinity.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (290,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines have been sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and quality for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to force the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the strongest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has notled the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justible complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives the Colorado River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will hereafter be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or to the local canvasser, who without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where he certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Plant and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: One Copy, one year, $2.00; Four Copies, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; Ten Copies, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no mine will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.
This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disorder and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucborrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book-illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

Proctor's Tenth Lecture.

Mr. Proctor's tenth lecture in his Lowell Institute was delivered Friday night. The special subject of the evening, he said, in opening his lecture, was of great importance in astronomy, and one which many persons were much interested. The Astronomer Royal has said that it was not possible to describe the means employed in the transit of Venus so that they could be understood by a popular audience, but the lecturer believed if it were not understood the fault was his. In measuring distant objects two or more stations some distance apart are chosen. A line drawn between them, whose length is of course known, is called the base line, and it forms the base of the triangle which they afterwards construct. On looking from these stations at the object we of course see it at different angles and these angles we can measure. If now we draw lines from the ends of our base lines at the angles, we have found the two lines will meet. The point at which they intersect will be the position which the object occupies, and either of the two lines will be of the same length as the distance between us and the object. But in practice we do not draw the triangle, because there is no ruler or pencil that will make a straight line,—so we calculate this. The method can be illustrated by the case of the moon. One observer sees it from England and notes the angle at which he looks at it. Another observes it from the Cape of Good Hope, and also marks the angle. The line between Greenwich and the Cape of Good Hope is the base line, and its length can be accurately measured. The two angles are known, and the length of lines to their point of intersection can be easily calculated.

But with bodies far distant from the earth we cannot use this simple method, and we resort to a more complicated one. If we wish to find the distance of the sun we take a body nearer than the sun. Mars or Venus answer the purpose well. If we determine accurately the distance of one of these we have the key to the whole solar system. Venus comes the nearest; but when it is in opposition it is difficult to see it, as a portion of the sun is seen about it, and so we are unable to determine its exact position. When Mars, on the contrary, is in opposition, it appears as a bright object against a black sky, and we can get its position exactly. The observers at the different points prove its position with that of some star. Its opposition occurs every two years, but at some time it is so far distant that accurate measurements cannot be made. In 1877, however, it will be very near, and will offer very fine opportunities for measurements.

In observing Mars two observers are not necessary, for we can get its position in the morning and again in the evening; and, as the earth will have turned half round on its axis during the time, we shall have observed it from two widely-distant points. There are times in the revolution of Venus when it is upon the face of the sun. These occur between June 6 and 8. At this time the sun appears as a disk plate, as it were, and we can mark the position of Venus upon it. If two persons, stationed at widely-separated points, look at Venus, she appears to occupy different places on the sun's face. Now, we can calculate the distance between these two apparent places and from this distance calculate the sun's diameter. This is called the direct method of measuring. It is necessary to know the exact time at which the observations were made in order to compare them. Another method is that of Halley's, by which we measure the time that it takes Venus to cross the sun. From two different points, one at the north of the equator, the other at the south, of course the time taken is different. This difference enables us to calculate the distance obtained by the direct method, and the rest of the problem is the same.

The difficulty this method is that it is difficult to tell when Venus enters the sun, for when it touches it it alters its form and assumes a pear shape. This phenomena is referred to irradiation, though some think it due to imperfections in the telescopes. Whatever its cause the observers are undecided for 15 or 16 seconds as to its position, and as it is necessary to know to within one second, this introduces a great error. There is another method which depends upon the time that the eclipse takes place. Of course at different times. As there is a difference of only about a second, it is necessary that we should know the absolute time. This makes the method difficult of application, for it is not easy to determine the absolute time at many of these temporary stations, some of them being on desolate islands in the Antartic Ocean. Professor Airy has shown that in using Halley's method we must take into account the rotation of the earth, for this may lengthen or shorten the time of Venus' crossing. He found that this had introduced an error of 3,500,000 miles in computing the sun's distance from the observation of the transit of 1769. He then examined the position in 1874, and stated that the effect of this rotation would render the observations worthless, but that in 1882 it would assist them. Mr. Proctor reviewed the subject, and came to a different result. He found that 1874 would offer fine opportunities for observation; but that in 1882 the sun would be but 4 degrees above the horizon, while it is known that if the sun is below 10 degrees no observation can be made. Mr. Proctor related what a tempest this has raised, and how pressure was brought to bear to effect his removal from the position of secretary of the Royal Astronomical Society. All of these attempts failed. His results had been confirmed by the French and American mathematicians. For the coming transit of 1874 over a score of stations will be taken in the northern hemisphere; only one good one has been selected in the southern,—more ought to be—and he hoped some wealthy Americans would fit out an expedition and find some southern location which should be free from the atmospheric disadvantages which the English location possesses. In this way the English laurels will be taken. I do not advise this, said the lecturer, because I love my country less; but because I love science more. All of the different methods described will be employed and the Americans will also photograph the sun at their different stations, and, by measuring the photographs, find the position of Venus at different times.

Special dispatches from Madrid to the London morning journals, Saturday, agree in representing that the late interviews between Minister Sickles and the Spanish authorities were of a stormy character.

Mr. Sickles barely escaped mobbing by the crowd which congregated in front of his residence. In consequence of these demonstrations he determined to leave Madrid, but the Government having dispersed the mob and since maintained peace, he has resolved to remain in the city.

A Washington special says that an official dispatch to Secretary Fish, received at 12 o'clock Friday night, says that a second attempt was made to assassinate Minister Sickles, and that 1000 troops now guard the American Legation at Madrid.

Mrs. Joseph Selleck, who owned and lived alone in a small house in New Canaan, Conn., was brutally murdered with an axe on Wednesday morning, her clothing saturated with kerosene, the house fired, and her body nearly consumed. The axe, with blood and hair, a small piece of the skull and brain, and an empty kerosene can were found in the room. A small rocking-chair was upset and partly consumed. A hole was burned through the floor, through which the charred remains fell into the cellar. The skull showed two cuts with the axe. No clew to the murderer exists at present, and no motive can be conceived except plunder, as the house was ransacked.

The libel suit brought by William Murphy to recover $25,000 from the publishers of the Cincinnati Enquirer was decided in favor of the defendant by default, the plaintiff not appearing, whereupon the Enquirer remarks: "We have no objection to libel suits, but when a man asks for damages he ought not to expect us to get out a search-warrant for him on the day of trial. This thing is getting entirely too common."

A Swindler Caught in his Own Trap.

[St. Louis Republican.]

W. N. Monroe, a railroad contrator from Elizabethtown, Ky., lately fixed up a nice little robbery of himself in a hotel in Louisville. He complained to the proprietor that he had lost $7,000 in the hotel. The money had been taken from his satchel in his room while he was at supper. The proprietor immediately engaged three detectives to trace the robbery. The detectives first had an interview with Monroe in his room. He told his story, and talked too much, and not the right kind of talk for a man who had recently lost $7,000. At last one of the detectives told Monroe that he had heard enough, and already knew the robber. This astonished Monroe more than it pleased him. He was still more astonished and distressed when the detective proposed that he should submit to a search. To this mode of proceeding Monroe decidedly objected, but the sharp-scented thief-catchers began shaking him down anyhow. They found $1,070, which was at least a considerable portion of the money, on his person, and a letter which developed the fellow's whole plan of operation. It was a scheme to cheat his creditors by the story of the robbery, and making over his property to his brothers before it could be seized for debt. The detectives got evidence that he had been seen writing this very letter about 1 o'clock that day. In it he described a robbery, which according to his own verbal account did not occur until five or six hours afterwards. When he found himself completely cornered he acknowledged the fraud and asked to be let alone, but the detectives took charge of the money and the letter and locked Monroe up in jail. They were not long in catching that thief, and Monroe wishes they hadn't caught him.

The remains of Mr. Hale were taken from his residence on Pleasant street, to the Unitarian Church, at half past one, and at two o'clock the ceremonies took place, Rev. Thomas H. Brown officiating. During the moving of the procession to the cemetery the several bells of the city were tolled.

A Modern Godiva.

[Binghampton (N. Y.) Republican.]

Yesterday afternoon Overseer of the Poor Rood was notified that an insane woman was at the House of the Good Shepherd, in the Fifth Ward, whom he was desired to remove to the County House. Proceeding there with a buggy, he found that she had been brought there in an express wagon the night before, having probably come in on the train. Her name she refused to tell, but said she came from Elmira. He found her in bed, watched by some of the attendants, who stated that shortly after she arrived she tore her clothing off and threw it out of the window.

She refused to let herself be dressed, with the exception of the wrapper and underclothing she had on in in bed, but after considerable trouble her shoes and stockings were put on, a shawl wrapped around her, and she was carried to the buggy in a passive state. She rode along quietly over the bridge, through Water street, across the Suspension Bridge and under the railroad bridge. Just here, however, trouble commenced, and Mr. Rood had what might reasonably be considered "a right lively time." She first unbraided her hair, and threw it wildly over her head and shoulders, then unbuttoning her wrapper reached down and stripped off her shoes and stockings and threw them and it out of the buggy. Next she caught hold of her only remaining garment with both hands and tore it completely in two, and slipped out of it. All this time Mr. Rood was not idle, but having to manage his horse with one hand he was unable to keep the woman quiet with the other.

In her efforts to get out she clenched one of the lines and pulled the horse nearly off the bank at the ice-house. While Mr. Rood was taking care of the horse and wagon, she slipped out over the wheel and ran with might and main back toward the city in a perfectly naked state. Mr. Rood turned his horse and gave chase, when she left the road and took to the fields. Passing her, Mr. Rood hurried on for assistance, and meeting Mr. P. A. Merrill, they returned in search of her. They met her coming out of Winding Way, where Mr. Merrill caught her with the assistance of a passer-by, and wrapping the buffalo around her he put her in the wagon again, Mr. Rood holding her and Mr. Merrill driving. In this order they reached the Poor-House, not without considerable "scrimmaging" on the way.

When Messrs. Rood and Merrill left the Poor-House the keeper and his assistants were trying to dress her, very much against her will, as she tried to tear off her clothing as fast it was put on.

Before starting she told Mr. Rood she was not sick, but had been crazy ever since she saw the Devil, about a year before. Selah says if that is her effect of seeing his Satanic Majesty, he hopes he will "let up" on his visits in this part of the country, for he thinks driving a horse with one hand and trying to hold a naked maniac with the other, is worse than taking an eel off a hook while your fingers are half frozen.

An Office Seeker's Announcement.

The Harrodsburg (Ky.) People has this quaint paragraph: "We announce James B. Clark, editor of this paper, as a candidate for County Judge. We have known this gentleman from early infancy, and can with truth declare that he has always been our most devoted and faithful friend. In the coming canvass we shall depart, for once and the first time, from the rule hitherto adopted by us of taking no active part in contests between democrats, and shall do all that we can to secure his nomination and election. As to his qualifications, he declares that he is able to draw the salary, be it large or small, with as much dignity and promptness as any man in the county. For his election he relies entirely upon the votes of those who desire to confer the coveted honor upon him. If another should be chosen he will promptly confess that he answered before he was called, and shall submit to the will of the people certainly without a murmur, and with as much cheerfulness as such painful and harrowing circumstances will allow."

How our Population Grows.

[Baltimore American.]

Four hundred and sixty thousand are the figures of immigration into the United States for the year which ended in June last. Nearly half a million of men, women, and children drawn from other countries—almost entirely those of Europe—and added to the population of the nation within the space of a twelvemonth! The simple statement is burdened with suggestions of national character and progress. There is no other land on the face of the earth, with the exception of the British colonies in India and the South Seas, which absorbs a foreign element of population, and even these can hardly number scores, where the influx into the United States amounts to thousands. And it is noticeable that the westward tide of immigration is a constantly swelling one, bearing upon its rapid flow an ever-increasing multitude of the people of the old and effete nationalities of Europe.

Previous to 1873, the record for no year was greater than four hundred thousand, showing an increase of sixty thousand. What is also peculiar is that two hundred thousand of this great army arrived during the last ninety days preceding the 30th of June, an evidence that the tide is on the flood, and that the next array of figures on the subject will be enlarged to even vaster proportions.

The division of the sources from whence this multitude comes is suggestive, and exhibits the changing current of the tide. Ireland has for so many years been depleted of her agricultural and laboring classes that the drain upon her must have some limit, and so we find that whereas she sent to America in 1867 one hundred and nine thousand emigrants—the largest number of any year—in succeeding years there was a marked decrease which in 1873 had reduced the total for the year to seventy-seven thousand. Perhaps, also, the more favorable legislation which England has adopted for the amelioration of the wrongs and oppression under which the Irish people have suffered has had something to do in making them contented to stay at home. We believe that in the last fifteen years about a million of Irish have come to the United States, and the withdrawal of so great a number from a country which, although overcrowded and depressed by the congregation upon its soil of more people than its productive industries were equal to supporting, is nevertheless small in extent, has given appreciable relief by permitting those remaining to work and be paid.

But if the Irish are falling off in emigration statistics, a very different report comes from the "right little, tight little island" on the other side of St. George's Channel. Previous to 1873, the maximum of emigration from England to the United States was but forty-four thousand, which figures were reached in 1868; but in 1873 the account is swelled to seventy-five thousand—almost equal to Ireland, and, with that exception, standing next to Germany. It is not difficult to determine the cause of this increase for Mr. Arch and Mr. Bradlaugh and Mr. Jenkins have only too truly portrayed the wretched condition of the artizans and laboring men of a country which is striving to reconcile the impossibilities of a popular system of political economy with the existence of a priveliged class of aristocracy. The peerage of England is very ancient and very honorable, and it is collectively and individually, an object of tremendous reverence and awe to the average Briton, who does not recognize the Old Man of the Sea even when he is mounted on his back and riding him to death; besides which, there are other honest people of the world who imagine that a title of nobility is deserving of more respect and consideration than the ordinary individual; but nevertheless, the English peerage is the heaviest burden which the country carries, and whilst there is no other escape from oppression of its weight, Englishmen will be compelled to run away to the United States.

But it is Germany which makes the chief contribution to the growth of the American census. One hundred and fifty thousand emigrants came over during the twelve months embraced in the report. The rush from Germany keeps up a steady average increase. Its highest figures till now were touched in 1869, when they were one hundred and twenty-five thousand. Next year he war checked the tide, but afterwards it grew, until it has culminated as now reported. No wonder the Government witnesses with alarm that outflow of German mind and muscle, and seeks to interpose a barrier, even resorting to arbitrary measures which are strangely like the terror of absolutism. The army conscriptions and other harsh measures of the Government are increasing the longing of Germans for that "land across the sea" where so many thousands of their countrymen have preceded them and made for themselves such homes and fortunes as they might have unavailingly toiled a lifetime for on the soil of their nativity.

We can afford to take them all—English, Irish, German—no matter from whence they come, with no other condition than that, when they place their feet on American soil, they shall become American citizens in faith and honor, casting away their foreign prejudices, and particularly abandoning any such notions as those of being a consolidated nationality, with public and political aims and objects in the New World.

—On the day of Sir Edwin Landseer's funeral somebody hung wreaths to the lower jaws of each of the Trafalgar-square lions, in London, and what is more remarkable, they remained undisturbed for a week.

Col. Waddell of North Carolina has set up the "theory" that "five hundred years before Columbus was born a colony of Irish settled North Carolina."

—Mrs. Fadover says she has found out why a certain poet calls himself Joking Miller; it's because there's so much chaff in his verses.

New Publications.

A second profusely illustrated article on Louisiana opens SCRIBNER'S for December. Mr. King's first article on this subject created an interest which the present paper cannot fail to deepen. In the same number is a "popular science" paper on "Savage Man," with very striking illustrations; an interesting sketch, with portrait of Proctor, the celebrated young English astronomer now in this country, by John Fraser; Froude's second paper on an English Abbey, in which the Wat Tyler insurrection is touched upon; a timely and able discussion, by Prof. Atwater, of Princeton, of the Specie Payment question; "Black Rock," a story, a poem by Bret Harte, entitled Luke (in the Colorado Park—1873); an explanation of "Carlism in Spain," by J. W. Preston; and continuations of Miss Trafton's story, "Katherine Earle," and Mrs. Davis' "Bartmy Fishers." Dr. Holland, in Topics of the Time, discusses "Some Religious Newspapers," "Provisions for Wives and Children," "The American Gentleman of Leisure," and "How Much has been Gained" toward Christian Union. In "The Old Cabinet" there is "The House on the Corner," "The Commonplace," "The Invisible Hinge," and "Nothing Better than Truth." In Home and Society, Culture and Progress, Nature and Science, and Etchings a great many subjects are briefly treated.

We have received from O. Ditson & Co., Boston, the following pieces of new music: Tornado Mazurka, (for piano); by Edgar H. Sherwood. Do the best you can, (song); words by Capt. P. Kelley, music by F. Bounker. Wouldn't you like to know; (song and chorus); words by W. C. P.; music by J. S. Barlow. Give, (song); words by Adelaide Anne Proctor; music by Arthur S. Sullivan. Franchette Galop, by Chas. E. Pratt. How I love to dance, (serio comic song), words by Harry Miller; music by Franz Bullik. The dancing Quakers (duet); words by Harry Miller; arranged by Charles E. Pratt. Mamma, come sing me to sleep; (song); words by Samuel N. Mitchell; Music by Wm. A. Huntley. La fille de madame Angot, (Lancers); from Ch. Lecocq's Opera Comique; arranged by D. L. Downing. Yachtman's song, (for piano); by Charles Wels. Nocturne, (for piano); by Kaffenberger. Marche Romaine (for piano); by Chas. Gounod. A maiden's dream, (Nocturne); by Gustav Lange. Spring, gentle spring, (Waltz); arranged by Chas. E. Pratt.

Brain Curiosities.

During excessive labor of the brain there is increased flow of blood in the working organs, the vessels of the head and neck becoming distended with blood, as is shown by the flushing of the face. If this condition of distention is long continued, the vessels are apt to lose the power of contracting when mental activity is diminished. Hence arises the impossibility of fulfilling the physical condition of sleep, the most important of which is the diminution of the flow of the vital fluid to the brain. Some extraordinary instances have been recorded of prolonged wakefulness as a result of mental overstrain. Boerhaave mentions that when, on one occasion, intently engaged on a particular study, he did not close his eyes in sleep for six weeks. Sir Gilbert Blane was informed by General Pichegru that, for a whole year, when engaged in active campaign operations, he slept but one hour in the twenty-four. These, and other similar cases, have probably been unconsciously exaggerated, for people often sleep without having an after-consciousness of the fact. It is certain enough that the continued deprivation of any considerable part of the normal amount of sleep will be seriously detrimental to health. Mr. Hammond, in his work on sleep, mentions the case of a literary man in America, who, for nearly a year, while intently engaged in a favorite study, restricted his period of rest to four hours a day, and frequently less. At the end of that time the overtasking of his mental power was manifested in a curious way. He told the physician that, though still able to maintain a connected line of reasoning, he found that as soon as he attempted to record his ideas on paper, the composition turned out to be simply a tissue of arrant nonsense. When writing, his thoughts flowed so rapidly that he was not conscious of the disconnected nature of what he was writing; but as soon as he stopped to read it over, he was aware how completely he misrepresented his conceptions. It the language happened to be at all intelligible, it was sure to have no relation to the ideas he wished to express. Thus, wishing to obtain a book from a friend, he found that, instead of a request, he had written the prayer of Socrates as given by Plato. Sir Isaac Newton, in the later years of life, suffered greatly from wakefulness. The fact, well known to every medical man, that persistent sleeplessness is frequently the precursor or initiatory stage of several most intractable maladies, physical and mental, always invests the presence of this indication of mental overstrain with grave interest. But a continued course of excessive mental labor generally manifests its effects on the mind itself in various ways, all more or less premonitory of approaching collapse. The brain-worker begins to perceive an unwonted want of clearness in his ideas; work becomes gradually less easy to him he is alarmed at sudden awkward failures of memory; a feeling of surfeit or disgust will steal over him in the midst of work; he becomes unable long to fix his attention; and, latterly, feels as if all mental energy were crushed out of him. If these warnings of an overwrought brain, now speaking distinctly with the tongue of disease, are disregarded, the wonder frequently is, not that the inevitable retribution follows, but that it should have been so long delayed. What particular form the Nemesis shall assume, whether of physical or mental disease, will be determined by accidents, partly of personal habit and temperament, and partly of inherited predisposition.

The Man of Enterprise creates; the weak imitator tries to copy him. Does any sensible man suppose that legions of "Buchus" so-called, that infest the United States, possess the real merit of Dr. Helmbold's Genuine Extract? Any sufferer from Kidney Complaint, Dropsy, Diabetes, or other urinary diseases, in male or female, will detect the difference at once by the result. Helmbold's cures: the others fail. The genuine bears Dr. Helmbold's signature. For sale by all druggists.

Hack, Hack, Hack! Cough, Cough, Cough!

Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of Bronchitis, from incipient Consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent attack, or a lingering cough, the Discovery is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it, not by forcing it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the irritation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a Cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous disease of the lungs is liable to result. 705

Worn to a Shadow.

Flesh, muscle and mind alike deteriorate when the stomach falters in its duty and the bowels do not perform their part as scavengers of the system regularly and naturally. In chronic dyspepsia the body is usually emaciated, and the muscular fibre loose and flabby, and the brain incapable of prolonged or vigorous exertion. Every organ, every member, even the immortal mind itself, is to a certain extent dependent upon the stomach for support. Strengthen and regulate this feeder of the system with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when it fails to perform its functions properly. A good appetite, an increased flow of the gastric juice, and perfect digestion and assimilation will assuredly be the result. The manner in which the great tonic and alterative effects a cure of dyspepsia is direct and simple. It stimulates the digestive organs, cleanses without convulsing the bowels, regulates the flow of bile and determines it into the right channels, and exercises a tranquilizing influence over the nerves.

Portsmouth Fishing Fleet.

An article in the Boston Advertiser says that the fishing fleet of Plymouth, numbering twenty-six sail, have landed this season an aggregate of 24,025 quintals cod-fish. The catch of the Portsmouth fleet makes a much better showing. The fleet consists of five vessels, viz: Schs. Gov. Goodwin, W. H. Y. Hackett, Mayor Jones, Enos Briggs and Velocipede. These vessels have landed the present season 8,811 quintals of cod fish, so that with less than one-fifth of her fleet, we have landed more than one-third of all the fish Plymouth has received, and we expect to beat all the fishing ports, just so.

A Grateful Dog.

A very valuable dog belonging to Mr. John J. Pickering recently got a blackberry briar bedded in the ball of the right eye, which became badly inflamed. After a week's suffering, Dr. Norton, the medical expert for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, administered ether to the suffering "Snyder," and extracted the briar with forceps. "Snyder" speedily recovered, his right eye now being as perfect and useful as the other. The dumb beast has become quite partial to the Doctor and shows his appreciation of the kindly deed.

Laconics.

Chickens were selling in this market on Saturday for 15 cts. per lb.; turkeys for 18.

First-Assistant Engineer R. T. Bennett is detached from this naval station and ordered to the Dictator.

U. S. S. Mayflower, Lieut. Comd'r Gardner, left this port, Saturday evening, for Fortress Monroe, and will sail from thence to Key West.

A rumor is current in railroad circles that Charles F. Hatch, general manager of the Eastern Railroad, has resigned that position; that Mr. Prescott, the superintendent, is to succeed him, and that George Bachelder, the general agent at Portland, will succeed Mr. Prescott as superintendent.

The Lawrence papers state that Dr. Chas. A. Norton of this city read a valuable paper on Nasal and Bronchial Catarrh at the session of the Massachusetts Homœopathic Medical Society on the 19th. The Society passed a vote of thanks for his carefully prepared paper and requested a copy for publication.

In the supreme judicial court, in the suit of Dr. George W. Kittredge against the Boston and Maine Railroad, which was brought to recover for certain services rendered to the road by Kittredge while a director, but outside of his duties as such, and which was referred to an auditor, has been determined by a judgment upon the auditor's report in favor of Kittredge for between $400 and $500.

The rumors current on Saturday, to the effect that the dry dock at this naval station is to go into commission this week and be employed as a dispatch boat under command of Mr. Wm. A. Ashe, are entirely without foundation, as also is the statement that orders have been received at the navy yard to fit the anchor hoy for blockade duty as soon as possible and that the command of the vessel is to be given to Mr. Wm. Pettigrew.

Captain George H. Preble, United States Navy, from Portland, has been selected by the department to write a history of the navy yards at Portsmouth and Charlestown from their first establishment up to the present time. The volumes will be of great general as well as local interest. Captain Preble has rare qualifications for the work. His genealogy of the Preble family and his larger volume, "The history of the American Flag," are proofs of his ability as a careful, industrious and intelligent author.

Sharkey's Substitute.

[N. Y. World.]

The "Wes Allen" family have a peculiar fondness for the inside of prisons Mr. Wes Allen not long ago objected so violently to being taken away from Sing Sing that Mr. Hubbell at last gave over his attempts to speed his parting guest. Now Mrs. Wes Allen has ensconced herself in the Tombs without legal provocation to that course, but for the sake of getting Mr. Sharkey out. Mr. Sharkey's motive in getting out is plain, but not the motive of Mrs. Wes Allen in getting in. It is possible that she desired to put herself out of the reach of Mr. Wes Allen in the probable event of his knocking down the gates of Sing Sing with a mallet composed of the corpse of Mr. Hubbell and so regaining his freedom. We do not wish Mrs. Wes Allen so great an evil as the society of Mr. Wes Allen, and we suggest that she be permitted to reside in the Tombs for a space. She ought to be held as a hostage for the surrender of Mr. Sharkey, who, if he has any chivalry, will hasten back to the Tombs to get Mrs. Wes Allen out. But as a rule it is not safe, we grieve to say, to put faith in the chivalry of gentlemen who shoot other gentlemen in bar-rooms.

Coming To Their Milk.

The war news causes much excitement at Charleston, S. C., and great anxiety is felt regarding the condition of Forts Sumter and Moultrie at the harbor entrance, which are now dismantled. The hope is expressed that the government will place them immediately on a war footing.

—This is the way they advertise in a country weekly: The "Set-up-and-show-your-breast-pin-Mary-Jane" attitude is the agony with the fashionable fair ones, having superseded the "kangaroo flop" and Grecian stoop," and "you bet" that R. M. Moore can show more pretty, nice, fashionable fabrics for your "set-up-Mary-Jane-and-show-your-kangaroo-flop-Grecian-stoop" attitude, for less money than any other man in Charlton.

What Might Have Been.

[Courier-Journal.]

What a difference a foot and a half would have made in the career of Sam Cox! Butler's silly retort of "shoo-fly" would have fallen flatly over the broad shoulders of Beck, of Kentucky, or Robinson, of Illinois. Many a limp and vapid intellect, beside Mr. Turvydrop's, has got forward in the world on appearance and deportment.

—A Missouri girl, on her wedding day, sold her piano, and bought a sewing machine and material enough for a suit for her husband and herself, and at once set to work making them up. Her husband let out the secret, and in a week her four sisters were all married.

—The sugar Cuba is manufacturing for Spain—Sugar of lead.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new.

E. De Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL

CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

Financial "Science."

We have daily demonstrations that finance is as yet far from having been reduced to a positive science, but we have seen no better illustration of this truth than in the following incident within the experience of a recent Secretary of the Treasury:

Mr. Fessenden once, while he was Secretary of the Treasury, had in contemplation an important financial measure, but being uncertain touching its consequences, sent for two eminent bankers of New York to benefit by their views upon the subject. These two gentlemen immediately responded to Mr. Fessenden's invitation, and in the interview with him—at the beginning of which he stated his proposed measure—ranged themselves on opposite sides of the subject with great promptness and a good deal of heat. They argued the question in its bearings, pro and con, and at the end left the Secretary as undecided as he had been at the opening of the conference. But he thanked his visitors for their attendance, frankly admitted his perplexity, and said he would consult them on a future occasion, and asked them in the meantime to give the subject their best thoughts. A fortnight later he called them to a second interview. Imagine the amazement of the Secretary when he found that in the interim his visitors had exactly changed sides, and were as intolerant of each other now as they had been on the occasion of the first meeting! Mr. Fessenden, it is said, more than once declared his belief that finance was not a science, and instanced this circumstance.

Paper Flour Barrels.

[Auburn (N. Y.) Advertiser.]

A flour barrel made of straw board, stronger than the ordinary wooden barrel and completely water-proof, is a novelty which has recently had its origin in Port Byron. The barrel differs from the wooden barrel somewhat in shape, being a straight cylinder. The hoops are of the same material as the barrel, and the heads of wood, turned from the solid block. It is the intention of the designers, we understand, to substitute paper heads for the wooden ones as soon as the proper machinery can be constructed, as being both cheaper and stronger. Only half size (100-pound) barrels have yet been made. Arrangements are under way for manufacturing these barrels on a large scale, of which we shall take occasion to speak hereafter. It is claimed of these new barrels that they are not only a great deal cheaper than wooden ones, but stronger and far more durable. They certainly present a very neat appearance, and if they prove satisfactory on trial, will probably in time entirely supersede those now in use.

WILLIAM H. PAYNE,
Agent for Portsmouth and vicinity.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals, for superiority of productions. These are the highest Awards for Industrial Products, at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the period given, or over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as a vegetable food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Vitality, Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture has kept pace with the marvelous growth of the times; it should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "foreign ideas," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of the art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publisher will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the potential Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate, and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TWENTY COPIES, $36, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION
CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book-illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and salesmen, because it is absolutely new, and "has money in it." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. B. FORD & CO., N. Y., Boston, Chicago, San Francisco or Cincinnati. td13

THE GOLDEN IDOL; OR, The Enchanted Tree.

CHAPTER I.

A GIRL'S DESPAIR.

Upon a lonely shore of Tonga-taboo harbor, in the island of Tonga-taboo, two persons sat hidden in a dim recess of palms.

They were father and daughter.

The former was a plain, simple clergyman of middle age.

The latter was a charming girl of seventeen years, scarcely more remarkable for her loveliness than for her sterling good sense and a worldly wisdom far in advance of her years.

As to the wife and mother of this couple, she had long been sleeping her last sleep in one of the lonely nooks of this far Pacific island.

Ten years had passed since Mr. Fortescue had come to the shores of this lovely harbor, with the intention of passing his days in the labor of converting to Christianity their pagan idolators; but the good missionary had, in some unintentional way, fallen under the displeasure of the ruler of the island, and was now being hunted for his life.

"I am so tired, father," panted the girl, as she clasped her hand tightly to her heart.

"We ought not to have run so fast," responded Mr. Fortescue. "But I am sure the savages were near us."

"Hush! here they are!" breathed the girl.

A rush of footsteps was heard, and a moment later several savages came flying past, rending the air with their cries.

"They think we have gone in that direction," whispered the missionary. "Oh, if they only knew how near we are still to the settlement!"

"Will they not soon be back this way, father?" asked Miss Fortescue.

"I dare say they will, Ellie. Ah! here comes another band of them."

A dozen armed warriors traversed the sandy beach immediately in front of the hiding-place of the couple.

"How terrible they are! how lost to all pity!"

"Alas! for the poor results of all my toils!" sighed Mr. Fortescue. "To see these savage pursuers, and hear their yells, one would little imagine the sacrifices we have made on their account. All the benefits they have received from us are forgotten. They are determined to kill us if they can find us."

At this point Ellie started violently, half-arising to her feet.

"Oh, look, father!" she cried.

This was all she could say, but she pointed far away in the direction from which the fugitives had come.

"I see," murmured Mr. Fortescue. "They have fired our dwelling."

A lurid flame arose in the air in the distance.

"It is hard to see our home perishing," sighed the daughter. "What demons they are."

She started again, even more violently than before—this time at the barking of a dog within ten feet of her.

"The cur will certainly betray us!" cried the missionary, springing to his feet.

"He has betrayed us already," returned Ellie. "See! they are coming."

In the last moment at his residence, Mr. Fortescue had seized an old sword he chanced to have on his premises, and he thanked heaven for the service this weapon now rendered him, he being able to cleave the dog in twain with a single desperate blow.

"Had we better not plunge into the interior, father?" asked Ellie.

"I think not. It is there that they are looking for us. They are beating up every bush, and—yes! they are certainly coming nearer to us. See! they have torches! Oh, this is horrible!"

"Perhaps we had better throw ourselves into a boat, and trust ourselves to the winds and waves."

"I would have done so, darling, but for the roughness of the sea."

"It's all up with our halt here," said the missionary, turning back. "We must fly. The dog was heard, and the savages are hastening in this direction."

Breaking from their covert, hand in hand, the father and daughter ran along the beach and gained a temporary shelter behind a small lodge of rocks which jutted out into the sea in the form of a small promontory.

"If we only had a boat now!" sighed the father, "possibly we could get off in it."

Ere Ellie could reply, a solitary savage came bounding from the bushes, brandishing his war-club.

"Alas! alas!" mourned Mr. Fortescue.

He had realized only too well the imminence of the peril—the utter futility of all his efforts at escape—but he met the foremost savage with the strength of desperation, cleaving him in twain nearly as cleverly as he had dispatched the dog which had discovered the whereabouts of the couple; but then came the sharp, loud report of a musket—and the good missionary lay weltering in his blood, with a bullet through his vitals.

"I am hit!" he cried. "I cannot go on."

"Not even to the boat, father?"

"Alas, it is too late!" faltered the dying missionary, as everything reeled around him.

"To Thee, O God, I commend her!"

These were the last words of the devoted missionary. As he uttered them, he tumbled into the boat he had succeeded with his last desperate efforts in reaching, and in that same instant his senses left him forever.

"Off, demons!" cried Ellie, still wielding her sword with the strength of despair.

By the last desperate effort of her exhausted powers the brave girl succeeded in pushing off the boat and in breaking clear of the pursuers with it.

A FIENDISH REVENGE.

At the same hour when the preceding events were occurring, a large top-sail schooner was standing on and off the Eastern Passage of Tonga-taboo harbor, waiting to enter the port and come to anchor.

Upon the stern of this schooner, leaning against the bulwarks, stood a fresh-looking and rosy-faced youth of eighteen or nineteen years, who was looking dreamily through the night in the direction of the distant land. And near this youth stood the skipper of the schooner, whose gaze had long been fixed in the same direction.

"Did I understand you to say, Denny Breeze, that you expect to find old acquaintances upon this island?" asked the commander, breaking a long and attentive silence.

"Yes, Captain Morrison," replied Denny Breeze, drawing nearer to his commander, so as to speak with more of the freedom of confidence. "I refer to the Reverend Mr. Fortescue, and his daughter."

"They are old acquaintances, then?"

"Yes, sir. They used to live in the village where I was born and their house was always to me like a second home—the only home I have had, in fact, since the death of my mother."

"And the strange disappearance of your father, you should have added," said Capt. Morrison, gravely, as he patted the youth affectionately upon the shoulder. "It is the strangest thing in creation whatever became of your father, boy. And yet in another sense, there was nothing strange about it; it was simply another case of 'Lost at sea!' How many a life has ended to all earthly ken with that brief announcement. But what is it that is going on ashore to the west'ard of us?" he added, as a vast blaze illuminated the horizon in that quarter. "Looks like a house afire."

"Yes, sir; it does," assented Denny.

"And it is a house afire," affirmed Capt. Morrison, after a long look through his glass. "And it's curious that none of the savages who are running about make the least effort to put it out. And now that I look again, it seems to me that the burning house is exactly in the direction of the one Mr. Fortescue occupied."

Denny Breeze turned pale at this suggestion.

"Oh, I hope not, sir!" he exclaimed.

"It would be horrible if Ellie Fortescue should be in such trouble," said Denny, after a long look shoreward. "There seems to be a great deal of jumping and dancing in the neighborhood of that fire, and not a soul doing anything as I can see toward putting it out."

"Guess I'll go below now and get a bit of sleep, Mr. Buncle," said Capt. Morrison to his second-mate. "Call me if anything happens."

And with this the commander withdrew.

He had scarcely gone when Mr. Buncle, the second mate, approached one of the seamen under his charge, and said:

"Now is our chance, Bill. If you'll call Tom, and the rest for'ard, we'll soon arrive at some conclusion. My opinion is that we had better give the old tub the slip to-night."

"But the cap'n thinks as how the savages may be at this blessed minute a killing of the missionaries on the island," remonstrated Bill, energetically.

"I think we had better see Tom, and the rest, and make our escape immediately in the long-boat while the old man is snoozing."

"Good! Let's move at once."

Half hidden by sundry hamper at the foot of the main-shrouds, Denny Breeze had listened to every word of this conversation.

"A general desertion, eh?" said Denny to himself, as he saw the perfidious second-mate becoming the centre of a little knot of eager men forward. "This thing won't work, my fine fellows."

He lost no time in entering the cabin and proceeding directly to the commander's state-room. The old sea-dog was just in the act of "turning in."

"Why, what ails you, Denny?" he cried. "You are pale."

"Perhaps I have reason to be. Mr. Buncle and a good share of the men are hatching up a plot to leave the schooner in the long-boat and make the island!"

"What!—to-night?"

"Yes, sir—to-night. 'Now is our time,' they say, 'while the old man is sleeping!'"

The commander slipped noiselessly from the cabin, and soon his voice was heard upon the forecastle. The truth was, he had waited unseen and silent until the conspirators were about to resort to the measure of getting out the long-boat, and then he had fallen upon them with all the stern authority of his position and the still sterner authority of his character.

A few minutes only the din lasted, and then the commander slipped back to the cabin.

"I've fixed them," he muttered, as he rubbed his hands gleefully together. "I waited till they were getting out the boat, and then I went for them. You can imagine how Buncle is cut up. Mr. Skill is now in charge of things. Here, steward!"

The steward immediately responded to the call.

"Make me my usual favorite punch," added the commander, "and let us have it while it is hot."

The steward bowed understandingly, and set about obeying the order.

After remaining alone in the cabin an hour or two, musing intently upon all he had seen in the direction of the island, Denny Breeze again took his way to the deck, which seemed to him singularly dark and deserted.

The wind had freshened notably. A chopping sea had arisen, and the vessel was laboring more than she had done for several days preceding. The heavens were nearly obscured by a mist of impending rain.

"Is it you, Pete?" asked a voice, as Denny emerged from the cabin.

Pete was the colored steward.

"No, it's me—the passenger, Mr. Breeze," answered Denny.

"Oh, it's you, sh?" said the voice, which our hero now recognized as that of Mr. Buncle. "All right, sir. I thought it was Pete."

Advancing upon the deck, Denny Breeze continued to look around him, waiting for the schooner to tack forward again.

"A rough night, Mr. Breeze?" said the mate.

"Yes, sir, quite rough," he responded.

"Do you know where the cap'n is?" was the next question of Buncle.

"Abed and asleep, sir."

"Do you know how sleepy he is? But of course you don't, and so I will tell you: he is as sleepy as a good dose of medicine can make him."

"Do you mean to say he has been drugged?" asked Denny.

"That's just what I mean to say. A good dose of medicine was put in the punch Pete made just before the old man turned in."

It was easy enough for Denny to see, by this time, that something wrong was taking place—that at the very least the villainy he had interrupted was gathering head again.

"I know not why you tell me this," said Denny, "but I know that I'll soon see for myself if you are telling me the truth."

He turned toward the cabin.

"Softly! One moment!" said Buncle, advancing nearer. "I want to speak a word further with you, my young gentleman."

"Say on, then!"

"What I have to say is this," said Buncle. "Did you not tell Capt. Morrison that I, and Tom, and Bill, and some others of the crew, were about to run away in the long-boat?"

Denny was not pleased with the situation, especially as several of the intended runaways had gathered about him, but his was a soul inaccessible to fear, and he responded:

"Yes, I told Captain Morrison of your intended flight. What of it?"

"You shall soon see, my young bantam," said Buncle, with suppressed passion. "The long-boat is in the water, duly provisioned and stored, and we are ready to push off in her."

"But Mr. Skill?" cried Denny, looking around excitedly. "Where is Mr. Skill?"

He referred to the executive, in whose charge Capt. Morrison had left the vessel.

"Mr. Skill is bound hand and foot and gagged in the forecastle, as are several of the men who took part with him," declared Buncle, with brutal insolence.

Denny Breeze, at these words, bounded toward the cabin, shouting:

"More villainy, Captain Morrisen! Help! help!"

He had scarcely finished this cry, when he found himself intercepted by several pairs of hands and numerous fingers clutching his throat.

"Up with him, boys!" was the short but fateful command of Buncle.

It was in vain that Denny, realizing the horrible intention of his enemies, essayed to defend himself—all in vain! He was lifted clear of the deck in an instant, and hurled over the bulwarks into the raging waters!

AS LUCK WOULD HAVE IT.

For an instant, Denny Breeze believed that his last hour had come.

To escape, encumbered with all his clothes, in such a sea as was running, was impossible.

But how did Denny escape?

By the merest accident in the world.

It was evident he was lifted from the deck and was being hurled over the bulwarks, his body being caught in a portion of the hammock nettings. One leg became entangled in the netting in such a way as to hold him fast.

Dragging through the water, therefore, he was towed in the rear of the schooner, as his enemies supposed. To the contrary, he remained attached to the vessel by a rope more than an inch in diameter, and perceived that he was going gently through the water alongside, keeping pace with the schooner.

The long-boat was already in the water. The schooner had been left under such easy sail, with a view to this desertion, that her progress through the water was scarcely perceptible.

"Isn't there any spoil aboard?" asked Bill Marling, who had been chosen to stand next to Buncle in charge of the expedition.

"I know there is specie aboard," said Buncle, reflectively. "But where the specie is stored is beyond my knowledge."

"Pete ought to know all about that point," suggested Marling, "since he is always in the cabin."

"Yes, and I does, boss," said Pete, with a grin of pleased importance.

"Fetch it up, then, immediately," commanded Buncle.

In five minutes more the little band of deserters had stripped the schooner of its specie, plate, linen, and other valuables, with a number of nautical instruments, lanterns, etc., and had pushed clear of the vessel, standing toward the island.

Fortunately this departure took place upon the side of the schooner opposite to that from which our hero had been thrown overboard, and alongside of which he was being towed gently through the water.

"They've gone!" he heard a voice exclaim, a few moments later.

"Help, there!" he called.

"Where are you?" was the response of the voice which had before spoken.

"Here — alongside — on the starboard side!" exclaimed our hero.

"Who are you?"

"Mr. Breeze—the passenger."

Sundry ejaculations of wonder succeeded, blended with the hurried trampling of feet, and then the sheet which had rendered Denny such timely service was slowly drawn in until he found himself able to grasp the bulwarks.

"That'll do," he called. "I'm all right now. Where is Mr. Skill?"

"Coming to himself, sir, but not yet able to move," answered Ellis. "He was black in the face when we released him."

"How many of you are left?"

"Only four of us, excepting you and the cap'n."

"You had better take the light from your rigging," suggested Denny. "There is little danger of our falling foul of another ship in these waters, and it will be well to put it out of the power of Buncle and his gang to board us."

This suggestion was adopted. Let us hope that no chance will throw us into their power," said Denny, as carelessly as if no peril had ever assailed him. "For my part I don't care to be towed alongside by one leg again!"

"We'll stand in toward the harbor," said Capt. Morrison, who was now quite himself again, with the exception of a severe headache. "Doubtless our runaways have made the island in safety. They would not mind taking the risk of a landing in the darkness in such a boat as they had."

"I see nothing of any ship in port," remarked Capt. Morrison to our hero, as they paced the deck together.

"No sir. There certainly is none—at least within the range of our vision."

"We shall have to be very careful about our movements," said the commander.

The schooner had advanced several miles into the Passage, when Capt. Morrison became convinced that the dwelling which had been destroyed the previous evening, as related, was no other than that of the missionary.

"It may have been burned by accident, sir," suggested Denny, with keen glances through a glass at the distant ruins.

"It may, indeed," assented the commander, "but I fear to the contrary. I don't like the looks of things. The tawny rascals are not acting as usual. There is something wrong with them. I shall not venture a landing—unless a ship of war, or at least a stout trader, should arrive here within twenty-four hours. In fact, I'll go about immediately, and give them a wide berth until further light is thrown upon them."

He had just given the order to go about, when a cry of startled surprise arose from nearly every soul on the vessel.

"Look!" cried Denny, pointing toward one of the outlaying islands which define the northern limits of the Passage. Yonder is the long-boat."

This was indeed the case.

"She is pushing out to intercept us!" cried Capt. Morrison.

"And all the rascals are in her!" declared Mr. Skill. "This is awkward."

"The villains!" exclaimed Captain Morrison, sternly. "They have not found the natives quite so pleasant to deal with as they imagined, and now they wish to come back to the schooner."

"You will not let them aboard, sir?" demanded Mr. Skill.

"No, sir. After what they have done, they would not hesitate a moment to kill us all and to take possession of the schooner. That's probably the very course they intend to take. It only remains for us to fight them," muttered Capt. Morrison. "We may as well be getting our tools together."

The preparations for defence were scarcely completed when the long-boat was within hailing distance, continuing to advance rapidly.

"Sheer off there, you villains!" called Capt. Morrison, as he raised a musket menacingly, "You can't come back to the schooner."

"We must come back!" shouted Buncle, in return. "There's no living with the natives. They've risen upon the missionaries and strangers, killing every one of them. We have had a terrible battle with them—"

"Sheer off there, I say," interrupted Capt. Morrison, raising his musket. "You can't come aboard of the schooner."

"We can and we will!" cried Buncle with a dogged resolution that sufficiently evidenced the desperation of his circumstances. "If you are wise, Cap'n Morrison, you'll let us aboard and excuse what has happened. We are sorry for our conduct of last evening; it all came of our having had too much liquor. We wish to return to duty—"

"I can put no trust in you," interrupted Capt. Morrison. "Once for all, you shall not come near us."

"Destruction!" exclaimed Buncle, as he caught sight of Denny. "The youngster isn't dead, after all."

Then he called to Capt. Morrison.

"It is useless for you to warn us off, Cap'n. We are certainly coming aboard, even if we have to fight you."

And with this the long-boat resumed its swift advance upon the schooner.

"And let me say just one word more, Buncle. We are two to your one, and for every shot that is fired upon us we shall take a horrible revenge."

A VERY WEB OF PERIL.

It was in vain that her savage enemies called to Ellie Fortescue, in the frightful circumstances in which we left her:

"The water is full of sharks!"

She little heeded in that awful hour, this additional peril.

"Oh, father! speak to me!" she cried, sustaining the pallid face of the dead missionary above the water.

The dumbness succeeding this appeal was terribly significant, as was also the very inertness of the lifeless form.

"He is dead!" she gasped.

Hovering over the edge of the boat, and heedless alike of the cries of the savages or of the missiles they were still discharging at her, the poor girl placed her hand upon the heart of the missionary.

It had indeed ceased to beat.

"And I may as well die, too!" was the cry of anguish that welled to Ellie's lips, as she capsized the nearly filled boat, and let her father's body sink in the sea, to keep it from falling into the hands of the cannibals.

"What matter death to my life, even if I could make my escape from these murderous enemies? It matters little what becomes of me now," said Ellie to herself, as she swam shoreward. "They can do what they will."

The next instant she was seized by the hair of her head by the foremost of her pursuers, and dragged rudely but safely ashore and thrust into the bottom of a boat.

"The missionary?" cried this savage, looking eagerly around upon the surface of the water.

The girl pointed downward, with a manner sufficiently indicative of her belief that the body of her father was going down thousands of feet to the midst of coral caves beyond all decay, beyond all life, there to await the resurrection.

The savage uttered a shout of anger and regret, which attested that the timely fears of Ellie for the remains of her father had not been unfounded.

"Never mind—you will do as well," grunted the savage, significantly.

These were the last words the unfortunate wretch ever uttered, a blow at that instant from the club of a native, who had arrived in a second boat, having knocked him overboard and left him senseless, to meet a certain death by drowning.

"You are my prize, lovely flower of a hated race!" muttered the new-comer, as he transferred the girl to his own boat, leaving that of his murdered rival to drift away upon the water. "You know me, do you not? I am Tongaroro!"

Ellie recognized her captor now, and she was not displeased with the substitution of Tongaroro for the ruffian who had first seized her. For this Tongaroro was one of the leading chiefs of the islands, as is implied by his name, and one of the most intelligent, having been diligent for many years to learn all he could of Mr. Fortescue. He even spoke English quite fluently.

"I warned that dog against getting in my way," he muttered, "and let them all beware how they molest me!"

"Oh, you will not let them me?" cried Ellie, shuddering, her tender and delicate nature shrinking more from that profanation than from death itself.

"No, they shall not eat you," said the savage, stoutly; at least, not without my permission."

"Oh, say that they shall not eat me, in any case," pleaded Ellie.

"I do not care to say that," said the chief, slowly, shaking his head. "Somebody must be eaten in the great festival of to-morrow. Perhaps some white man will come this way—"

"But surely you can save me if you will."

"There is one way in which I can save you," said Tongararo, as he continued to row quietly shorewards, "and that is for you to become my wife."

"Your wife?" and the girl shuddered.

"But that, I see, is out of the question," said the chief grimly. "And so you will probably be eaten to-morrow."

As she reached the beach, she found herself confronted by the king of the natives, the father of Tongaroro.

"Take her away—and let her be well fed!" commanded the chief, addressing his son. "She must not be found amiss for the feast of to-morrow."

Tongaroro made a gesture to the girl, leading the way toward his house, and she lost no time in following him.

This house was an average specimen of the simple constructions of the island, being little more than a thatched roof supported upon posts. It stood in a retired spot, with great trees around it, and had about it an air of uncommon neatness—a fact owing to the refined manners the sister of the young chief had acquired from the missionaries, and especially from Ellie's mother.

"Here you are to stay to-night," said Tongaroro, as he ushered her into a small, close apartment at one end of the house. "If you make me any trouble, it will be the worse for you. I shall chain you fast—"

"Oh, I will not run away, I assure you Do not chain me! It does not matter what! becomes of me now—except that I cannot bear the thought of being made prisoner. Do not chain me!"

"I must," said Tongaroro, grimly. I shall be away a great deal to-night, and I am afraid that Lootoo may come and carry you off. A good chain will prevent all that, and chained you must be!"

He secured around one of the girl's ankles a stout chain, which had evidently once belonged to some vessel, and then the other end of the chain was fastened as securely to one of the stout posts supporting the roof of the dwelling.

"I will bring food and drink," he said, turning away, "and don't be foolish."

The food and drink supplied her, he took his departure, leaving her alone in the darkness.

She had not been in this place a great while, however, when the door of her prison was opened, and the grim figure of another native chief was presented indistinctly to her gaze.

"Are you Tongaroro?" she asked, in a flutter of apprehension.

"No, I am Lootoo! Hush! I have come to release you, and carry you off to the woods and the mountains!"

"Alas! you cannot release me—even if I wished you to," sighed Ellie. "I am chained!"

"Chained!"

The new-comer echoed the word in a tone of the gravest annoyance.

"Are you telling me the truth?" he demanded.

"You can feel, or look, for yourself."

Lootoo at first felt of the chain, and then produced a light by friction, and examined it. As he did so, his brow darkened fearfully. He scowled like a fiend.

"I cannot release you if I were to work all night," he muttered. "And all will be decided against me to-morrow. But there is one thing I can do: I hate Tongaroro, and here is a chance for me to cause him a great annoyance!"

"How?" faltered Ellie.

"I will kill you!" replied Lootoo. "Since I cannot set you free, I must kill you where you are!"

He drew forth a large knife for his purpose. The above we publish as a specimen chapter; but the continuation of this story will be found only in the New York Ledger. TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1880.

The Question Answered.

William has caught it—in the words of the street: "between the eyes." William was the king of the New York ring, and was styled, "boss." When the people arose in their might and demanded investigation into the financiering of the "boss," William quietly responded: "What are you going to do about it?" The election came and the "ring" went under. Tweed, the defiant, was still untamed, however, and was chosen a State senator by the democrats. He was indicted for robbing the city of New York of millions, and had the trial postponed. What cared he for trials, as Tammany judges were at his disposal? One after another of his comrades fell away from him. Garvey, Ingersoll and Connolly turned State's evidence against the great thief, to save themselves from imprisonment. Matters grew serious for William and he sought the counsel of Graham. At last the trial came and twelve honest men found him guilty on two hundred and four counts. Astounded, Tweed could but say: "What a pack of idiots that jury is; each one of them might have made $50,000 by voting for my acquittal." Then he set himself about settling his business affairs, and on Saturday came before Judge Davis for sentence, which was as follows:

On the 4th specification, to one year's imprisonment and $250 fine; on the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th one year and $250 fine; on the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th, one year and $250 fine; on the 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th, one year and $250 fine; on the 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th, one year and $250 fine; on the 21st, 22d, 23d and 24th, one year and $250 fine; on the 25th, 26th, 27th and 28th, one year and $250 fine; on the 29th, 30th, 31st and 32d, one year and $250 fine; on the 33d, 34th, 35th and 36th, one year and $250 fine; on the 213th, 214th, 215th and 216th, one year and $250 fine; on the 37th, 38th, 39th and 40th, one year and $250 fine; on the 69th, 70th, 71st and 72d, one year and $250 fine; on each four specifications from the 41st to the 60th, $250 fine; on each four specifications from the 73d, to the 128th, $250 fine; on each four specifications from the 129th to the 200th, $250 fine; on the 65th, 66th, 67th and 68th, $250 fine; on the 1st, 2d, and 3d, six cents fine.

The aggregate is twelve years' imprisonment and $12,750.06 fine. Each succeeding year is to begin where the preceding one ends, and Tweed is to stand committed until all the fines are paid. The county jail in Ludlow street was designated as the place of confinement.

And so William M. Tweed, the leader of democracy in New York city, the "boss" thief of the Tammany "ring," who stole freely of the people's money, hoping to secure immunity by using a portion of it to bribe judges and juries, finds at last, well answered, the query: "What are you going to do about it?"

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

In 1802, one of the years in which Hon. J. T. Gilman of Exeter was Governor, a State Attorney General was to be appointed. Daniel Webster and Jeremiah Mason were among the lawyers of Portsmouth, but then had not acquired the fame they had afterwards. Still they stood well. The Governor thought to make a selection from this town and proposed Mr. Webster. Of the five Councillors, but two voted for Mr. Webster, the other three against him. It is said these three gave it their opinion that Mr. Webster was "not competent." So it appeared to them, but afterward there was evidence to all, perhaps, to the contrary. Possibly politics might have had something to do with the decision, but probably not, as Mr. Mason was appointed, and his politics were the same as Mr. Webster's. The Councillors that year were Levi Bartlett, Kingston, Aaron Wingate, Farmington, Robert Wallace, Henniker, Samuel Stevens, Charlestown, and David Haugh, Lebanon.

The wreck of the steamer City of Washington, at Port Le Bear, broke up during one of the recent gales, and is now completely under water. Owing to the heavy winds during the past week the wreck of the Atlantic is fast breaking up. On Tuesday last nine bodies of the lost passengers on the Atlantic went ashore, and on Wednesday the bodies of three females and one of a headless boy went ashore.

Readables.

The favorable aspect of the Cuban question continues, and it is now thought at the State department that war cannot result unless through an excited state of public feeling. The most probable course of settlement is said to be the submission of the disputed points to diplomacy.

Admiral Polo, the Spanish Embassador to this country, has been instructed to state that the Spanish Cabinet have directed the embarrassed estates of Americans in Cuba to be released.

The President states that in his opinion in case of war, all our harbors would be safe from the encroachments of Spanish naval vessels, because even though our harbor defenses were not impregnable, he believes that our iron-clad vessels of war would afford ample protection to our cities.

Every road out of Boston, with the exception of the Eastern and the Lowell, now runs Sunday trains.

Messrs. James R. Osgood & Co., purposing to relinquish the business of magazine publishing, have sold their periodicals, the Atlantic Monthly and Every Saturday to Messrs. Hurd & Houghton of New York and H. O. Houghton of the Riverside Press, and Our Young Folks to Messrs. Scribner & Co. of New York.

Fire has destroyed the Central Pacific Railroad bridge in Oakland, California. The bridge was over three miles long and had been built but a short time. The accident, besides impeding travel for some time, will cause a loss of nearly a million dollars to the company.

Tweed is now sixty-six years of age. He will therefore be seventy-nine years old at the expiration of his punishment. Curiously enough the name "William M. Tweed" is already inscribed on a marble slab on the main gateway of the jail where it was placed, years ago, when the Board of Supervisors, of which he was then a member, erected the building. The "boss" will not be at the expense of a door-plate for his future residence.

Through an oversight in framing a law, Rosenkweig, the abortionist, who was sentenced to imprisonment for a term of seven years for having occasioned the death of Alice Bowlesby, has escaped. Judge Sutherland could not do otherwise than release him under a proper construction of the law. Rosenzweig was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment under an act of 1869. The offences covered by this act were made the subject of a new statute in 1872. Rosenzweig succeeded in obtaining a new trial after the passage of this act. His counsel thereupon urged that the new trial could not take place under the act of 1872, and also that it could not take place under the act of 1866, because that was repealed by the latter act. The court has decided that the point is well taken, and thus the infamous Rosenzweig goes scot free.

The Man of Enterprise creates; the weak imitator tries to copy him. Does any sensible man suppose that legions of "Humbugs" so-called, that infest the drug stores, possess the real merit of Dr. Helmbold's Genuine Extract? Any sufferer from Kidney Complaint, Dropsy, Diabetes, or other urinary diseases, in male or female, will detect the difference at once by the result. Helmbold's cures; the others fail. The genuine bears Dr. Helmbold's signature. For sale by all druggists.

Hack, Hack, Hack! Cough, Cough, Cough!

Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of bronchitis, from incipient Consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent attack, or a lingering cough, the Discovery is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it not by bearing it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the irritation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a Cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous diseases of the lungs is liable to result. 705

Worn to a Shadow.

Flesh, muscle and mind alike deteriorate when the stomach fails to do its part and the bowels do not perform their part as scavengers of the system regularly and naturally. In chronic dyspepsia the body is usually constipated, and the muscles drive loose and flabby, and the brain incapable of prolonged or vigorous exertion. Every organ, every member, even the immortal mind itself, is to a certain extent dependent upon the stomach for support. Strengthen and regulate this feeder of the system with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when it fails to perform its functions properly. A good appetite, an increased flow of the gastric juice, and perfect digestion and assimilation will speedily follow the result. The manner in which the great tonic and alterative effects a cure of dyspepsia is direct and simple. It stimulates the digestive organs, cleanses without convulsing the bowels, regulates the flow of bile and determines it into the right channels, and exercises a tranquilizing influence over the nerves.

Ordinance No. 41,

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n25-2m

SOMETHING NEW FROM GERMANY.

Local Matters.

Shovel Off.

City Marshal Johnson wishes it distinctly understood that he will strictly enforce the ordinance which is advertised elsewhere making it necessary for the occupants of all residences to have their sidewalks cleared of snow in six hours after its fall. This is as it should be. The ridges of ice on which the people have walked the past week, are evidences of perpetual danger to pedestrians. Let Portsmouth be a well shovelled city and there will be less broken limbs and fewer suits against the city.

If there is one thing more than another that we would call the attention of the city authorities to, it is the condition of the streets after a storm. Our citizens have been grumbling about the scarcity of water in case of fire. After a storm, the streets should be broken out as quickly as possible; or there may be reason to grumble that engines cannot be run readily to a fire. The delay of an hour in clearing the streets may lead to disastrous consequences. Portsmouth has been very fortunate of late years in having few fires, but such good fortune is not likely to last forever. The fact that there have been but two fire alarms since March, is not a guarantee for the future. Extra vigilance should be observed to avoid the fate of other cities where the fire-fiend seems to have held almost undisputed sway.

Clear The Streets.

Snow, rain, hail and more snow made Monday a seriously disagreeable day. The Associated Press correspondent states that there was more snow on the ground Sunday, than there has been at a corresponding time for forty years. Sleighing for Thanksgiving Day is one of the probabilities.

Change in the Mississippi Valley.
[Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

Twenty-three years ago last June (1850), when first in Dubuque, on a beautiful afternoon I climbed the bluff, some 250 feet high, immediately west of the town; and last Thursday I did the same. The city has spread out greatly, and has a solid appearance; but the Mississippi rolls by with the same quiet grandeur it did then; and Sinsinniwa Mound and the other Wisconsin hills to the east, those of Iowa to the west, and of Illinois to the southeast, still charm the eye and delight the fancy. On that quiet afternoon, in 1850, I first fully realized how vast and how wonderful was the Mississippi Valley. Nearly 2,000 miles to the northwest, the Missouri gathers its springs from the summits of the Rocky Mountains; far away to the north, nearly 1,000 miles, Itasca first pours out its waters into the Mississippi; as far to the eastward, the springs of the Ohio sparkle among the mountains of Virginia and New York; while to the south, 1,500 miles from this crag on which our feet rest, the Mississippi pours its mighty floods, gathered from all this vast valley, into the Gulf of Mexico, amid the rice fields and orange groves of Louisiana.

All this is true now as it was then; but how astonishing is the change that has come over the Mississippi Valley; then there was but one railway leading west of Chicago—the Galena (now Northwestern), 40 miles to Fox River. The rest of the was to Dubuque had to be made in a stage-coach. Our party in 1850 took the steamer for St. Paul. There was not a town above Dubuque half as large as Bremen, on the Rock Island road, except St. Paul, and that was scarcely larger. At La Crosse,—there being only a very few shanties there,—we took on a band of Winnebago Indians, on their way to their reservation on the Crow Wing River, and brought down on our return a band of Sioux, then living at Red Wing, at the head of Lake Pepin. No houses there; ditto at Lake City, Winona, La Crescent, McGregor, and perhaps scores of other places. Prairie du Chien—about as old as Philadelphia—was then the largest town above Dubuque. Time would almost fail me to tell how many railways we now have running westward from Chicago, and how far they penetrate into the country that is tributary to our city.

Sharkey Non Est.

Sharkey is still at large. This is not for want of clews, however. Capt. Irving and his force have struck any number of warm trails, and Pinkerton's detectives are following up at least as many more. Maggie Jourdan, Sarah Allen and Keeper Lawrence Philips were taken before Justice Dixby in his private room. William H. Howe was counsel for all three. Maggie Jourdan was dressed in black as usual. She wore a smiling face and was evidently elated at the success of her scheme. She told Mr. Howe that she would be willing to go to prison for five years, so long as she knew that Sharkey was safe. She was born in New York and was twenty-one years old. She pleaded not guilty, waived an examination in a careless tone, and was committed in default of $10,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury. Mrs. "Wea" Allen is a woman of medium height, and was dressed neatly and in sober colors. Her hair is brown, but her eyes appear to be of a very light blue. Her face, though not as interesting as Maggie Jourdan's might by many be accounted more beautiful. It was flushed during the examination and her eyes were wet with tears. She answered questions in a low voice, and when asked to sign her name to her plea, declared that she was too nervous to write. She was therefore told to make her mark, which she did. It is a cross consisting of two scraggy, uncertain lines. She broke into tears several times, saying she felt "so bad." "Just think of it," she said, "the idea that he (her husband) should be in one prison and I in another. When he hears of this it will almost make him cry, too." She gave her age as twenty-five years, and said she lived at 66 Sixth avenue.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, but late of this city, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at the MONTGOMERY MUSIC STORE, New York street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious application of material and labor. I have the agencies of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in payment for new.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to refuse public tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester, N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardiest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel as if I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.
MARY M. ABBOTT,

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Captain Fry as an Artillery Officer.
[Little Rock Gazette.]

Captain Joseph Fry during the war belonged to the Confederate Mississippi squadron and was commander of the battery at St. Charles, on White River, Ark., which fired the fatal shot into the gunboat Mound City, cutting her steam drum, whereby Engineer William Cox, of Cincinnati, and over 100 others lost their lives. Captain Fry was a graduate of the Annapolis Naval School, which he entered in 1844, and served in the United States navy until the commencement of hostilities in 1861. He was a native of Florida. He leaves a wife and seven children, the oldest boy a cripple, the youngest aged four years, residing in New Orleans.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Yellowdock and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With the departure, health returns.

WILLIAM A. WRIGHT,
Agent for Portsmouth and vicinity.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest awards awarded Machines at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (218,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 40,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and more than the Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for general utility and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the award of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPERSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood, as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Want of Appetite, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claim of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. "Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a decisive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the whole nation, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has noted the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justible complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary and ephemeral interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to the friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEREFORE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE,

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is admitted that the wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding, a more refined and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 16 x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no premiums or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers directly, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the Grower of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Implements and those who purchase and employ them—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospect and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: One Copy, one year, $2.50; Club of TEN, $19, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $36, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION
CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the principal name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book-illustration; everyone who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The volume, issued in parts, or separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and salesmen, because it is absolutely NEW, and "has money in it." The greatest work and good pay. Send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. B. FORD & CO., N. Y., Boston, Chicago, San Francisco or Cincinnati. td12

SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.
The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvelous cures, that have won for it a confidence in the virtues never equaled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN.

B. P. Shillaber explains, in the following extract from his poem of Dr. Spooner in search of the "Desirable," his reasons for not wishing to serve longer on the Chelsea School Committee:

"To education then the Doctor flew—
The very field for happiness he thought;
The total that he guessed and what he knew
Were into active requisition brought;
He went to all conventions with a gout
That was a substitute for what he sought,
And, being quite a favorite in the city,
They made him member of the School Committee.

Then pleasure turned to business—early, late,
His door-bell rang with clamorous appeal,
Permits to grant, parental doubts to state,
Teachers to hear, vexatious feuds to heal,
New books to choose, the salaries to rate,
The pages of interrupted peace to feel,
The public growling in its discontent,
And watching lynx-eyed each invested cent.

With not a chance to steal, and snubbed and bored,
His privacy invaded as a right;
His motives doubted and his claim ignored,
His life a constant, aggravating fight:
The slave of school-book agencies, that poured
The vast arguments so thick that, vanquished quite,
He vowed no more his soul with such to vex,
And handed in his thin official checks."

The American Gentleman of Leisure.

[Dr. J. G. Holland, Scribner's for December.]

Did the reader ever see a lost dog in a great city? Not a dog recently lost, full of wild anxiety and restless pain and bewildernment, but one who had given up the search for a master in despair, and had become consciously a vagabond? If so, he has seen an animal that has lost his self-respect, traveling in the gutters, slinking along by fences, making acquaintance with dirty boys, becoming a thorough coward, and losing every admirable characteristic of a dog. A cat is a cat even in vagabondage; but a dog that does not belong to somebody is as hopeless a specimen of demoralization as can be found in the superior race among which he has sought in vain for his master. We know him at first sight, and he knows that we know him. The loss of his place in the world, and the loss of his objects of loyalty, personal and official, have taken the significance out of his life and the spirit out of him. He has become a dog of leisure.

We do not know how it may be in transatlantic countries. It is quite possible that in Constantinople, where dogs are plenty and masters comparatively scarce, the canine vagabonds keep each other in countenance. There is a sort of self-respect among human thieves, if only enough of them get together. Where beggars are plenty, there are sometimes generated a sort of professional ambition and a semblance, at least, of professional pride and honor. Liquor-dealers form a society, publish a newspaper, call themselves "Wine Merchants," and make themselves believe that they are respectable. Stock-gamblers in Wall street, by sheer force of numbers in combination, make a business semi-respectable which never added a dollar of wealth to the country and never will, and which constantly places the business interests of the country in jeopardy. So it is possible that in Constantinople lost dogs maintain their self-respect, by community of feeling and a consciousness that they are neither exceptional nor eccentric. A dog's sense of vagabondage would seem, therefore, to depend much upon his atmosphere and circumstances. In New York he loses himself with his home; in Constantinople he joins a community.

The American man of leisure is a sort of lost dog. The people are so busy, they have so long associated personal importance with action and usefulness, that it is all a man's life is worth to drop out of active employment. If a Vanderbilt should quietly release his hold of the vast railroad interests now in his hands, and should never more show his face in Wall street, he would practically shrink to a non-entity. If a Stewart should retire to enjoy his piled-up millions in the quiet repose of his palace, he would cease to be an object of interest to anybody. It is undeniably true that there is nobody in America who has so hard a time as the man of leisure. The man who has nothing to do, and nobody to help him do nothing, may properly be counted among the unfortunate classes, without regard to the amount of wealth he possesses. This is doubtless, the reason why so many who retire from a life of profitable labor come back, after a few months or years, to their old haunts and old pursuits. They see that the moment they count themselves out of active life, they are counted by their old acquaintances out of the world. They become mere loafers and hangers-on; and a certain sense of vagabondage depresses them. The climate is stimulating, time hangs heavy on their hands, business is exciting, business associations are congenial and attractive; and so they go back to their industries, never to leave them again till sickness or death or old age removes them from the theater of their efforts.

In Europe we know that the case is widely different. The number of men who live upon their estates,—estates either won by trade or inherited from rich ancestors,—is very large, while those who have small, fixed incomes, which they never undertake to increase is larger still. The Englishman of leisure who cannot live at home on his income goes to the Continent, and seeks a place where his limited number of pounds per annum will give him genteel lodgings, with a life of idle leisure. In such a place he finds others in plenty who are as idle as he, and who have come there for the same reason that brings him. He finds it quite respectable to do nothing, and knows that his command of the means that give him leisure is the subject of envy on the part of the inhabitants. He eats, sleeps, reads, visits, writes letters, kills time without any loss of self-respect, and without feeling the slightest attraction for busier life. Indeed, the tradesmen who are active around him are looked down upon as social inferiors, on account of the fact that they are under the necessity of work. Work is not a gentleman thing to do, unless it be done as a profession or in an office. Shop-keeping and labor of the hands are accounted vulgar.

It seems impossible to conclude that the man of leisure can ever hold a desirable position where labor holds its legitimate position. We wish the American could have more leisure than he has. It would, in many respects, be well for society that men who have property enough, and ten times more than enough, should retire from active life to make place for others rather than go on accumulating gigantic fortunes, which become curses to their owners and the community. After all it idleness can only be made respectable and desirable by making labor vulgar, we trust that the American gentleman of leisure will be as rare in the future as he has been in the past.

We are glad on the whole, that every American deems it essential to belong to somebody, to belong to something, to sustain some active relation to some industry, or enterprise, or charity, to be counted in at some point among the useful forces of society. He is the better and the happier for it, and he helps to sustain the honor and self-respect of all those with whom labor is a constant necessity.

The Cuban war sensation has collapsed, and doubtless the question will be allowed to rest with the State department for peaceful settlement. The Spanish cabinet has not yet indicated exactly what course it will pursue, though it gives strong assurances of a desire to do exact justice to the case. The chief obstacles in the way of an immediate arrangement of the controversy are those which arise from the opposition to the Castelar government at home and the difficulties it may encounter in securing obedience to its decrees in Cuba.

The Secretary of the Navy has ordered the work on iron-clads to be suspended, and a detail from all large vessels recently ordered into commission, of all officers to await orders. There is no possibility, it is said, of settling the diplomatic controversy between Spain and the United States for many months to come, which accounts for the orders for retrenchment.

A Madrid despatch says it is expected the Castelar government will be overthrown, and Serrano act as Regent for the young Duke Alfonso, who, at a certain time, is to be proclaimed king, his queen mother "Isabella" abdicating her claims to the throne in his favor.

Robert Crozier is appointed by the governor of Kansas as United States Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr Caldwell.

The Pacific mail steamship Ariel was lost on the 24th of October, but the passengers and crew were saved. The barque Clyde is reported lost off Valencia, Ireland, with nine of her crew.

At White Plains, N. Y., last week, a frog was caught that weighed fifteen pounds and a half. Its hind legs were sold to Delmonico of New York for $9.50. Rather have the first shad of the season at $65—which a Florida hotel keeper paid the other day.

The "spirit pen of Charles Dickens," through the mediumship of Thomas Powers James, the Brattleborough medium, is at work on a Christmas story, the title of which is "The Brown Little Man's Story of the Spectre of Happy Days."

It looks as if Tweed would have company in prison. The indictment against him is, it seems, a joint-indictment of Connolly and Hall, both of whom are now liable to arrest and trial. Separate indictments have been found against lesser lights of the late ring, namely, George S. Miller, the two Smiths, Cornelius Corson, Charles E. Wilbur.

John Morrissey is now the unchallenged leader of the New York Democracy, and is likely to remain so until "Boss" Tweed has served out his term in Sing Sing.

The lumber mills of Lewiston, Me., have shut down for the season the main part of their machinery. The season's business has been fair but not equal to that of 1872. The Lewiston Journal says that the troubles between the Eastern and Boston and Maine railroads have interfered with the lumber trade west. Then there has been some decline in the common grades of spruce on the Penobscot, which has cut off the margin. The season closes in a hurry this fall,—several weeks earlier than last.

Washington Correspondence.

THE CUBAN TROUBLES—OUR INTERESTS NOT IDENTICAL WITH CUBA—FILLIBUSTER BONDS—GATHERING CONGRESSMEN—REPEAL OF THE SALARY GRAB.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 22d.

The excitement over Cuban matters is quite as great on paper as anywhere else. The butcheries which have been practiced by the Spanish authorities find universal condemnation, and the best possible reason why Cuba is unfit for self-government and against annexation. There is no doubt entertained in reasonable minds that the Spanish government will disavow the atrocities and promise a correction. The doubt is as to whether she can perform what may be promised in Cuba, and in case of inability what are we to do? It will be a sad spectacle to see the oldest Republic in the position of destroying the youngest when struggling to maintain itself against adverse fate, and on account of a vessel and crew which for years has been a sort of Alabama under our flag, striving to destroy Spanish authority in Cuba. When all technicalities are stripped off, it is a case where an offender, instead of a regular trial, is taken outside of jurisdiction and dealt with by Judge Lynch. It's an irregular way, and the lynchers are to be dealt with by the authorities. We are some time to have all the territory from the Isthmus to the North Pole, but I confess my appetite for absorption palls at the contemplation of taking in a population capable of exulting over such atrocities, much more at the idea of going to war to get the control and management of them. They have no republican ideas or affinities, language or religion. It would require an army and navy to govern them, and an administration with centralized power, and heavy taxes, which our democratic fellow-citizens at least dread and condemn. In fact, war is Cæsarism. The independence of Cuba would be much better for Spain than as now, with a terrible drain upon Spanish resources. It would be better for us than annexation. In the tutelage of self-government, they would be fitted for annexation. The chances are now that we shall get in some kind of a fuss, at the end of which we shall get Cuba in the way of a settlement, by paying a big sum to Spain and assuming the fillibuster bonds, which have been put out in endless profusion for several years by the insurgents, and are now selling, it is stated, at twenty-five cents on the dollar. A good deal of this blustering patriotism is based on these fillibuster bonds and a hope of retrieving lost political prestige, and still beyond, shoddy contracts and sutlerships are looming up. War is an expensive luxury, at least to the taxpayers. Let us hasten slowly in that direction. At the same time let us give the moral help of the government to every people who are striving for free and self government.

Members are gathering and candidates for offices around the Capital multiplying. One or two more have started in for Ordway's place, but none strong enough yet to damage him much, though each one has his local support. The Salary Grab bill, will have a hard chance to strive against repeal in the House. EXE.

A Black-and-Tan Dog Tackles a Turtle.

[Peoria Review.]

It anybody has seen a black-and-tan dog answering to the name of "Judge," going down street in company with a hard-shell turtle, that won't answer to anything, and certainly won't answer to tackle, as the dog can tell you if you can get him to stop long enough, please halt the eloping pair as they are the property of the editor of this paper. We are fondly attached to the dog on account of his vagabondish, Bohemianish habits. He knows every dog in Peoria by name and is on speaking terms with nine-tenths of the granger dogs that come in under the wagons, and he knows more of the inhabitants of this city than the tax collector does. The turtle is a more recent acquisition. It was placed in the backyard yesterday, and the dog spent an hour and a half trying to entice it to come out of its shell and be sociable. The old iron-clad maintained his reserve, however, until the dog crammed his nose against the forward part and began to sniff. The pair seemed to come to some sort of understanding at once, for the dog made an impetuous remark on a very high key, and they both started on a trip after Donaldson's balloon. When the dog jumped over Fisher's barn we thought he had struck the eastern current and would get right through, but we learn that he landed and was seen sauntering along like a whirlwind, the turtle staying right by him. We should be very sorry to lose the dog now, as he has acquired another important and valuable quality. He knows more about turtles than any other dog in the country, and it's mighty hard to find a real good turtle dog.

A Remarkable Surgical Case.

[Boston Advertiser.]

A youth named John Smith, about 16 years of age, whose parents reside in Canton, lost his sense of hearing about two years ago, and finally lost his reason, and was placed in the Institution for Idiotic and Feeble-minded Youth, at South Boston. A few weeks since it was learned that when about seven years of age he had put some pebble-stones in his ears whilst at play, and that these had never been withdrawn, and, acting upon this clew a woman doctor began experiments. A syringe was at first applied, and then a probe. At last the probe produced a grating sound, and further efforts revealed, as had been anticipated, a number of small pebbles lying deep in the ear, beneath the skin. One of them, about the size of a pin's head, was first got out, then another, and another, until by successive repetitions of the experiment no less than twenty-nine small pebbles were removed from the sufferer's head. All this was done without starting a drop of blood or causing any distress to the patient. It is believed now that he will regain his reason.

The Tichborne Case.

[Liverpool Mercury.]

Now that the whole time and attention of three judges and a much suffering jury have been applied for upwards of six months to the trial of one case, it becomes a matter of public importance to consider whether, if any more such cases arise in future, they can be disposed of without producing an absolute stoppage in the judicial business of the country. The Lord Chief Justice and his two colleagues have been rendered totally unavailable for all other judicial purposes for more than six months by the occurrence of this trial. We trust that when this case is ended, and everything connected with it is finally disposed of, the Lord Chief Justice and the two eminent Judges associated with him will [illegible] with any suggestions that may have arisen in their minds as to the best method of trying similar cases in future.

One principal cause of the immense duration of the two trials respecting the ownership of the Tichborne estates, and the identity of the claimant, is that the funds available on both sides and in both trials were almost inexhaustible. In the first trial the whole of the Tichborne estates, increased of late in value by the discovery of a minority, were available for the purpose of resisting the claim of the alleged Sir Roger; while the claimant was amply supplied with funds by the zeal of his friends, shown in the substantial form of a sort of a joint stock or limited liability company, issuing "Tichborne bonds," and succeeding in floating a large amount, very those bonds either among personal friends and admirers of the claimant, or in the general money market.

This is the first time within our recollection that large sums of money have been thus obtained for the purposes of litigation but we very much doubt whether it will be the last, for it seems to be quite legal, and it opens to any litigant who obtains the confidence of the public almost boundless means of promoting his case in courts of law. We know from the evidence that the claimant had absolutely no money when he came to England and that lady Tichborne had nothing more than a small jointure. If we may venture to use such an expression, the first trial was carried on by faith and not by sight—the faith, however, being confirmed by works, in the form of liberal investments in the Tichborne bonds. In the second trial—that not yet ended—both parties have had the advantage of a free access to the public purse.

The Crown, as the prosecutor, of course pays all the costs of witnesses and all other expenses on the side of the prosecution; and, in order to give the defendant fair play, it also pays the cost of all witnesses for the defense who have anything to say in his favor. The public purse being thus opened at both ends, money flows very freely; and, although the defendant may have rather over-stated the case when he said that the prosecution would cost £270,000, it will, no doubt, cost more than was ever expended on a similar trial before. It is very fortunate that the chancellor of the exchequer has a handsome surplus in hand, for, what with the Ashantee war and the Tichborne trial, he will need all his resources.

Leaving the possible methods of shortening similar proceedings, if such should ever again arise, to the consideration of the judge and of Parliament, we may venture to hope that the validity of such a trial as that which has been in progress for more than six months, and which is likely to last two months longer, will not in future be allowed to depend on the health, or even on the life, of a single juryman, or even of a single judge. In an ordinary case, lasting only for one or two days, or at the utmost for a week, the chances of health, and of the duration of life during the period of trial, are scarcely worth mentioning; but when in a case which has lasted, or is likely to last, eight or nine months from the commencement to the close, the health and even the life of twelve jurymen and three judges become a very serious consideration, and the law ought at least to be so amended as to render the illness or death of one or two of them immaterial to the validity of the proceedings.

The Cilley-Graves Duel.

Ex-Gov. Wise of Virginia, one of the seconds of Graves in the famous duel, gives the following account of it: Mr. Graves won the position, Mr. Cilley the word. I selected the west because the wind was setting from the northwest, and I knew that Mr. Cilley was a crack shot, but thought that he would not make allowance for the resistance of the wind against his ball, which I supposed would be about six inches for that distance. That saved Graves' life. Mr. Cilley stood east, Graves west, and they fired at 1 o'clock, P. M., nearly across the rays of the sun—Mr. Graves' face in the light, Mr. Cilley's in the shade; the latter having the advantage in that. He had another advantage—Graves was so coarse in his finger that I ordered him to keep it out of the spanner until he caught sight; to receive his adversary's fire and not to fire himself before the word "three." At the first Graves obeyed orders coolly, but Mr. Cilley did not get his ball forty yards from his toes—he was hasty and lost his fire. This evidently disturbed him; not his nerves, but his temper. Graves was very slow the first time, and Mr. Cilley's loss of fire evidently made him desirous of another exchange of shots. Unknown to me, forty yards off, when Mr. Menifee put the rifle in Mr. Graves' hands the second time, he upbraided him for being too slow, and made him put his finger in the spanner against my orders. At the word my eyes were of course on Mr. Cilley. The second time he was calm and collected. At the word "fire" off went Graves' rifle not ten steps from his toes. Cilley raised deliberately and shot at dead aim at about two and a half count. I turned to Graves, who dropped the breech of his rifle as I ran up to him. He had been tugging at his trigger, and I thought he was hit, and after he blew in the muzzle, exclaimed: "Why, the gun is off!" He did not know that he had fired. This mortified him, and he upbraided Menifee for causing him to disobey my orders. His turn then came for demanding another fire. For the same cause which made Mr. Cilley desire a second, he demanded, and would have, a third. Had his coat been unbuttoned Mr. Cilley second ball would have gone through his lappel—it struck the fence behind him; so that I could judge. These were the causes, above any others, why there were three fires—causes hard for seconds to explain to the world—and General Jones and I chose rather to bear the blame than mortify our principals. As to propositions for settlement, they were never made, except to inquire what now can be said or done. Mr. Cilley yielded nothing, and there was still the cause of [illegible] unadjusted—a point of punctilio which never can be. Cilley was obliged to demand a second, Graves a third fire. By this time both men were collected, and never was a fairer or more equal exchange of shots. Mr. Cilley fired a little first, and in the quarter of a second received his mortal wound in front of the left hip, the ball passing through him. He fell full flat of his hand, he beckoned to his second, and died in a few minutes without a struggle or apparently a pang.

WILLIAM P. WHITE.

The Iowa Famine.

A correspondent writes as follows from Jefferson, Iowa, under date of November 17, to the Des Moines Register:

I have just had a long interview with a former soldier comrade, now a "homesteader in Osceola County, and from him learn something concerning the present and future wants of the hundreds of good people making themselves homes in that and other countries. It will be remembered that in 1872 good crops were raised in that section, and that all had plenty and to spare. In the spring of 1873 every preparation was made for a great crop of small grain, and it prospered exceedingly until about the 1st of June, when the grasshoppers came, and the fields of waving grain were made desolate—entirely ruining the crop. A great many homesteaders at once left, realizing the coming of the present condition of matters. But hundreds of families had not the means at command to pay their expenses of travel, and hence were compelled to stay. A little corn was saved in some sections, but of very inferior quality. Plenty of hay was made, of the best grade, so the stock will at least have that much for support. But as to the people? my informant makes this statement:

"Nearly every man is poor—very poor, and a great majority are ex-soldiers of the Union, with young families to support. When the grasshoppers took the crops, we did the best we could for the coming winter. We went to the lakes and caught barrels of fish, but we did not have the means to properly care for them; so they spoiled. Stock was sacrificed to the sharks that infest our section, at the next to nothing of a price, and many of us have thus eaten up and worn out the horses and work-cattle that had been our main stay. We could buy no fuel, and when I left, twisted hay and rank reed-grass was the only fuel nine-tenths of the people were using. Much sickness prevails, brought on by a long abstinence from wholesome and nutritious food. One family I know of has the father down with the rheumatism; three out of six children were down with the measles, while the mother was worn down herself. Corn-meal, grated from frost-bitten nubbins, was the only food in the house, if the sod and board shanty may be called such. The people bear with each other, and mutually extend aid as much possible. One young man from Jasper County, who happens to be a good shot, has valiantly taken upon himself the task of keeping all invalid families supplied with meat and wild game, and the day I left brought some geese and ducks to the family I have mentioned. But that will soon end with the cold weather. You want to know what they need. They need everything—fuel, clothing, and provisions. The women and children are suffering greatly from the want of clothing. I know of several women who died soon after giving birth to children, because they could not have even the common luxury of a cup of tea, or anything nutritious to aid them in regaining strength, coupled with the want of proper bed-covering.

The most of the counties can extend no aid, for the reason that thieves have been running affairs, and have stolen all, just as they did some years ago in Clay County. Many families will leave on foot, having sold their cattle or horses to keep them alive. Some general way of relieving those who must remain must be put in operation right away, else the first snap of real cold weather will send many a man, or woman, or child, to death—frozen—because they will be so weak and emaciated they cannot stand the rigors of winter, even in its weakest appearance."

Ryan.

Almost everybody will recollect "Whack" Ryan, for he figured rather conspicuously in several enterprises, one of which was the organization of a quartz mining bureau, which, like all of his schemes, was successful. Colonel W. S. Scribner was at one time associated with him in some mining operation, which also failed. Ryan was unreliable, and people had no confidence in him. Soon after his arrival in Montana, in 1866, he accepted a position as travelling agent for the Herald, but held it only a few months. The proprietors found it decidedly more economical to dispense with his services altogether, for he run things on the high pressure system, and his extravagance had no bounds. A man of his prodigal habits would bring ruin to any business in a very brief time. "Whack" left the Territory in 1869 and went to New York, where he met the Cuban General Cespedes, then organizing an expedition to aid the patriots struggling for freedom. Ryan espoused the cause, was made Colonel and afterwards "General" in the Cuban army. He never did much fighting, however, for he could always be found at headquarters in New York where he could have a gay and festive time without the hardships and discomforts of active service at the front. He has never been engaged in any legitimate business since he left the mountains, but he always managed by hook or crook to wear good clothes and keep his wallet well filled with greenbacks. His whole life, in fact, has been spent without a purpose and without an aim. His career has been an eventful one, and if he had been gifted with brains equal to his courage it might have been a successful and brilliant one. He was a brave but reckless man, and like most men of his character he met a violent death—died with his boots on. Ryan was about thirty years of age and was unmarried.

Political Blacksmithing.

[Rochester Courier.]

From the Dover papers we learn that the Dover Prohibition Club is making active preparation for the campaign, both State and municipal. They have been alternately blowing hot and then cold, but next spring is their season for blowing hot, and they promise some hot work. They are good talkers, and some of their leaders would work first-rate in a blacksmith shop—to take the place of the bellows.

—A reader very humbly and indignantly asserts that no woman, however nervous she may be, has a right to wake her husband from a sound sleep only to tell him on his enquiring what is the matter: "Nothing, only I wanted to know if you were awake."

—The Cincinnati Times says: Sensation travels over the nerves at the rate of about sixteen feet the second; consequently, if the end of the average Louisvillian foot were to touch the sun, it would be 1,046 years before the owner would know it.

—The New York Commercial perpetrates the follow: "Mr. Robeson's orders to the commandants of the navy yards: Get all available vessels ready for sea, and C U B A little quick about it."

—A private in the army recently sent a letter to his sweetheart, closing with: "May Heaven cherish and keep you from yours truly, John Smith."

Business Notices.

Vegetine has never failed to effect a cure of al mercurial diseases.

The Man of Enterprise creates; the weak imitator tries to copy him. Does any sensible man suppose that legions of "Buchus" so-called, that infest the drug stores, possess the real merit of Dr. Helmbold's Genuine Extract? Any sufferer from Kidney Complaint, Dropsy, Diabetes, or other urinary diseases, in male or female, will detect the difference at once by the result. Helmbold's cures: the others fail. The genuine bears Dr. Helmbold's signature. For sale by all druggists.

Pernicious Purgatives.

The brilliant idea of half a century ago that the weak and ailing could be bled, blistered and salivated into a condition of health and vigor is happily exploded; but violent and prolonged purgation is still, to some extent, in vogue. We have impostors who are daring enough to offer to the world, as tonics and restoratives, the most destructive cathartics, unmodified by a single stimulating, soothing or restorative element. Compare the operation of one of these terrible nostrums with that of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are combined the three great curative elements—a tonic, an alterative, and an aperient. The former completely paralyzes the vital forces, so that nature can make no resistance to disease; the latter sustains the strength of the patient, while it restores the suspended functions of the secretory organs and relieves the bowels without violence or pain. It is simply a choice between restoration and prostration.

Hack, Hack, Hack! Cough, Cough, Cough!

Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of Bronchitis, from incipient Consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent or old, acute, or a lingering cough, the Discovery is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it, not by drying it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the irritation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a Cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous disease of the lungs is liable to result. 765

Ordinance No. 41,

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 31, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Newspaper Change.

The Times of Tuesday announces a dissolution of the partnership of Thayer & Guppy, who have published that paper and the States and Union for the past three years. Mr. George W. Guppy remains and Mr. William M. Thayer retires. The former has been at the head of the mechanical department of the paper since it was started and has made each issue a model of neatness and good workmanship. The latter has worked assiduously in editing the paper, has attended to collections and performed such labor as no man in the position of editor should be obliged to do. It is no small task to try to establish a newspaper, even in the smallest cities, and but few of the many prove profitable investments without the strictest economy. Personally, we could wish Messrs. Thayer & Guppy better success, and while we welcome the latter to the field editorial, which can prove no bed of roses, we heartily wish the former, with whom the interchange of personal "compliments" has been more of a necessity than a pleasure, more satisfaction in the literary world than he or any one else can obtain from defending democracy in a political paper. We learn that Mr. Thayer is likely to accept one of several advantageous offers in the editorial line, and hope his future experience may be less rugged than the past and the results be crowned with that kind of pleasure which comes of possessing a "pocket full of rocks."

York.

On Thursday evening of last week, the Methodist Society celebrated the 30th wedding anniversary of their pastor, Rev. R. H. Kimball, in a very agreeable manner. The occasion was interspersed with congratulations, speeches, singing, and the partaking of a bountiful repast which was furnished by the ladies of the society. Some valuable and useful presents were made and all contributed toward an evening entertainment, the reminiscences of which will be pleasant both to people and pastor.

Rev. David Small, formerly of Fryeburg, Me., commences his duties as pastor of the First Congregational Church on the first of December.

A course of lectures is being given in the Methodist Church this season. The first lecture was delivered by Rev. A. S. Ladd of Biddeford; subject—"True Manliness." The second will be by Rev. Owen Cousins of Portland; subject—"Tour Through Europe."

The Benefit Concert

For Master Willie E. Nowell will be given next Tuesday evening at the Middle street church. Master Nowell has progressed wonderfully under the teachings of Mr. Eichberg, and our citizens will be glad of the opportunity given to listen to the young artist's music. Mr. Dudley Buck, the famous organist, and the no less famed Temple Quartet are to assist at the concert, Prof. E. S. Metcalf, of the conservatory of music, presiding at the piano. We learn that young Nowell is to finish his education in Europe, and hope his efforts to rise in the profession he has chosen will be seconded by the appearance of an audience at the concert limited only by the capacity of the church. Buy your tickets now.

Laconics.

But 200 reserved seats are for sale for the benefit concert of Master Willie Nowell, and these may be had at Preston's.

"Aviude" is the name given to a new game of cards, arranged for the amusement of children, and at the same time in the hope of giving them lessons in natural history. There are engravings of birds on one-half the cards, while upon the others are descriptions of them. The game is recommended by the Christian Union, Harper's Weekly, etc. Published by West & Lee, Worcester, Mass. It can be ordered through any bookseller.

On Saturday afternoon, officer Shannon saw a man take from a sleigh a bundle which he carefully stowed in his own team, and drove away. Being followed, the countryman expressed great surprise at being charged with theft, but finally acknowledged his guilt. He was allowed to go on, however, after returning the stolen property, as he has a large family and is respectably connected. The police force often save loss of property by their vigilance and quiet investigation.

Speaker Blaine's Difficult Task.

Mr. Blaine lingers away from the capital, and the fate of salary grabbers and Credit Mobilierites in the next House is as far from solution as ever. The demands of republican newspapers all over the country, that the gentlemen whose fame is soiled by their participation in past schemes of corruption should be given back seats in the next House, is felt and acknowledged. But the fact is that the organization of the House is not so completely in the hands of the Speaker as it seems, and those of whom so much complaint is made cannot be got rid of easily unless they choose to take themselves out of the way. Among the Massachusetts members Gen. Butler, Mr. Dawes and Mr. Hooper are all more or less responsible for the back pay scandal and the Credit Mobilier. Neither of these gentlemen will be likely to be deprived of a chairmanship unless the House so votes in caucus, and of that there is little probability. The proposition to put aside Butler, Garfield, Kelly and others of the foremost members of the last House, is easier said than done. It is probably impracticable. These men cannot be readily put aside, because they know the methods of doing business in the House so much better than the most of the new members. Mr. Blaine will probably decide that it is the work of the people and not of himself alone to reform Congress and our politics. It is likely that no [illegible] will be selected as Speaker who should pledge himself in advance to so arrange the committees.

A Welcome Man.

[Mrs. M. C. Ames.]

If the sight of man is ever beautious, it is when you first catch a glimpse of him through a black night, in a strange depot, when a pack of hyena hackman are to be defied, your luggage looked after, your hotel found, and you are alone, a stranger and a woman. In that moment, if no other, I am duly grateful that a man was made who is ready to smooth my path and to take care of me. At this moment four women were thankful for the same fact. In that day shall seven women take hold of one man. Poor man! He has always had my pity. There were but four of us, yet each one of us knew that our guide, philosopher and friend had more than his portion, though he took it up with a smile and carried it like a saint to the end.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD De Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that, in the future, orders for tuning, repairing and regulating Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out-of-town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hennikor, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1872.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings, and tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

How to Catch Orchard Insects.

A writer in a French horticultural journal relates this suggestive experience: "After sunset I placed in the centre of my orchard an old barrel, the inside of which I have previously well tarred. At the bottom of the barrel I placed a lighted lamp. Insects of many kind attracted by the light, make for the lamp, and, while circling around it, strike against the sides of the barrel, where, meeting with the tar, their wings and legs become so clogged that they fall helpless to the bottom. In the morning I examine the barrel, and frequently take out of it ten or twelve gallons of cockchafers, which I at once destroy. A few pence worth of tar employed in this way, without any further trouble, may be the means of destroying innumerable numbers of these insects, whose larvæ are amongst the most destructive pests the gardener or farmer has to contend against."

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proven by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1873. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines fully appreciate the desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, and easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Scrofula Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system, being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are able and conservative, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are produced by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is enormously tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the people. Its tone of mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved taste.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has notled the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the most elegant typographical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the transitory or ephemeral interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possession of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with unrivaled fidelity of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a very beautiful chromo, in a frame, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free. For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publisher direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among the Agricultural Interests in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ them—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.,

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as improved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The Pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and salesmen, because it is absolutely NEW, and "has money in it." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.
The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Daily Chronicle.

Mr. Proctor's Eleventh Lecture.

In opening the eleventh lecture of his Lowell Institute course, Mr. Proctor said there were two points regarding the nebular hypothesis stated in a previous lecture, about which inquiry had been made. The first was as to the origin of the fine mist of which the nebulæ were composed. He had a definite answer for this: he did not know. We find ourselves, he continued, constantly dealing, not with second causes, but with those lower down in the system; and especially in this doctrine of evolution, the farther we penetrate the more we find beyond. The second question was in regard to the growth of the system. He had represented the sun as resulting from the gathering in of the nebulous matter, and it had been asked why it did not absorb all; why the earth and the other planets had not been taken in by it. It was because of the motion that the planets possessed. A portion of this nebulous mass was diverted from the path of the rest, and the new path was one that took it around the sun, and thus prevented it from falling into it. The lecturer then stated a theory which he had devised within a few days past, to account for sun spots. These recur once in eleven years, and they have been referred to the influence of Jupiter, whose period is eleven years and three months, and which by its approach and recession produces tides in the sun's envelope. But this period of Jupiter shows that instead of there being perfect agreement between its movement and the appearance of spots, there would be perfect discord. The spots might be caused by meteors whose aphelion is outside of Saturn and whose perihelion is very near the sun. When in perihelion some of these meteors fall into the sun, and, being cool, gases appear as dark spots. In support of this theory is the fact that auroras prevail when the sun spots appear and that also when meteoric showers take place, as with the November meteors, they are accompanied by auroral displays. This was illustrated by the lecturer by a diagram of the path of the meteors which was thrown upon the wall by the calcium light. Pictures of the moon in the first and third quarters and full were then shown. These were taken by our astronomer Rutherford, and were exquisitely executed. The photograph of the first quarter is the finest in existence. Upon these pictures the mountains and craters and lunar rivers were distinctly marked. These were followed by photographs of crust from fused carbonate of soda. These were to illustrate the bubble theory, and they certainly resembled closely the previous pictures of the moon. They presented the same irregularities of surface,—craters and mountains, lava beds and rivers being buite as apparent, and one not intimately acquainted with the moon would easily mistake them for Tycho or Copernicus or Eratosthenes, or any of those prominent features. Views of the sun in eclipse were also exhibited, which showed the dark disc surrounded by its stream of light radiating in every direction. The upper part appeared in each picture to be divided into three groups, parted, as the lecturer said, like Mr. Peeksniff's hair. These photographs were the original ones taken in India.

In turning to the consideration of the stars, Mr. Proctor alluded to the fact that we have always viewed the starry heavens as a region of peace and calm. Poets have sung of them as such. We know that they have apparent motions; from west to east daily, from east to west yearly and a third motion which requires 26,000 years for its completion. We find these to be due to the movement of the earth, its daily rotation on its axis, its rotation around the sun each year, and its gyratory motion, which occupies 26,000 years. In dealing with the stars we meet with scenes of wonderful activity, contrary to this fancy of quiet and calm. All is motion. One moment of activity in one of the bodies consumes more forces than the whole store upon our planet. The sun, which appears so quiet, is working out his purposes with tumult and noise, and each of the stars is a sun like this and the centre of a system. The way in which the distance of these bodies was measured was shown to be similar in principle to the methods described in the last lecture, but infinitely more delicate and difficult of execution. Alpha Centauri, which is the nearest, has been measured with the greatest accuracy, and has been found to be 20,000,000 of millions of miles away. In all about twelve have been approximately measured. We are able to estimate the size of these stars by the light they emit. We find Alpha Centauri gives three times as much light as our sun. Sirius, which is the glory of our heavens, gives four times as much light as Alpha Centauri, and from this we find that it has fourteen times the diameter, and nearly three thousand times the volume of our sun. From its size and brilliancy it has been supposed that Sirius ruled over the starry system, but the lecturer showed that a body which is attracted to our earth with the force of a ton would be attracted to Sirius, at the distance of the sun, with a force of only 1-59000 of a grain, which amounts practically to no attraction. Our sun then rules our system alone. We see from our study of the stars that Sirius is but one among many suns, and the spectroscope shows that they may be divided into four orders. These spectra were shown, and those of the first order, which included Sirius and 300 others, examined, showed a bright spectra crossed by numerous dark lines. Those of the second order, which included our sun and 150 others, showed a like spectra with less strongly marked lines. The third order appeared like the spectra of our sun when spotted, and included the variable stars. The fourth order was that of the red stars, and the dark lines were very rare. Spectra of the stars Betelgenx and Aldebaran were shown superimposed upon the spectra of some of the metals, and the existence of hydrogen, bismuth, iron, nickel, sodium and magnesium was proved. A large number of pictures of nebulæ were exhibited, showing the great variety and beauty of form which they assume. The spiral nebula, showing two aggregations, was especially interesting as elucidating the theory of the evolution of our system which Mr. Proctor has set forth.

Dispersed, scattered, lost; and no one knows what became of them; but the ark of the covenant of the living God remained with the tribe of Judah."

Mr. Creswell's Report.

The report of the Postmaster General for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1873, which was sent to the President a few days ago, is an exceedingly able and interesting document. It appears that the ordinary revenues of the Department for the fiscal year were $22,996,714.57, and the expenditures of all kinds $29,084,945 67. For the year ended June 30, 1872, the ordinary revenues were $21,915,426.37, and the expenditures $26,658,192.31. In 1873 there was an increase of revenue over 1872 of $1,081,315.20, or 4.93 per cent., and an increase of expenditures of $2,426,753.36, or 9 10 per cent. A comparison of 1873 with 1871 shows an increase in revenues of $2,959,696.15, or 14.42 per cent., and an increase of expenditures of $4,694,841.59, or 19.24 per cent. The number of adhesive postage stamps issued during the year was 601,931,520, representing $16,681,189.00. Stamped envelopes, plain, 65,014,600, representing $1,722,512 00. Stamped envelopes, "request," 52,201,250, representing $1,544,567.50. Newspaper wrappers, 13,956,750, representing $140,597.50. Postal cards, 31,094,000, representing $310,940 00. The whole number of stamps, stamped envelopes, newspaper wrappers and postal cards was 764,198,120, of the value of $20,399,776 00.

Of public mail routes in operation there were 7,424, aggregating in length 256,210 miles; in annual transportation, 119,909,650 miles, and in annual cost, $13,635,341. Adding the compensation of railway post office clerks, route agents, mail-route messengers, local agents, mail messengers and baggage masters in charge of registered packages, amounting to $2,525,693, the aggregate annual cost was $16,161,034.

The service was divided as follows:

Railroad routes: Length, 68,457 miles; annual transportation, 65,621,445 miles; annual cost, $7,257,196—about 11.06 cents per mile.

Steamboat routes: Length, 16,762 miles; annual transportation, 3,947,785 miles; annual cost, $799,645—about 20.25 cents per mile.

Other routes, upon which the mails are required to be conveyed with "celerity, certainty and security:" Length, 175,991 miles; annual transportation, 50,340,420 miles; annual cost, $5,578,500—about 11.08 cents per mile.

There was an increase over the preceding year in length of routes of 4,812 miles; in annual transportation, 4,925,328 miles; and in cost, $1,063,077. Adding the increased cost for railway post office clerks, route, local and other agents, $318,749, the total increase in cost was $1,381,826.

The railroad routes have been increased in length 5,546 miles, and in cost $754,425, against an increase last year of 8,077 miles in length and $2,777,79 in cost.

In regard to through mails, the average time between New York and San Francisco during the year ending September 30, 1873, was 179 hours 4 minutes, against 216 hours 23 minutes the preceding year. Between Washington and New Orleans the average time was about four hours more going south, and about three hours less going north, than during the preceding year, the time south being 81 hours 45 minutes, against 77 hours 39 minutes the preceding year, and the time north 72 hours 53 minutes, against 75 hours 38 minutes the preceding year.

The number of recorded complaints for the past year of missing letters was 6,165, of which 3,980 were unregistered and 2,185 registered, containing in the former, as reported, in bonds, drafts and currency, $309,123.53, and in the latter $70,421.91. Of the registered letters, 899 were accounted for, 313 are reported as actually lost, and 973 are still in the hands of special agents for investigation. During the year 302 persons were arrested for various offences against the postal laws and regulations. Of these, 94 have been convicted, 20 have been acquitted, 193 are awaiting trial, and 95 have been discharged for want of proof sufficient to insure conviction.

After a review of the operations of the free delivery system, the Postmaster General says: "I am of the opinion that it might be advantageously provided for in cities having in their corporate limits a population of not less than ten thousand." A tabular statement shows the total number of officers and employees in the services to be 47,010.

An appropriation for the manufacture and delivery of postal cards having been secured by the act of January 8, 1873, immediate steps were taken to meet the public demand therefor. Much delay was encountered in the preparation of the plates and in procuring suitable stock, but at length all obstacles were so far overcome that their delivery on requisitions was commenced on the 1st of May last. As predicted, they have been favorably received. They have supplied a public want, and have made a new and remunerative business for the Department. The issues foot up:

From May 1 to June 30, 31,094,000—from July 1 to September 30, 33,208,300. Total in five months, 64,302,300.

These figures indicate that the estimate of 100,000,000 for the consumption of the first year will be more than realized.

The several acts for the repeal of the franking privilege became operative on the 1st of July last. The results of the first quarter of the current year are highly satisfactory and have fully verified the predictions of the friends of the repeal.

Mr. Creswell closes his report with an exhaustive recommendation that the government take control of the telegraph.

—Bailey of the Danbury News commenced some remarks recently, by saying, solemnly: "I would not live alway; yet when I get pretty sick, I always send for the doctor."

New Publications.

All the girls and boys will want to read Scribner's new illustrated monthly, "ST. NICHOLAS." It is conducted by Mary Mapes Dodge and its entertaining contents for December will interest many children of an older growth. Celia Thaxter has a poem on Jack Frost, written in her rare descriptive manner; then there are the Brighton Cats, Billy Boy, The Giant Waistcoat, The Cruise of the Antioch, Naylor of the Boxing Club, Tiverton Tattlers, The Sacred Bear, Sam Quimby's Art-Summer, The Riddle-Box, and Jack-in-the-Pulpit's advisory selections. "ST. NICHOLAS" is sold at all the book-stores, and a year's subscription (for $3) will be a most welcome holiday present. Address Scribner & Co., 654 Broadway, New York.

The December number closes the sixteenth volume of the GALAXY, and for variety and excellence it is the most attractive we have seen. The leading article, upon the Czarowitch of Russia, besides its graphic description of the future Czar, goes back to compare the leading spirits of the last century in Russia—Peter the Great, Elizabeth, and Catherine—with the enlightened sovereign of the present gigantic empire. The revolting pictures of Nero and the licentious and degraded court of Catherine II. are almost past belief. General Custar, the dashing cavalry officer, gives a thrilling narrative of his expedition in search of some white women who had been captured by the savages of Arizona. An article upon the Othellos of the stage compares the acting of the great Italian tragedian, Salvini, with that of Booth, Macready, Forrest, Davenport, and other actors celebrated in that character. A suggestive and well-timed article upon the American system of money and the recent panic is contributed by Richard B. Kimball, whose reputation as an able financier, as well as author, attaches peculiar value to his article. Moses Bros. have it.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for December opens the forty-eighth volume of that periodical, and fully justifies the promises of the publishers that this volume shall surpass its predecessors. Besides the five regular editorial departments, this number contains seventeen contributions, of which eight are illustrated, with sixty-six engravings. The paper on "Panic in Wall street" gives a concise history of the three panics within the memory of the present generation of readers, and a very picturesque description of the Stock Exchange as it was and as it is, with some piquant gossip about leading Wall street speculators. Two short stories—"Delgado," by Harriet Prescott Spofford, and "A Legend of Crawford Notch" by Anna C. Swasey—are given, in a lition to the second installment of Professor De Mille's serial "A Living Link." Alfred H. Louis, S. S. Conant, Bessie M. Love, Will Wallace Harney, and William C. Richards contribute the poetry of the number. To most readers the brightest gem will be "A Golden Wedding"—a poem of rare excellence and beauty, by Miss H. R. Hudson, illustrated with ten engravings, from drawings by W. L. Sheppard. The January number will contain the first part of Miss Alcott's serial story (beautifully illustrated), "My Mother and I—A Love Story for Girls." Harper's is received by Foster and Lord.

Shorter Route from Boston to Montreal.

The negotiations which have been for some time in progress between the Eastern Railroad, the Portland & Ogdensburg and the Montreal, Chambly and Sorel railroads are now completed and the necessary papers signed. By virtue of the arrangement thus effected, the early completion of a new and shorter line from Portland and Boston to Montreal is assured, and another through trunk railway between the West and the Atlantic. The Eastern Railroad, which now effects a junction with the Portland and Ogdensburg at North Conway, has agreed to guarantee to the latter road a certain fixed proportion of the gross receipts on all business over the entire line, an arrangement which is to go into effect at once, and to continue permanently. The Portland and Ogdensburg road on its part has secured all the necessary charters and franchises for the extension of its line from Sheldon, Vt., by a new and easy route, only sixty miles in length, to Montreal, and from Swanton, Vt., to Ottawa, the Dominion capital. The greater portion of the Boston-Montreal line is already completed and in operation, and under the recent arrangements the remainder will be constructed at once and the whole line completed and working within the next year. The new route passes from Montreal through Chambly, crossing the Richelieu River at the latter point, and enters the States in the the town of Franklin, Vt. From Montreal to Portland the distance will thus be reduced nearly thirty miles; between Ottawa and Portland and Halifax the reduction will be very much greater.

The negotiations which have thus been completed do not involve the absorption or consolidation of the Portland and Ogdensburg by the Eastern; on the contrary, the former road retains entire control of its own line and its operation. The Eastern is to set aside thirty per cent. of the gross income from all business passing over its road from the Portland and Ogdensburg, and the same as to the return business, to be applied in paying the interest on the Portland & Ogdensburg bonds; and also thirty per cent. of the gross income [of all through business over the road, in the proportion that the mileage of the Portland & Ogdensburg bears to the whole mileage. In consideration of this, and of the guar-

They also contract not to charge the Portland & Ogdensburg line anything for terminal facilities in Boston, unless the new line shall in some cases carry for less than a stipulated price, in which event, from the fact that the Eastern's proportion of the income would be less than usual, terminal charges will be made. The aggregate capital by which the new line is sustained will exceed $20,000,000. Work on the unfinished sections of the Portland & Ogdensburg Railroad is now rapidly going forward, over 400 laborers being employed.

Concerning this project, the St. Albans Messenger says it cannot but result in the speedy completion of the Lamoille Valley road through to Maquam Bay, also of the road through the White Mountain notch, and of the road from Chambly to Sheldon, thus making a line from Lake Champlain and Montreal, which shall be independent of all existing lines, and able to compete with any line now built. It will place St. Johnsbury five miles nearer Boston than it now is by way of White River Junction.

The statement in the Boston papers that the Eastern guarantees the bonds of the Portland & Ogdensburg, endorsing each one, is incorrect, the only guarantee being a traffic guarantee.

Fooling a Coon.

While hunting on Bausna river, one day, says a correspondent of Forest and Stream, I was a witness to one of those episodes in animal life that seem to warrant the belief that many birds are possessed of higher attributes than are generally accorded them, and something more than mere instinct.

My guide had waded a long way ahead in the shallow water and was cautiously approaching a "drove" of spoon-bills, leaving me to follow with the boat.

Not relishing the idea of wading about in the muddy water with stingrays and sawfish, pushing the heavy craft before me, I concluded that such proceedings were not in my line of duty, and so sat upon the rail, idly splashing the water with my feet.

My attention was called to a disturbance among the mangroves of a little islet near, and soon there flapped into view a black duck, a female, evidently wounded. Close in her wake followed a sly looking coon, his attention so occupied with the duck as not to notice me till fairly in view. Then he hesitated, but the duck brushed so near his nose that he again took up the pursuit, throwing a glance occasionally at me. It was interesting to watch them; keeping just ahead of her pursuer, the duck would beat the water quickly all the time in evident pain, and would so delude the old fellow that he finally seemed to think nothing else but catching her. What a puzzled expression his shrewd face wore, when, after nearly placing his paw upon her, she would escape. Then he would stop, look at me as if to say "what the deuce does all this mean?" and arching his back, would again pursue with long leaps. For over a quarter of an hour did the duck play with him, till having enticed him a sufficient distance from her nest, she flew away. If ever the face of a sharp-nosed coon wore a sheepish look, it was the face of that same coon. I accelerated his sneaking trot by a charge of duck shot.

Pernicious Purgatives.

The brilliant idea of half a century ago that the weak and ailing could be bled, blistered and salivated into a condition of health and vigor is happily exploded; but violent and prolonged purgation is still, to some extent, in vogue. We have impostors who are daring enough to offer to the world, as tonics and restoratives, the most destructive cathartics, unmedicined by a single stimulating, soothing or restorative element. Compare the operation of one of these terrible nostrums with that of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are combined the three great curative elements—a tonic, an alterative, and an aperient. The former completely paralyzes the vital forces, so that nature can make no resistance to disease; the latter sustains the strength of the patient, while it restores the suspended functions of the secretory organs and relieves the bowels without violence or pain. It is simply a choice between restoration and prostration.

Hack, Hack, Hack! Cough, Cough, Cough!

Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of Bronchitis, from incipient Consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent attack, or a lingering cough, the Discovery is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it, not by drying it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the irritation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a Cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous disease of the lungs is liable to result. 705

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of of Ports mouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction therof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of artistic and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be as artistically and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new.

Mrs. Livermore's Lecture.

Of course the ladies liked the lecture on "The Battle of Money," which Mrs. Mary A. Livermore delivered before a goodly audience, Tuesday evening. We have no desire to indulge in too much criticism of Mrs. Livermore's volubility, and have only to complain that the lecture, which was an interesting and sometimes instructive talk of an hour and forty-eight minutes, was just forty-eight minutes too lengthy. A ready flow of words is not the most desirable gift in public speaking, but the faculty of confining remarks to a reasonable time and condensing a lecture to its proper limits is best appreciated. Of the matter of Mrs. Livermore's lecture, there is but little to find fault with. A great part of it seemed devoted to the reiteration of illustrations of corruption born of the power of wealth. Lamentable as is the fact, even Mrs. Livermore, who is a capital grumbler, could not suggest a remedy—although we did get the idea that the monster, man, was responsible and that women might do differently in like contingencies. Mrs. Livermore's remark that she had refused to lecture for $50 and expenses goes to show that like Vanderbilt, Stewart et als she was desirous of amassing capital. We didn't fancy the idea of her going to a New York manufactory and taking out a dozen shirts to make, which she said would not her twenty-two cents per diem, when she did not need it and some half-starved woman might. We presume she did it from curiosity and for the good of the sex.

Women are privileged to be inconsistent. They do not occupy the exalted position in life that they should. That injustice is done them, we admit. That many are driven to lives of shame is discreditable to their fellow-beings. That they are wretched afterward is owing as much to the uncharity of their more fortunate sisters as to the sterner sex. Forgiveness to a fallen creature is not one of the attributes, we regret to say, of those more virtuous. Mrs. Livermore's sad portrayal of the miserable fate in store for hundreds of thousands should have been followed by an earnest plea that charitable treatment should be accorded the unfortunate. Denunciation is popular, and costs nothing; sarcasm is sometimes enjoyable; but sacrifice best tests the qualities of men and women. Gentleness is woman's most lovely attribute, while masculine characteristics but mar true womanliness.

Mrs. Livermore began her lecture with allusions to ancient Greece and Rome, and coming then to the Saxon race, described it as being made up of eminently practical people, who regard labor as honorable. The Anglo-Saxons, in this afternoon of the the nineteenth century, own one-sixth of the earth, are themselves one-fifth of the world's population, and control one-half of its shipping. They seek to monopolize the two great staples, cotton and wheat, and succeed in doing it.

The Anglo-Saxon is the richest of all races, but we, in the United States, decided within the last decade which we loved best, money or liberty. Thank God we have answered that question once and forever. But to-day, when there does not seem to be any special danger threatening our liberty, to maintain which even in a republican country like our own there is much to be done, the whole energy of the Anglo-Saxon turns in the direction of money-making. The very saddest things in our crisis are the revelations that those whom we considered unimpeachable, have shown themselves to be dishonest men.

Mrs. Livermore then came to the consideration of minor dishonesties, beginning with those periodicals which promise $10 maps or chromos for a $2 subscription, which maps or chromos turn out to be the kind which could be bought by the cartload for fifty cents apiece and would not be good for anything after we got them.

Returning to more important subjects, she said that the dry rot of corruption has reached our very legislators, and that is, to-day, the wail of the county. Money has become the controlling power in legislation, and is recognized as such.

In speaking of the Freedman's Bureau trouble, she expressed her joy that the one-armed soldier who is at its head has come through without a stain. She commenced very severely on the Boston City Government, which, she said, spent last year for refreshments for its members, $41,000, and for soup for the poor, $4000. Then in speaking of railroad corporations, she said that the gravest peril of the country is the concentration of great wealth into companies which are manipulated by a few men. There are in the country 75,000 miles of railroad, owned principally by ten companies which are themselves managed by about 100 men. These railroads have became a political power, and, as an illustration, she alluded to the grant to them of 224,000,000 acres of public lands. The salary grag was then spoken of, and the grief to which those who favored it were brought. For the existing bad state of affairs, she said that the people were to blame because they tolerated it; public morals in a republic are in accord with private.

Navy Yard Items.

The Portland Advertiser says that Mr. Frank L. Marks an employee in the construction department, has been recently set to work under instructions from the Navy Department "that he will not again be discharged except by special order."

Mr. C. L. Duncan, late machinist in the ordnance department of the navy yard, has been appointed gunner in the navy. Gunner Thomas J. Wilson has been detached from the yard and ordered to the Franklin. Boatswain John McCaffery has likewise been detached and ordered to the Franklin.

Newcastle.

The crisis is felt quite severely. Many of the young men who have been away during the pasting season are at home waiting for a revival of work, with those who have labored on the fortifications and some from the navy yard.

The fall term of the village schools closed on the 21st. The examinations were good, there being seven passed from primary to the intermediate and eight from the latter to the grammar school. In the evening the grammar school held their closing rhetorical exercise, consisting of selections from those of the weekly exercises had during the term. After the exercise the Principal gave a report for the term. It showed that over one half of the scholars enrolled at the commencement, had lost none or but one day, during the term, while five-sevenths of the pupils had been absent only four days or less of the 58 of school. A gift was presented to Miss Lois Rand for proficiency in grammar. R.

The Indianola, Iowa, Tribune has a very flattering notice of a new enterprise just opened there by Boatright & Fernald, who have erected an immense elevator. The junior member of the firm is Mr. Geo. W. Fernald, formerly of this city. The Tribune thus describes the new building:

"The size of the main building is 20x40, with a height of 50 feet, and a shed 12 feet wide the length of the whole building to be used as a drive-way and place for unloading grain. The whole side is open to the height of this shed, leading into four receiving sinks, each having a capacity of 500 bushels, connected with which is two sets of elevators.

The upper portion of the building is occupied by the elevating machinery and by eight bins, having a capacity of about 20,000 bushels, which will enable them to hold a large amount of grain both for themselves and their customers. The whole building is built in a most substantial manner, and withal is so convenient that no matter the amount of grain which may come, only one man will be required to attend to all the work.

The proprietors, Messrs. Boatright & Fernald, are practical business men, well acquainted with the grain business in all its details, having been actively engaged in the business in both Kellogg and Newton, where they established a reputation for honorable, fair dealing, which is of good credit to them."

The Nashua Telegraph pays Mr. Hackett the following compliment: Hon. William H. Y. Hackett of Portsmouth is one of the most distinguished lawyers of the State. He is now about 70 years of age, and has ably filled many positions of trust and honor. He is an old school gentleman, large hearted and large minded, and his election to the governorship would recall the palmiest days of the State.

Our good friend Col. A. H. Hoyt will pardon us, we do not doubt, for the "nonsensical" construction of that part of his letter suggesting that the monument be constructed of rough stone, which we published recently. The letter recommended that the location of the monument be at Lincoln Hill, instead of at the first settlement. As it has been already decided to build the monument at Odierne's Point, Rye, we struck out that part of the letter suggesting Lincoln Hill.

Quite a number of the most active members of the New York Society of Sons, with some of the daughters, enjoyed a reunion at the residence of Mr. Geo. J. Laighton, in Brooklyn, two weeks since. The entertainment was bountious, and enlivened by many delightful and amusing incidents recalled from the memorable days of last July. The New York organization is a permanent one as originally, formed; the executive committee have in view, a series of social reunions in New York and Brooklyn, to include many interesting features.

Probate Record.

The following record is recorded in the probate office of York County:

Know all men by these presents that I, Mary Underwood of Kittery, the wife of John Underwood, of Kittery, in the County of York, mariner, by and with my husband's consent and by virtue of a power from my said husband, do give, grant, bargain and sell unto Sambo, a slave to the Reverend Mr. Benj. Stevens, of the aforesaid Kittery, for the sum of sixty pounds lawfull money, a negro woman called Phillis, with her appurtenances, to have and to hold during her natural life. In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and seal this 17th day of November, 1778.

Signed, sealed, and delivered in presence of us Nathaniel Todd, William Brotten.

Received the contents as above.

Letter From Wagner To His Mother.

Louis Wagner, sentenced to be hanged for the crime of murder, and incarcerated in the State prison at Thomaston, has written a sad but affectionate letter to his mother in Prussia, informing her of his condemnation, and that he had been sentenced to be hanged for the crime of murder, but strongly avowing his innocence. The letter was written in the Prussian tongue, but its contents were interpreted before it left the prison. The words of the convicted man have in them a touch of tender regard for the mother who bore him, and show that the influences of mother-love have not entirely departed from him. He expresses the deepest sorrow that in leaving Prussia, he did not leave his bad habits behind him—that in exchanging countries he did not exchange his vices for virtues. He was filled with sorrow that his excesses and vices should lead people to suspect him of the crime with which he had been charged. He did not murder the women; if he had wanted their money, he could have obtained it in a much easier way than that. Although the thought of death on the gallows was painful, yet it was preferable to a lingering, lonesome life within prison wall. His letter closes with the hope that he shall meet his mother in a better world than this.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hooksett, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring out of bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and hundreds all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, hawkings and coughings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to two HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as its simplest food, and increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

Say that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a position independent, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudice or depraved taste.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has not led the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of choice, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproachable, also lutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDES!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are exactness of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other leading American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by one of our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado pictures was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "Morning and Noon" "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are Practical Farmers, Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Seller, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $3.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

PREPARED BY

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book-illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with a sumptuous binding of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and salesmen, because it is absolutely NEW, and "has money in it." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. H. BUTLER & CO., N. Y.; Boston, Chicago, San Francisco or Cincinnati. d13

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers and Consumers to the fact that we keep different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as foremen, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.
The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known by the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It stands the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and gives a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Daily Chronicle.

BY THE SEA.

Slowly, steadily, under the moon,
Swings the tide in its old-time way;
Never too late, and never too soon—
And the evening and morning make the day.

Slowly, steadily, over the sands,
And over the rocks to fall and flow,
And this wave has touched a dead man's hands,
And that one has seen a face we know.

They have borne the good ship on her way,
Or buried her deep from love and light;
And yet, as they sink at our feet to-day,
Ah! who shall interpret their message aright?

For their separate voices of grief and cheer
Are blending together in one solemn tone,
And only this song of the waves I hear:
"Forever and ever His will is done!"

Slowly, steadily, to and fro,
Swings our life in its weary way;
Now at its ebb and now at its flow—
And the evening and morning make the day.

Sorrow and happiness, peace and strife,
Fear and rejoicing, its moments know—
How, from the discords of such a life,
Can the clear music of heaven flow?

Yet to the ear of God it swells,
And to the blessed round the throne,
Sweeter than chimes of Sabbath bells—
"Forever and ever His will is done!"

Wise Example.

Hon. D. W. Voorhees, of Indiana, has announced his retirement from political life. He says all the old issues have passed away, and henceforth new ones will arise. And upon the new question a new set of men will be demanded by the people. Some old politicians try to force themselves into notice after their day has gone by, but it is very unwise. He does not mean to "lag superfluous on the stage," and it is safe to say that nothing in his political life so well became him as the leaving of it. In this he has set a splendid example to a class of politicians who have survived their uses—men who have lagged behind the age, and yet are trying to lead its movements and manage its affairs. They are possessed with the ideas, the prejudices, and the passions of an era that has ended, and spend themselves trying to make this year's corn grow on last year's cobs. They fail to see how the altered circumstances demand altered methods as well; that new exigencies must be met with new measures and ideas, and that only the men who are progressive and elastic enough to keep their position at the head of the advance guard of society can possibly maintain a leading position in affairs. The difficulty in our politics to-day comes very largely from the fact that the field is encumbered with these political fossils—the men who pride themselves on standing just where they always thought, as Lot's wife might have done after she became a pillar of salt. They have outlived their functions but not their ambition, and keep up a continual fussing and fumbling and irritation to get control of the machinery they once managed, in the hope of controlling men and events. But it is useless. They do but beat the air and prolong their own misery. The sooner they yield to the inevitable and retire from the unequal contest the better for themselves and everybody. The new times want new measures, and new men to move them. The new ideas will incarnate themselves in new personalities. The new principles must find new representatives to champion and set them forth; and the old must either stand aside or be run over. It cannot be helped. It has always been so, and so it always will be.

A Humorous Hero.

John Paul, in the following witty paragraph, gives some personal recollections which are valuable in a historic view:

"And I met General Banks at a pleasant picnic in Mr. Frank Leslie's grounds, Saturday, at Saratoga. It was on the banks of Lonely Lake, and there were waterfalls and fountains, mosses and ferns, cold chicken and cold champagne, to the heart's content. It grieved me that the General does not remember how we travelled in company once, but the circumstances were not very favorable for photography, perhaps. We were travelling out of the Shenandoah Valley and manoeuvring very successfully to draw Stonewall Jackson along in our rear. Not a man of us but swore that the rebel General should not get to Massachusetts before we did; and the foul invader should not set foot on the frontier of our native State, without finding us sternly confronting him in the interior. And it was only necessary to gaze once in a soldier's face to see that the hated enemy could not capture us without stepping over the boundary lines and violating the territory of Maine. I wished several times during the recent races that I had the gray mare I rode through that campaign here to enter for some of the purses. The bursts of speed which that faithful creature showed on several occasions would pass belief if you did not know just how near the detested foe got to us at times. It may not be that I won my spurs in the Shenandoah, but I had a pair to start in with and I used them well coming out. No; I am confident that no one won my spurs down there, though we played straight poker for most everything else, and I lost my blankets once to a cavalry captain who subsequently had no use for them. But this is digressing. You may not think me a hero from all this, but who is a hero to this valley."

Hon. Richard Yates, Ex-Senator from Illinois, died in St. Louis, Nov. 27th.

There is reason to believe that Gen. Sickles has left Madrid. His orders to do so were peremptory, if the Spanish government should not completely accede to our demand.

Friday's dispatch to the Traveller notes increased activity at the navy yards. A large number of officers are being ordered to duty.

General Sickles has not given satisfaction to the administration by his course in the present complications, and he has not received full powers for some days past.

The reason that Senator Conkling of New York declines the chief justiceship is that he thinks acceptance might injure his chances for the Presidency. Wise Conkling!

Probably the most satisfactory news item of the day is the announcement that mills in the vicinity of Troy, N. Y., giving employment to over five thousand persons, have resumed work.

A curious incident happened at a fire in New Haven last week. As a fellow stood looking on, a stream from one of the hydrants struck him in the mouth and broke his teeth. As a celebrated dentist who stood close by was in the act of examining the damage, the same stream wheeled round, knocked him down and drenched him.

Great Britain and the Virginius Case.

[Washington special to Cin. Enquirer.]

Very little has been said of the course pursued by the British Government in respect to the sixteen Englishmen who were put to death by the Spanish officials in Cuba, and the seven Englishmen yet held as captives, but it is certain that the British Ministry are acting with their customary energy and decision in such matters. The cases of the two Governments against Spain being somewhat different, they will not act jointly in their reclamation against the Madrid Government; but there is reason for the belief that there has been a free interchange of opinion, and that each is advised of what the other is doing. The policy of England is to avoid foreign complicity, and not to press extreme demands against Spain which will necessarily involve a war. It is believed that England will demand positively the surrender of the English captives, and a money compensation for the families of the Englishmen whose lives have been taken by Burriel, and that she will also lend moral support to the demands which the American Government may make. England, like the United States, will contend that Spain, having constantly denied the existence of a state of war, the capture of the Virginius on the high seas was technically a violation of public law, and that in view of the matter the summary condemnation of the vessel and execution of the captives was indefensible.

According to reports of the English agents in Cuba, out of 105,000 Spanish soldiers sent to Cuba, only 30,000 are now living, the rest having fallen in battle and by disease. The Cuban insurgents, according to the same authority, are stronger than at any former time, and have now 4,000 well-uniformed regular troops.

—The information in this paragraph would not do under the head of "Probabilities": Mrs. John A. Fisher of Springfield, her mother, grandmother, great-grandmother and great-great-grandmother were born on December 13, and, still more astonishing, when Mrs. Fisher was twenty years old her mother was forty, her grandmother sixty, her great grandmother eighty and her great-great-grandmother, if she had been alive, would have been just one hundred.

The vote of Dover for Mayor was very small. Horton, republican, had 599; Wentworth, democrat, 549; Abbott, prohibitionist, 98. Eight of the ten Aldermen, and 20 of the 30 Councilmen, are republicans.

The Dover Enquirer says truly of the late Hon. John P. Hale: "The precious memories treasured in the hearts of those most dear to him in life may with them pass away; but forever, hereafter, proof against all the shafts of mortality, will remain the unperishable record of his unfailing devotion to freedom, of his unselfish sacrifices and fidelity in behalf of human rights."

About two o'clock, Thanksgiving morning, fire was discovered in the barn of a Frenchman named Vincent, on Water street, Great Falls. An alarm was given and the fire department responded quickly, but the flames communicated to the adjoining sheds and barns in the rear of the dwelling-houses between Water and Summer streets, and threatened the latter. After two hours' hard labor the firemen succeeded in checking the flames. Five barns were burned to the ground with all their contents. One of them belonged to the Somersworth Machine Company and was used as a storehouse. The entire loss is estimated at $3000; no insurance.

The Virginius Seizure.

[Boston Globe.]

Spain had no right to seize the Virginius except within the limits of her own waters, for on the high seas she was as much under the protection of our flag as if she had been in one of our ports. Nothing can be more absurd than the comparison of the position of the Virginius, under the law of nations, with that of the Alabama, for the latter was not only in the service of one belligerent, but she was fitted to prey on the commerce of the other; while the former vessel only carried men and munitions of war to the Cuban insurgents. She was in no sense an armed cruiser, as her inability to defend herself against the Tornado showed. Now, Mr. Webster, in his dispatch to Mr. Thompson, July 8, 1842, in regard to the traffic, said to have been carried on by our citizens, by which Texas, then at war with Mexico, was supplied with arms and munitions of war, not only denied the right of our Government to prevent it, but said it could not have prevented it without a manifest departure from the principle of neutrality. This doctrine, sustained by Wheaton, has been adopted by the law officers of England, and it is a sufficient answer to those persons who maintain it to be the duty of our Government to prevent such traffic as the Virginius was engaged in, under the law of nations. If her actions contravened our own neutrality laws, that is a question for us to decide; but it gave no right to Spain to take the law in her own hands. We pass over the summary and barbarous proceedings against the passengers and crew of the Virginius, which could have no shadow of legal justification, except under the decree of a prize court, because our case rests firmly on the invalidity of the seizure. This is the ground which is taken by our authorities at Washington, and is the only view consistent with the law of nations.

Dogs.

[Max Adeler.]

It is pleasing to pay a visit to the house of a man who keeps two or three dogs. The dogs always fly at you in the most ferocious manner as soon as you enter the yard, and just as you have made up your mind that you are going to be torn limb from limb, the owner appears, and as you wipe your brow, he laughs and says, "those dogs are perfectly harmless, except when any one resists them." Then you sit down on the porch, and all three of the dogs sniff at your legs until you are afraid to move. If you can summon up courage to pat one of them on the head, the other two instantly put their forelegs on your lap, and cover your trousers with dirt, while each struggles to crowd the other off. After a bit the third tries to jump on your knee, and they threaten to have a fight about it, while you are afraid to encourage one for fear of making the other two mad. When they have pawed about six dollars' worth of value out of your pantaloons and covered them with mud, the owner interferes and sends them all away. After his four hoot excuses himself for half an hour, and you go out to sit upon the porch alone. Presently the three dogs come bounding up, and they all begin to smell you as earnestly as if they had never performed the operation before. Then they lie down; but as soon as you move your chair or your feet they spring suddenly up and appear to be deeply interested in considering you. You think you will take a walk in the garden, and the whole three follow close at your heels, while you are expecting every moment to have the calf of your leg bitten out. It is surprising how gingerly a man walks with three strange dogs close behind him. He wouldn't run or dance a hornpipe for a million dollars a minute and found the rest of his natural life. Directly the dogs engage in a fight over a bone, and you embrace the opportunity to hurry back to the house. Just as you are breaking into a trot, you are surprised to find that the brutes have made up their quarrel and are leaping up at you and barking, half in fun and half in earnest. You slow up, and get back in the porch. When you put your hand on the front-door knob all three dogs stand around and utter ominous growls. Then they suddenly seem impressed that something is wrong, and they all begin to bark savagely, and to make dashes at you. The door is locked, and in alarm you climb up on the porch. This convinces the dogs that something absolutely must be wrong, and they begin in downright earnest to try to grab you by the leg. Just as the big yellow dog succeeds in getting hold of your boot and squeezing his teeth into your flesh, your host comes up, calls off the dog and is very sorry to find you so badly scared about "two or three unoffending animals that would't hurt a child." Then you want to go home, and when you once get outside the gate you register a solemn vow never again to visit any man who has so poor an idea of the demands of hospitality as to keep a lot of beastly curs about his house to annoy and persecute his friends.

Profits of Co-Operation.

Some eight or ten years ago, says the New England Farmer, Joseph D. Holmes, Charles Jordan and William Millard, three young farmers living almost within a stone's throw of each other, decided to join in establishing a dairy milk route from their farms to Pawtucket, Rhode Island, some six miles away. Neither farm was large enough to sustain a route alone, but the three together could do it easily. Neither wanted to take the place of a middleman and do all the marketing, nor did either wish to give up his business to a middleman. So they agreed that each should take his turn on the milk wagon.

The milk accounts are all kept in one book, and the buyers at the village settle their bill by this book, whether it comes by one or another of the members of the company. Each of the three men go with the wagon every third day in regular order, unless for accommodation sake one goes a trip for one of the others. Each uses his own horse and wagon, and each knows the amount of milk that is taken from the different farms every day.

The two trips that each one makes every week enables him to market most of his other produce, such as apples, potatoes, sweet corn, tomatoes and other garden products, of which each one raises considerable quantities, without making special trips for such purposes. Nor is there any hitching up and going to the store for purchase; all the buying, as well as selling, being done on their regular market days; and they are all in daily communication with the post-office, which is no small convenience to farmers.

Under this system of partnership the cost of marketing is reduced to the minimum, while each bears his just proportion of the expenses and receives equal share in all the advantages of the combination. Since this arrangement has been made all their farms have been really enhanced in in value. The young men have increased their stock, and it is better fed and better housed. Buildings have been repaired and enlarged, more and better tools purchased, and the land is constantly increasing in fertility and productiveness. But little complaint is heard from them about hard times for farmers. They pay their bills, take the papers, and know what is going on in the world outside.

We have been familiar with this company from its organization, and believe the example these men have set is worthy of imitation by many farmers who are now grumbling about the cost of getting their goods to market.

—A parson and a lawyer were talking about the direction of the wind. "We go by the Court House vane," said the lawyer; and the parson replied: "We go by the church vane." "Well," retorted the lawyer, "in the matter of wind that is the best authority."

Laughter as a Medicine.

A short time since two individuals were lying in one room very sick, one with brain fever, and the other with an aggravated case of the mumps. They were so ill that watchers were needed every night, and it was thought doubtful if the one sick of fever would recover. A gentleman was engaged to watch over night, his duty being to wake the nurse whenever it became necessary to administer medicine. In the course of the night both watcher and nurse fell asleep. The patient with the mumps lay watching the clock, and saw that it was time to give the fever patient his potion. He was unable to speak aloud, or to move any portion of his body except his arms, but, seizing a pillow, he managed to strike the watcher in the face with it. Thus suddenly awakened, the watcher sprang from his seat, falling to the floor, and awakened the nurse and the fever patient. The incident struck the sick man as very ludicrous, and they laughed heartily at it for some fifteen or twenty minutes. When the doctor came in the morning he found his patient vastly improved; said he never knew so sudden a turn for the better, and he was soon up and well. Who says laughter is not the best of medicines? And this reminds the writer of another case. A gentleman was suffering from ulceration in the throat which at length became so swollen that his life was despaired of. His household came to his bedside to bid him farewell. Each individual shook hands with the dying man, and went away weeping. Last of all came a pet ape, and shaking the man's hand, went away also with its hands over its eyes. It was so ludicrous a sight that the patient was forced to laugh, and laugh so heartily that the ulcer broke, and his life was saved.

Why People Don't Go to Church.

Why do not people go to church more? One thinks it is this, and another thinks it is this, and another thinks it is that. You can open a church in a hovel, and let a voice go forth that has the power of touching men, and you will find it crowded and thronged. You do not want the cob that used to have the corn. That which men want is sappy food, refreshing food. Men are willing to be dealt with, to have their sins dashed in their faces; willing to have their consciences aroused, but do not want to be handled. They want a preacher that takes hold of them in some way, and, if he can, do more than that; if he can give to them that which every man conscientiously needs—some men have aspirations, and some more indulge in superficial thought—and if we can give him strength to bear his burden.

Men that are sore in life; men who are in sorrow; men who don't know how to bring up their children, and who are continually having more and more added to their flock; people who want to know where the next hod of coal is coming from; people who are afraid of the sheriff; men who are pricked with ten thousand nettles of human life—they come to church and hear a long discussion on the fall of Adam. Well, that is not opportune, but still they're so flat themselves that they feel as if they would like to know something that deadens the struggle that is going on within them; they want some one who will take part with them, a minister who brings God down to the side of men, not as an everlasting condemner, but one who brings God down as a present help in time of trouble.

Temperance Proposition No. 5.

The man who proposes at the transit of Venus an attempt to ascertain if it is inhabited, might give a temporary advantage to our cause if he will push his inquiries a few steps further, as to what is the character of the people. Are they cannibalistic and Ishmaelitish, or loving in their intercourse? Do they defile their mouths with unendurable filth or are they lovely in their manners? We miss one of the best incentives and helps when we leave out of sight the fact that unknown eyes are watching with eager solicitude to know what use we mortals make individually, of the liberty that is given us. HARD PAN.

—An exchange gives the following simple application for the toothache, on the principle, if no cure, no charge for the advice: If any of your readers suffer from toothache or neuralgic affections arising from the teeth in any stage of decay, they may experience relief, instantaneous and permanent, by saturating a small bit of clean cotton or wool with a strong solution of ammonia, and apply it immediately to the affected tooth. The pleasant contrast instantaneously produced sometimes causes a fit of laughter, although a moment before extreme suffering and anguish prevailed. I have used the remedy for over one year, and have obtained sufficient proof to warrant publication.

The Man of Enterprise creates; the weak imitator tries to copy him. Does any sensible man suppose that legions of "Buchus" so-called, that infest the drug stores, possess the real merit of Dr. Helmbold's genuine Extract? Any sufferer from Kidney Complaint, Dropsy, Diabetes, or other urinary diseases, in male or female, will detect the difference at once by the result. Helmbold's cures; the others fail. The genuine bears Dr. Helmbold's signature. For sale by all druggists.

Pernicious Purgatives.

The brilliant idea of half a century ago that the weak and ailing could be bled, blistered and salivated into a condition of health and vigor is happily exploded; but violent and prolonged purgation is still, to some extent, in vogue. We have impostors who are daring enough to offer to the world, as tonics and restoratives, the most destructive cathartics, unmodified by a single stimulating, soothing or restorative element. Compare the operation of one of these terrible nostrums with that of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are combined the three great curative elements—a tonic, an alterative, and an aperient. The former completely paralyzes the vital forces, so that nature can make no resistance to disease; the latter sustains the strength of the patient, while it restores the suspended functions of the secretory organs and relieves the bowels without violence or pain. It is simply a choice between restoration and prostration.

Hack, Hack, Hack! Cough, Cough, Cough!

Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of Bronchitis, from incipient consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent attack, or a lingering cough, the Discovery is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it, not by drying it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the irritation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous disease of the lungs is liable to result. 705

Ordinance No. 41,

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n25-1m

Local Matters.

Side-walks and Cross-walks.

I am glad to learn, that the city ordinance, with regard to shoveling snow, is to be carried into effect; and trust the City Marshal will do his duty faithfully and impartially. In this connection, allow me to make a few suggestions: To do the work of cleaning the pavements well, there are needed a wooden and an iron shovel. Half the people use only the wooden, leaving the snow that has been trodden in the middle of the walk to be first melted a little by day and then frozen at night, and thus we have in a few days a walk icy in spots, which is more dangerous than if all were covered by ice. Since the snows of the 17th and 18th, half the pavements are left with a snow-hump, which could just as well have been removed with an iron shovel propelled by some muscle.

Then nine-tenths of the walks are not shoveled wide enough. In the spring, when the snow melts freely, pedestrians are much troubled with water running on the walks. This can be entirely avoided by always shovelling the snow six inches beyond the curb-stone,—then when the snow melts, the water will run in the road.

Again, if the citizens are compelled, as they ought to be when they will not do it willingly, to shovel in front of their own premises—why should not the City see to it that their premises are well shoveled? I refer now to the cross-walks, which are under the care and belong to the City. After they get in a pretty bad condition, then comes along the Street Commissioner and his men and try to make the walking decent. Now, let the Commissioner as a city official, do as individuals have to do,—break away the cross-walks within six hours after the storm ceases, (it is not necessary to shovel them clean) or be fined for neglect of duty.

Mr. City Marshal: Please see that he does his duty. I know he will tell you if the cross-walks are cleared, it makes it bad for vehicles passing over them; but who cares if it does, when the rights of the walkers are placed in contrast with that of riders? Must I and 9899 others, who cannot afford to ride, be pushed aside and compelled to waddle through the slosh and scuffle over the ice, because 100 that can ride do once in a while get a jolt?

Let us have our side-walks well cleared and our cross-walks well broken out, and all pedestrians will be pleased. S. F.

Fashionable Wedding.

The fashionable wedding at the Rockingham House, Thanksgiving Day, was attended by about seventy invited guests. The bride was attired in pearl-colored silk, en traine, with a veil of white tulle and a wreath of orange blossoms. She also wore a very costly set of diamond jewelry, and was the recipient of a great many valuable presents, the display of which was elegant. Among these was a $3000 set of diamond jewelry from her father; an elaborate and massive tea set from Hon. John G. Sinclair; a set of Roman gold jewelry and chain from her mother; and an elegant silver pitcher, salver, goblets and bowl from Mrs. John G. Sinclair; a beautiful set of coral jewelry from her husband; magnificent book-case from the two Misses Sinclair; and about fifty other appropriate and valuable remembrances from relatives and friends in this city, New York, Boston, Concord, Manchester, Providence, Portland, Bangor, Newburyport and other places. The occasion of the marriage was also the celebration of the bride's 18th birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair left on the evening train for Boston, thence South and West, returning to this city in about a month.

The dinner provided for the wedding guests at the Rockingham House on the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day was elegant and sumptuous. Mine host Peirce left nothing undone to make the occasion a delightful one, and the spread was one of the most costly and dainty ever provided at a wedding in Portsmouth.

The W. T. A.

The Wolfe Tone Club had their fourth annual ball at Congress Hall, Thanksgiving eve. In the "repertoire" of dances were: "We feel better;" "Brick's choice;" "Boilermaker's choice;" "Tobey's favorite;" and "Ain't you glad you come to stop all night." Interspersed in the order of dances were the following "poemlets:"

"And ever may we bless the day
When Portsmouth's sons an l daughters
Come up ehse to celebrate,
And meet the W. T. Associates."

"Your pardon, dear friends, if there's aught to dread;
Your pardon, a thousand times o'er;
In hall-room and grove to please you we strove
And in future we'll do so some more."

"We spend this night on this glorious floor,
To meet again in seventy-four."

"Nothing Much."

A correspondent writes:

Ministers are supposed to be occupied by their spiritual duties on the Sabbath, but there are exceptions to all rules, as is proved by the following: In a quiet town not a hundred miles from Portsmouth one of the pastor (previous to going to his Sunday evening services) told a young gentleman where he boarded, that if he would go home with a certain young lady, that evening, he would present him with the best beaver hat in the city. The young man accepted the bet, went home with the lady, (to the discomfiture of her lover) and received the hat.

Our Pastor leads us on "To mansions in the skies."
He reaches out a beaver hat
"And bids us take the prize."

With more indications of snow, there is no especial reason why the spirit of mortal is proud.

Ship Frank Jones has sailed from New York for Liverpool with a grain and miscellaneous cargo.

To drown is not a Portsmouth boy's privilege as long as such cracking cold weather as that of the past week continues.

The new pastry and confectionery establishment will open in the easterly store of the Rogers building about Dec. 12th.

Two inches of snow on Thanksgiving Day improved the sleighing until it is all that can be wished. The sportsmen are cleaning their guns and a fox hunt is in order.

A select course of assemblies commences next Tuesday evening at Congress Hall under the supervision of Messrs. Peirce and Cunningham.

Tae concert by the U. S. Naval Band, assisted by Prof. Wallack, at Newburyport, Thanksgiving night, brought out a large and appreciative audience.

The Portsmouth & Dover Railroad track is completed and the opening of the Road for travel awaits the completion of the truss for the bridge at the Point.

The extreme cold weather has so far closed the upper Piscataqua to navigation that several schooners which were in waiting for cargoes of brick have returned to this city unladen.

Patents have been issued to Michael R. Perkins of Portsmouth for steering apparatus, railway rail, door check; and to Issachar Doeg of Newmarket for a device for dressing the sides of nuts.

Mr. Reuel W. Greeley, freight conductor on the Eastern railroad, had the first three fingers of his left hand jammed completely off while shackling cars at Turner's Island, Portland.

By reading an editorial in the Times of Friday, one is led to believe that war with Spain is the first step toward "a general resumption of business and a restoration of confidence in the banking and commercial world."

The state of the sidewalks in general is very bad indeed. The city has used such means as are conveniently within its power to remedy this source of danger and annoyance, but all the slippery places cannot be cleared. Pedestrians must be careful of their steps.

Medical Inspector S. F. Coues is ordered to the Colorado from this station. Lieut. Thomas S. Gardner is detached from the command of the Mayflower and is ordered to this navy yard. Medical Inspector Frederick E. Potter is detached from Receiving Ship Sabine and ordered to duty at the navy yard.

The day before Thanksgiving, two men, father and son, came to this city with a large number of turkeys and chickens, which having disposed of, put them in funds. They got around among the grogshops and were picked up by the police, who found $60 in the son's pocket and $40 in the possession of the father. They returned home rejoicing on Thanksgiving morning.

The Bolton Sporting Club of this city held their semi-annual reunion on Thanksgiving Day. Remarks were made by Mr. W. G. Gerry of Boston and other members. Officers were chosen for the ensuing year as follows: Grand Master, W. G. Gerry; Secretary, F. Bush; Treasurer, J. M. Salter; Directors, W. Stearns, A. W. Walker and C. O. Tiffany. A big talk was afterward indulged in. The next reunion takes place in July.

Hon. John D. Lyman writes the Dover Enquirer that no historian places the settlement of Odiorne's Point earlier than 1623. John Elwyn, Esq., whose researches entitle him to recognition as the best authority in matters historical hereabouts, says that it is evident that the settlement was made some six or eight years previous to 1623. La Pierre, the historical writer, who visited Odiorne's Point in the winter of 1623, has much to say about the settlement, speaking of it without reference to its being by any means recently settled at that time.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge of the business, my services have not been neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, but they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and talented tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N. H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS,

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief until I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by universal popularity, which returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND EHUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, and easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot risk longer without a trial of it.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well as entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by an appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has notled the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also enables them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pic ures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—its lofty without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic excellence and greatest general interest. To the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influence of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of Chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. Trade will be not reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the AGRICULTURAL JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultural Editors, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly interested in the Rural Affairs of the Country, and practical farmers in every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Multiplying of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the Producer; the Grower of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, production and, relative value of Rural Science, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—How to Live and when to Sell.

TERMS.—THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: Single Copy, one year, $2.50; FOUR DOLLARS, 158, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club Rate (Price, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.;

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the private name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. They, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable in The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which shall be announced to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND SIXTY-EIGHT (219,768) Machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in memiority and simplicity of construction, and durability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and subscribers, because it is absolutely new, and "has money in it." COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons, skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, at Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.
The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one, but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide & reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Beecher--Tilton--Woodhull.

[New York cor. Chicago Times.]

There is no sincere christian in the land that does not feel that the taint which has polluted the pulpit in Brooklyn should be purged away. As Theodore Tilton has succeeded in intimidating Mr. Beecher, and as he did not scruple to basely use his friends to accomplish that end, it is but just that his knavery and duplicity should be exposed. Either Henry Ward Beecher is the boldest libertine living, or Theodore Tilton is a malignant traducer and scandal-monger, and when he faced Plymouth Church and said that he had never made any charges against Henry Ward Beecher, he lied. The lie was so palpable, for I know that which I affirm, that I felt that "judgment had fled to brutish beasts, and men had lost their reason."

In the true story of the Beecher-Bowen-Tilton-Woodhull "scandal" there is an entire absence of those incidents which form the eddies in the current of married life. There is in it neither love, jealousy nor revenge. The parties for the most part are all humility and christian benignity. The only shield they offer to public attacks is their reputations, forgetting this has been a sorry year for christian statesmen and bankers. As if it were a special interposition of Divine Providence, a wonderful concatenation of causes has kept this case before the public, and strangely enough, the very causes, deliberately contrived and adopted to insure safety and concealment, have become the means of publicity. Leveling the very bulwarks of our social system in more than one city in this country, is a coterie of people who, in accordance with their epicine philosophy, believe that society has no laws that they, peculiarly constituted as they are, are bound to respect. Hence they are conspicuous for their contempt of morality. They are eccentric in manner, outre in dress, and decidedly coarse in features, but have an abundance of "cheek." The peace of hundreds of households has been destroyed by their pernicious doctrines, and, in the case of the Richardson-McFarland tragedy, that culminated in a marriage that shocked the moral sense of the community, the great high priest, Henry Ward Beecher, did not hesitate to put asunder what God had joined together.

Victoria Woodhull, unsuccessful as a broker, made a dead break from commercial circles and began skirmishing among the sisters of the free-love league. For some time they evaded her, but one by one she captured them and brought them to her little back parlor on Broad street, where she told them who were their affinities, and imparted much other information on the relations of the sexes. Living with her in a palatial mansion on Murray Hill were two husbands and a large family of dependents. The appearance of her paper occasioned much comment, particularly as her views on the social question were expressed in language more forcible than elegant. It is doubtful if the Woodhull had ever given the social problem much thought, or was in any way worried about the rights of women. As she expressed it, "I am building up a constituency;" and while she built it her second husband ran the paper. It was not long before the sisters of the free-love persuasion began making the Woodhull office their rendezvous. Vic. soon perceived that there was a scarcity of the long-haired element, and she began looking around for an apostle for the new dispensation, as she termed it. Among those radical liberals who had yet failed to render her that homage to which she felt herself entitled was Theodore Tilton, who had just then started the Golden Age, he having had a rupture with Bowen, of the Independent, of which paper Tilton had been editor. Tilton saw Woohull's game, but to use a vulgar phrase, wouldn't "tumble." Her next step was the giving out of vague hints in her paper, which were meant for Tilton's eye. These passed unnoticed. Then she published a communication in the World and Times, in which she said: "I know a clergyman of eminence in Brooklyn who lives in concubinage with the wife of another clergyman of equal eminence."

This last shot did the business, and this notorious couple became almost inseparable. At the mansion on Murray Hill Theodore was cock of the roost. Neither of the husbands murmured. There was no petty jealousies. It was free love, pure and unadulterated, and everybody was happy. Theodore lay down on a bed of roses, while Vicky fanned his Apollo brow with the odorous sandal-wood fan of indiscriminate sexuality. As lolled the brave and warlike Antony in the lap of the wistful Cleopatra, so lolled the disciple of Beecher in the lap of the woman who is "breaking the way for future generations." In a word it was red-hot.

The Woodhull was delighted when she discovered that her peculiar doctrines had found so eloquent a champion, and never before were talents so prostituted as were those of Theodore Tilton's in eulogizing this woman as one who nightly communed with the spirit of Demosthenes. As an evidence of what gushing twaddle a man can get off when he becomes the tool of a designing woman, the following is taken from the Golden Age of June 20, 1871:

"Victoria C. Woodhull is a younger heroine than most of the foregoing—having come into the cause after some of her elders had already become veterans. But her advocacy of woman's right to the ballot, as logically deduced from the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, has given her a national notoriety. If the woman's movement has a Joan of Arc, it is this gentle but fiery genius. She is one of the most remarkable women of her time. Little understood by the public, she is denounced in the most outrageous manner by people who do not appreciate her moral worth. But her sincerity, her truthfulness, her uprightness, her true nobility of character, are so well known to those who know her well, that she ranks, in the estimation of these, somewhat as St. Theresa does in the admiring thought of pious Catholics. She is a devotee—a religious enthusiast—a seer of visions—a devout communionist with the other world. She acts under spiritual influence, and, like St. Paul, is 'not disobedient to the heavenly vision.' Her bold social theories have startled many good souls, but anybody who, on this account, imagines her to stand below the whitest and purest of her sex, will misplace a woman who, in her moral integrity, rises to the full height of the highest."

Wherever Theodore went there went this new affinity, and the result was the Woodhull soon ingratiated herself with a lot of "hussey-guzzies" of uncertain age, who, though married, are not mated, and therefore give unusual prominence to their maiden names. To this shining light that had just flashed into their circle, these uncanny women gave their confidence, and with clairvoyant skill she extracted from them their inmost thoughts. A consummate actress, she could, while expatiating on woman's wrongs, work her hearers into a state of frenzy. It was while in one of these grand flights that she obtained from her fair-haired apostle the story of his woes, and it was then that a new field of operations opened to her view. That Henry Ward Beecher and Theodore Tilton should be estranged, was in direct antagonism to the fundamental principles of the new dispensation, and she brought Theodore to a realization of his true position, when, one evening, while reveling in one of their lustful orgies, she placed Theodore's hand within her magnanimous husband's (Blood's) and said:

"Two souls with but a single thought,
Two hearts that beat as one."

To make his conversion complete there was yet a final test required before the priestess would pronounce him of the true faith, of which Victoria gives the following account:

"Never did Theodore appear so grand and noble as when he related to me the incident of his meeting with his pastor, and the reconciliation that followed. Coming to me one evening, he said: 'Last evening, in crossing on the ferryboat, and while leaning on the railing, I felt instinctively that my pastor was near me. I walked over to where a man was sitting with his head buried in his hands. I raised the slouch hat that concealed his face, and taking his arms, said, you have nothing to fear from me. I felt, as I put his arm within mine and we walked up the hill together, that I had grown a foot taller.'"

To have a private meeting with Henry Ward Beecher, where she could uninterruptedly discuss the length and breadth of matters, would be to her the consummation of her most sanguine hopes, and she set about it with all the pertinacity and adroitness of a diplomat. What was this terrible secret that this remorseless and audacious adventuress possessed, that she could with such unblushing effrontery compel the most notable clergyman in the land to gratify her desires, no matter how whimsical or capricious? Well to continue—Theodore could never wait to communicate verbally, and hence it was necessary to send the following:

"My Dear Victoria—I have arranged with Frank that you shall see Mr. Beecher at my house on Friday night. He will attend a meeting at the church till 10 o'clock, and will give you the rest of the evening as late as you desire. You may consider this fixed. Meanwhile, on this sunshiny day I salute you with a good morning. Peace be with you. Yours, Theodore."

The Woodhull's description of this meeting is inimitable. She tells it with ravenous delight, and considers it the proudest moment of her life. She pronounces Mr. Beecher a man of many sterling qualities, and says that at this interview she came to a perfect understanding with him. Now, while the new social movement was red-hot, and its new converts effervescing, Vic. hastened to appear before the public, backed up by her distinguished colleagues. While Steinway Hall was being filled with unbelievers, she was importuning Henry Ward Beecher in Brooklyn to come over with her and give the new dispensation a send-off.

It was here that Woodhull was terrible in her wrath, when she found that the great preacher was about to fail her, and she left the house at which she had met Mr. Beecher by appointment, vowing that if she went alone before the crowded audience then waiting to greet her, she would introduce some startling topics in her lecture pot down on the bills.

Mr. Tilton, who was present at the interview, hastened after her in company with a friend, and introduced her to the audience. This was on the night of November 21, 1871.

During the winter the free-love thermometer kept up among the nineties, but as summer approached Theodore began adopting the freezing process. The Liberal movement absorbed his attention, and he became its most eloquent champion.

Vic. soon perceived that her charm was no longer potent. She had thought that with the failure of the Liberal movement her apostle would return to his allegiance; but not so. Rumors of another affinity having disturbed their relations annoyed her, and one day she had struck off slips of a scandalous article entitled "Tit for Tat," in which she discussed the relations of a score of people of both sexes, and which she threatened to publish. When her paper suspended it was hoped that Woodhull would move her family West, but she was only crouching for a more terrible spring.

Finally, she told a tale that, true enough, did "fill the land, covering it like a mist," which will never be dispelled until the miserable wretches who for years have been masquerading in the cloak of religion, are held up to public derision and scorn. The Woodhull tribe were thrown into jail, where they were daily visited by Marplot Train, who, anxious for some kind of a revolution, issued a blasphemous sheet, and to keep these fanatics apart, and thereby prevent a saturnalia of filth and impiety, Train was thrown into the Tombs. Blundering officials, in their eagerness to whitewash vice in high places, usurped the law, thereby creating a morbid sympathy for these moral pests.

And now I would like to say why it is that I write these lines. It can be said in a few words:

Theodore Tilton and I were at school together, and together we started up the path of journalism. Consequently, I felt a sympathy for him that can hardly be expressed, when I saw him battling, as I then thought, against a legion of foes. I went to him with words of comfort, which he responded to by donning a mask and acting a part. In piteous tones, he told me the story of his woe.

In 1870, Bowen and Tilton made a compact to drive Beecher from his pulpit. This they did not do; but in 1872, they, with Beecher, signed a triple-compact, in order that they might continue to traffic on religion. They agreed to wipe out the past, and Bowen and Tilton condoned the crimes that involved the honor of their families. Tilton kept a printed copy of the letter which he had delivered up to Bowen, which found its way to the Eagle office. To save Beecher, the covenant was given to the press, and it was at this stage of the scandal that Bowen endeavored to form a coalition with Victoria Woodhull. Too cowardly to use the evidence already in his possession and thereby dirty his own nest, he appointed a meeting at Victoria Woodhull's house, and, unfortunately for him, after an interval of a week, accompanied by Mr. H. B. Claflin, he visited the free-love priestess, and found to his surprise that her admiration for Beecher was unbounded. Bowen should have known that delays in love or war are dangerous. At the same time that Vic. was manifesting an angelic delicacy regarding the contents of the terrible letters, Beecher defied Bowen in the following letter:

"To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

"In a long and active life in Brooklyn, it has rarely happened that the Eagle and myself have been in accord on questions of common concern to our fellow-citizens. I am for this reason impelled to acknowledge the unsolicited confidence and regard of which the columns of the Eagle of late bear testimony. I have just returned to the city to learn that application has been made to Mrs. Victoria Woodhull for letters of mine supposed to contain information respecting certain infamous stories against me. I have no objection to have the Eagle state in any way it deem fit, that Mrs. Woodhull, or any other person or persons, have my cordial consent to publish them. In this connection, and at this time, I will only add that the stories and rumors which have for some time past been circulated about me are grossly untrue, and I stamp them in general and in particular as utterly false. Respectfully. Henry Ward Beecher."

In fact, Beecher made the publication of the letters the criterion of his innocence or guilt. Little more remains to be said regarding these sanctimonious teachers of morality. Bowen, crushed and despised, crawls to his hole like a poisoned rat, and sells his paper, much to the delight of Kinsella. The Eagle, perched on the shoulders of Beecher and Tilton, shrieks victory! and flaps its wings, while they embrace each other. At this final tableau the Plymouth pagans roll their eyes up at their fleshy idol, unmindful of the fact that Trinity, of New York, had its Onderdonk, and Tremont Temple of Boston its Kallock, and they were cast out.

Goethe Fairly Beaten.

The German poet, Goethe, had an intense dislike for curious visitors, who had no claim on his attention, but obtruded themselves on his quiet or his hours of study. He often treated them rudely, and sent them away without ceremony.

But an American student proved himself more than a match for the poet in his crabbed mood. He called one evening when Goethe was at supper, and the great man, eager to get rid of the intruder, walked into the parlor and sat down in a chair in the middle of the room, without saying a word to his visitor or even looking at him.

But the Yankee youth had a keen sense of humor, and was not to be bluffed off in that style. He coolly rose, took a candle in his hand, and walked round the poet, inspecting every part of him closely, and then put down a florin on the table as payment for the show, and walked away.

Goethe's sense of the ludicrous was too strong to keep silent. He burst into a hearty laugh, called the student back, and they had a good social time together.

Warmoth's Last Coup d'Etat.

[Washington Chronicle.]

It is rumored through the fashionable circles, squares, and triangles of Washington, that that fascinating youth, Governor Warmoth, of Louisiana, has been taken captive by Miss Banks, daughter of N. P. Banks, and that an engagement threatens early marriage. Gov. Warmoth is a modest man. Indeed his painful diffidence has been the great obstacle of his success, socially, politically, and financially. Before he can look a lady in the face he has to stimulate with whiskey, and when he pops the question it is preceded by the popping of so much champagne that next day nothing is left of the affair in his gigantic intellect but a bad headache.

Spain Accedes.

Admiral Polo received a despatch from his government at Madrid directing him to say to Mr. Fish that the Spanish government agrees to the demand of the United States, so far as to surrender the Virginius and the surviving prisoners captured with her, and to salute the American flag. This latter ceremony has by mutual agreement been postponed until the 25th of December, and may be modified by negotiations still in progress. This is regarded by our administration as a complete settlement of the difficulties and on the basis of our demands. The most cordial feelings have continued throughout between Mr. Fish and the Spanish minister, and nearly all the later negotiations have been carried on without the intervention of General Sickles. The point still undetermined is whether the Spanish Government will be able to enforce its mandates in Cuba. The special reservation is made that Spain withholds the right to prove, within a specified time, that the United States have violated the neutrality laws in the matter of the Virginius, both as to ownership and register.

Readables.

Tweed's counsel were brought before Judge Davis, Saturday, for contempt of court. Judge Fullerton read an apology, reiterating that it was not the intention to show disrespect to the court. Judge Davis imposed a fine of $350 on Judge Fullerton, John Graham and Willard & Bartlett. On the junior counsel he inflicted no penalty.

Robert Porter, another of the Stokes jurors, has been sentenced to two months' imprisonment and fined $100, for contempt of court.

A Lewes, Delaware, special says that during the storm, which the monitor Manhattan encountered on Thursday, the sea swept over her from stem to stern, upsetting the man at the wheel and carrying away the log book. A leak was sprung under the turret, through which the water poured with alarming rapidity. Subsequently the monitor became easier, but being in a leaking condition and her bilge pumps having become choked, and everything and everybody drenched through, she returned to the Delaware breakwaier and gave up going to Key West. The Manhattan will propably be ordered to Philadelphia for repairs.

Tweed has been sent to Blackwell's Island.

A desperate fight occurred on Thursday in a court-room at Harrodsburg, Ky., between parties interested in a suit, three men being killed and two wounded.

Miss Nellie Grant will be one of the Martha Washington girls at the Centennial tea-party.

Three persons living in an alley off Hermin street, Montreal—a man, woman and boy—died on Thursday night by drinking from a bottle which they thought contained whiskey. Five more are suffering, some of whom are not expected to live. The woman was a dissolute character named Mary Jane Drennan.

A man out West was brought before court charged with cuffing a servant girl. He urged an extenuation that the girl would leave the door open, and after he had told her to close it over six hundred times he cuffed her. The Judge discharged him on the ground that leaving a door open was a technical assault, as it involved bodily injury—colds, coughs, and sneezes—and the cuff given by the defendant was done in self-defence.

The experiments with the Wiard gun were satisfactory in every respect, the shot penetrating a fifteen-inch wrought iron plate and twelve feet of solid gravel.

At a meeting of the New York chamber of commerce, the majority report of the committee on specie payments, which calls upon the government to redeem its pledges and resume specie payments, was voted down, after a long debate. The meeting adjourned without taking a vote on the minority report, which recommends that the national banks of New York city shall have power to establish a uniform rate of discount, and that Congress shall authorize the issue of $100,000,000 in United States currency bonds convertible into legal tenders.

The Providence Journal thinks that our flag "was a deal more dishonored while flying at the mast-head of the Virginius than in being taken down by the boarding officer from the Tornado."

The effect of the late liquor law in Indiana is that wives give their husbands written permits to drink, good until revoked.

Miss Neilson is horrified at the discovery that she is getting fat. She can't make her clothes meet on her because she has so much meat on her.

The great question is solved. William Patterson owned the Virginius, and Spain was the man that struck him. Nobody but the Rochester Dem. Chron. could have solved this.

Gath writes to the Chicago Tribune that "nothing made Stokes happen in upon men like Fisk and Gould, but a handsome face, which led him to be fast and forward, and require money all the time to meet his extravagant way of life. The loss of his wife, who left him to go abroad, wrote no wrinkle on his azure brow; for he lacked sensibilities, and grew old without cares. Fisk's gross nature and unfaithfulness placed the insinuating Stokes in the confidence of Mansfield, and she pleaded the needs and deserts of the false one upon their common dupe. When the scales fell from Jim Fisk's eyes, he crushed the boy whom he had somewhat befriended. Then followed law-breaking resentment and revenge. The mighty pedler died in the same square, and made as much mean commiseration as Bill Poole, seventeen years before. Who that reads this tragedy over, and look into the surroundings of the parties, would care to live in such society?"

State News.

The recent gale at Moultonborough was said to be the severest since that of 1820, when the church was blown down. The wind demolished the Thomas Shannon and the N. V. Shannon barns, unroofed the house of Edwin Sinclair and partially unroofed that of Asa Clement. A flag staff was blown down and other damage done.

Fillmore Wilson of Franconia, having separated from two companions in returning from a bear hunt, got benumbed with cold and lay down to sleep under a great rock. His friends became alarmed and hunted for him successfully before it was too late. Another hour, and there would have been small chance of rallying him.

Oliver Wright, living in West Lebanon, was run over on Wednesday afternoon about three miles below White River Junction. He was lying on the track and supposed to be intoxicated. He was about 30 years old, and leaves a wife and two children.

The Concord Monitor thinks the republicans won a handsome victory at the Dover election. Rather an unhandsome one, we should say.

The Manchester prohibitionists will make independent nominations for municipal officers. Senseless people, these chaps!

W. S. Pillsbury has started up his shoe-factory at Derry Deport, on full time, and employs all his old hands and fifty new stitchers and bottomers.

Temperance Convention.

The Annual Convention, under the auspices of the "N. H. State Temperance Union," will be held at Eagle Hall, in Concord, on Thursday, Dec. 18, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. All Churches, Sabbath Schools, and Temperance Organizations in this State are invited to send not less than three nor more than seven delegates, each, to this Convention. In the afternoon, the officers of the Union will be elected, and the question considered of altering Article VIII of the Constitution, relating to the time of holding the annual meeting of the Union. Railroad Tickets, at two cents per mile each way, will be found at Portsmouth, Newmarket Junction, Manchester, Nashua, Salem and Goffstown, on the Concord Road and branches. Conductors on the several trains on the Northern, Concord & Claremont Roads, and branches, will sell tickets to and from the convention at reduced rates. Return tickets over the B. C. & Montreal Road will be furnished at the Convention. Several popular speakers from abroad are expected, such as John F. Coles and Fred A. Kent, of Boston; S. C. Knights, of Cambridgeport; J. K. Osgood, Dr. Geo. E. Brickett, R. S. Fogg, H. M. Bryant and Capt. Cyrus Sturtevant, of Maine; H. S. Woodworth, of Providence R. I.; John B. Perkins, of Hollis; Francis Murphy and others. A mass meeting will be held on the evening of the 17th of December, at the same hall.

How Tom Scott Does It.

[Wendell Phillips's Last Letter.]

The prairie farmers have to burn their corn because they cannot get it to market; and, lacking a market, they lack many of the luxuries and conveniences of life. Scott learns of their situation and tells them he will build them railroads across the country, anywhere. He says: "I will put your corn into the hands of the Malays, and they will give you coffee; into the hands of the Chinese, and they will give you silks; into the hands of the English and they will give you cutlery; and the French shall send you the beautiful things of Paris. All that they will ask will be a little of your corn." Scott takes a handful of gold, goes to Washington, buys up Congress, and as he moves across the country the very waving of his garments sweeps down the State Legislatures. The railroads are built, and the people say: "Blessed be the God that made the brains of Tom Scott."

Business Notices.

Vegetine has never failed to effect a cure of all mercurial diseases.

The Man of Enterprise creates; the weak imitator tries to copy him. Does any sensible man suppose that legions of "Buchus" so-called, that infest the drug stores, possess the real merit of Dr. Helmbold's Genuine Extract? Any sufferer from Kidney Complaint, Dropsy, Diabetes, or other urinary diseases, in male or female, will detect the difference at once by the result. Helmbold's cures: the others fail. The genuine bears Dr. Helmbold's signature. For sale by all druggists.

Pernicious Purgatives.

The brilliant idea of half a century ago that the weak and ailing could be bled, blistered and salivated into a condition of health and vigor is happily exploded; but violent and prolonged purgation is still, to some extent, in vogue. We have impostors who are daring enough to offer to the world, as tonics and restoratives, the most destructive cathartics, unmodified by a single stimulating, soothing or restorative element. Compare the operation of one of these terrible nostrums with that of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are combined the three great curative elements—a tonic, an alterative, and an aperient. The former completely paralyzes the vital forces, so that nature can make no resistance to disease; the latter sustains the strength of the patient, while it restores the suspended functions of the secretory organs and relieves the bowels without violence or pain. It is simply a choice between restoration and prostration.

Hack, Hack, Hack! Cough, Cough, Cough!

Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of Bronchitis, from incipient Consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent attack, or a lingering cough, the Discovery is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it, not by trying it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the irritation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a Cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous disease of the lungs is liable to result. 705

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

Ordinance No. 41,

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Bjornson's American Colony.

Bjornson, the Norwegian poet and novelist, who announced some time ago that he would leave his native country and settle in the United States, is now making the final preparations for embarking with a colony of 700 Norwegians for this country. This accession to the immigrant population in this country, according to the statements published by Mr. Bjornson in the papers of Christiania and Trondjhem, will far surpass in character and means previous bands of immigrants from the Norseland. Two hundred of Bjornson's immigrants are stalwart young married men, and the aggregate means of the colony will not fall short of $400,000. No definite point in this country has been selected for these 700 immigrants; but it is more than probable that they will settle in New Jersey, near Vineland, Mr. Bjornson having negotiated some time past for a tract of land near that place. The colony consists mostly of young farmers; but among its members is a physician, and a young Christiania journalist, Mr. Steenson, who intends to publish a Norwegian paper as soon as the immigrants have made a fair beginning in their new homes. Bjornson himself will be the clergyman of the colony, all the members belonging to the Lutheran faith. Mr. Bjornson has caused all those who enrolled their names on his list to sign a solemn temperance pledge, and his young companions look with great enthusiasm for their transfer to American shores. A peculiar feature of the constitution of the colony, as drawn up by Bjornson, is that the members pledge themselves to abstain from legislation, and to leave the decision of all causes of dissension to a court of arbitration, that is to be elected once a year. The immigrants will leave Gothenburg about the 1st of January, by a large Swedish vessel specially chartered for the purpose.

A Sad Case.

The Boston Advertiser says: A case of the most abject poverty which, in a measure, serves to show the extremes in which many of the poorer classes are placed, was reported by a police officer at the Home for Little Wanderers a few days since. The officer, in the performance of his duties, had his attention called to two half-clad children, wandering about the streets with bare heads and feet, in search of cold victuals. On investigation he found that these children had a brother and sister at home in bed with no clothes to put on. When the two became chilled and tired they went home and changed places with the others, who then donned the rags and took their turn at begging. The mother was a widow, and she was obliged to leave the children every day for her work in another part of the city. By her labor she earned $3 a week, two of which she gave for the rent of the room she and her children occupied. This family of five were thus obliged to live on $1 a week and such morsels of food as the children picked up from day to day. But help has reached them at last.

A Fair Suggestion.

A good story reaches me from the north. It seems that in a certain Scotch country parish a church officer filled the office of grave digger for the long space of fifty years. Suspicion had long been entertained that he was in the habit of helping himself out of the collection plate whenever opportunity permitted. It was difficult to prove this. At last, however, the sum of £1 was abstracted from a missionary box which stood in the vestry, and everything conbined to point out this man as the culprit. The elders told the minister that something must really be done. The minister said: "Leave him to me, and I'll see what can be done. The following Sabbath, after the forenoon service, the minister was taking off his gown and bands, and being alone in the vestry with the suspected man, he thought the opportunity was too good to be lost, so he said, "Andrew, have you heard of the money that is missing from the box?" "Oh, ay," said Andrew, "I was hearing something about it." "Andrew!" continued the other, very gravely, "the matter lies between you and me. We are the only two who have access to the box. Either you or I must be the thief." "'Deed, sir, replied the imperturbable Andrew, "it's just as you say; we're the only two that has had access to the box, and I think the best way'll be for you to pay the half and I pay theither, and say nae mair about it."

Immigration.

The report of the bureau of statistics state that great advantages have ensued from circulating the edition of a pamphlet containing information relative to this country for emigrants from Great Britain, France and Germany, and the necessity is felt for an edition in the Scandinavian and Slavic languages for distribution in Sweden Norway, Russia, Poland, Bohemia, Silesia and Moravia, from which countries there would be a heavy tide of emigration if the necessary information was disseminated. The number of male immigrants from Great Britain for the fiscal year was 51,121. The inquiries of parties who desire to purchase lands either for themselves or for small companies of intending immigrants have been so extensive as to considerably increase the correspondence of the bureau. The total number of foreign birth who in the year which ended June 30, 1873, decided to make the United States their future home is 459,803, of whom 275,792 were males and 184,011 females, being an increase of 51,897 or 13 1-2 per cent. over the immigration of the fiscal year 1872. The largest increase from any country was 25,734, or 18 1-5 per cent. from Germany, while from England the excess over the previous year was 5037 or 7 1-4 per cent, and from Ireland 8612 or 12 1-2 per cent. The increase from France was nearly 59 per cent. being 9317 in 1872, and 14,798 in 1873. If the average value of an immigrant be $800, the economical value of this addition to our population in the past amounts to $367,841,400. It is respectfully submitted that so large an augmentation of our national wealth would justify the expenditure of a sum sufficient for the diffusion of such information as will serve to increase the volume of this tide of immigration.

The World Still Rolling.

[N. Y. Cor. St. Louis Republican.]

I don't know that it's worth my while to post this letter. Somewhere during the day things are coming to an end, according to the Adventists up in Connecticut. There they wait on an island a few miles out of Hartford, expecting to be caught up in the air, while I and the other sinners are fried in our own gravy; this earth and our ashes passes away and a new one is built to drop the elect down on again. Connecticut is a great place for going in white nightgowns. I can remember way back in the last century sitting on a high board fence and throwing rotten pears at a family all done up in ruffled ascension robes, who sat all day in a hot sun, on Boston rocking-chairs, singing hymns. At that time the Brooklyn millionaire, Mr. S. B. Chittenden, kept a dry goods establishment known as the Long Brick Store, corner of Main and Morgan, in Hartford; and so wild was he about the world's coming to an end that the unbelieving public traded on his faith, and just took away his goods without money and with price, for weeks before that important day of destruction. Then, when the world still stood, and no need of a night-gown presented itself during the days that moved steadily on, Mr. Chittenden concluded the things of earth were worth attending to, and this ever-recurring last day finds him one of the wealthiest and wisest citizens the country can boast.

—Sir Fletcher Norton, who was somewhat ill-mannered, when pleading before Lord Mansfield on some question of manorial rights, chanced unfortunately to say: "My Lord, I can illustrate the point by an instance in my own person; I myself have two little manors." The Judge immediately interposed, with one of his blandest smiles: "We all know it, Sir Fletcher."

—A farmer on a train between Philadelphia and Washington, having occasion to make a memorandum, turned to a quiet gentleman behind him with: "Neighbor, got a pencil?" The pencil was promptly forthcoming, used, and handed back with a "thank you, neighbor." The "neighbor" was President Grant.

—Sitka owes $150. But there are only seventy cents in the treasury.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Strangulings, Pains in in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; and it had all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

JAMES E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief until I used the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners defying to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Unquestionably the best illustrated work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it goes, and what influence, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with it (it has not let the times, should such be its conductors to regret it, with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the finest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals or a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unprovided—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more cultivated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The Heart of the West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or to some of the local canvassers, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Profits of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Grower—the Producers of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $3; TWO COPIES, $5; THREE, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry!

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; everyone who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for 5 each, or $20, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and salesmen, because it is absolutely NEW, and "has money in it." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
For all the Purposes of a Family Physic
CURING
Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN BLUE ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

Mr. Proctor's Lecture.

The final lecture of Mr. Proctor's very instructive and entertaining course was devoted to the study of the star groups and the discussion of the various theories which have been devised as to the form of the universe and arrangement of wondrous systems of which it is composed. Mr. Proctor said that he felt constrained, in this his last lecture, to thank the audience for the attention and interest they had shown in the course. The subject of astronomy, although extremely fascinating, yet involved acquirement of many facts in its pursuit, and it must sometimes appear very dry. He had been warned by one who had spoken to a Boston audience, not to make the lectures too simple and elementary, and since he had reached here he had been repeatedly cautioned to the same effect. But he had had many doubts on the matter, and when he came here and saw the size of the hall he feared that, as the lectures progressed, he should find his audience growing smaller and beautifully less. But to his doubts he had a thousand answers. The lecturer began the subject of the evening by picturing to his audience the immensity of the scheme upon which the universe is built. We see the stars in the heavens about us, he said, and we see thousands and tens of thousands of them. We recognize them as suns like ours, differing only in magnitude. Compared with many of them our sun is as significant as Jupiter when compared with him, or the earth with Jupiter or Saturn. We cannot but suppose, too, that about such a body as Sirius there must be others revolving similar to the planets in our solar system. If such a body as our earth were situated at the same distance from Sirius as the earth is from the sun it would receive three hundred times the heat, which would make it so hot as to burn everything upon its surface. In order that the heat should be equal to what we receive it, must travel about Sirius at the same distance that Uranus is from the sun. If there were other planets they must be at an incomparably greater distance than Neptune. The velocity with which they move must be enormous. With a universe built on a scheme so stupendous as this, all our previous methods of measurement fail, and it seems almost useless for man to enquire into its plan. Very few astronomers have dealt with it, yet it is the very essence of astronomy. The two Herschels, Struve, Madler and the lecturer himself are the only ones who have engaged themselves intimately with its investigation. Many have speculated upon it, and Kepler among the number, devised a theory which is quite well known. A picture representing Kepler's idea was then thrown upon the wall by the lecturer. The sun was seen in the centre with its planets about it, outside of this the fixed stars, and enclosing the whole a shell of stars. This shell Kepler believed to be 2000 times as far from the sun as Saturn is, and its thickness he calculated to be about seventy miles. It seems strange, he said, that Kepler, to whom we owe the solution of the scheme of our solar system, should have held a theory so obviously absurd as this.

Mr. Proctor next spoke of the theories of Wright and Lambert, Herschel and Struve, who supposed the universe to resemble a flat ring or disc cloven through one-half of its circumference, each assuming a different arrangement of the stars in the system. Herschel's theory was based upon observations made by his method of star gauging. He pointed his telescope toward different parts of the heavens, and from the number of stars which he saw in that direction, as compared with the number he saw in other directions, he argued as to their distribution and arrangement. This method he however abandoned, for he saw that the stars existed in clusters about us, and that consequently by this means we should not get a correct outline. So he adopted another plan of resolving the stars by telescopes of different powers, those seen by the least powerful telescopes being nearest and those by the most powerful being supposed to be farther from us. Mr. Proctor showed that if this were followed out it would stretch our system out to an extent which we could not believe probable. Struve's theory held that the stars were aggregated toward a central zone, but that portions of them extend infinitely in every direction off into depths unfathomable. In entering upon this investigation Mr. Proctor laid aside all these theories and adopted a plan of mapping the stars with a view to study their arrangement as thus seen. Several pictures of these maps were projected upon the screen. The irregular grouping of the stars was pointed out. The Milky Way was seen to be the richest, yet in this there were occasionally spots that were quite barren, and in the space outside there were large areas where scarcely a star was visible. So great is the difference between the portion of the heavens outside and inside of the Milky Way, that it would take 4000 new stars to make the outside appear as rich. One map especially, of those exhibited by the lecturer, excited the admiration of the audience. It was a map of 324,000 stars arranged in the same order as in the heavens. These were all observed by Argelander through a 2 1-2 inch telescope, and it took 400 hours for Mr. Proctor to construct the map. Pictures of the nebulæ followed these, and illustrated the gradual resolution of the nebulæ into stars. Rifts in these were also seen where the stars had been formed. As none of these nebulous clouds are seen about the Milky Way, it has been believed that they were different from the star groups, but we see that two streams are flowing down from Aquarius and the River to the Magellanic clouds, where we find these nebulæ and star systems collected together. This points to a connection between them. Star motion is of importance, too, in the study of the universal system. Herschel first pointed out the fact that our sun and the other bodies appear to be moving toward a point in Hercules, and subsequent observation has supported him in his statement. Mr. Proctor constructed a map to show the motion of the stars. He attached an arrow to each of them in the direction of their motion and assigned a period of 36,000 years for the passage of the length of the arrow. From these maps it was seen that many of the stars tended in the same direction. From the study of the stars in the Great Bear, he predicted that five of them were moving in the same direction. Soon after Mr. Huggins applied the spectroscopic method of measurement and found the prediction fulfilled. As the result of his study Mr. Proctor believed our knowledge of the form of the plan of our universe quite meagre. A diagram of what he conceived it to be was exhibited, and showed great complexity. Individual stars and vast starry clusters mingled with sinuous starry streams and nebulous masses, and areas rich in stars and brilliant with light were balanced by barren spots, where little light was shed. In conclusion, Mr. Proctor said we have passed from the study of our earth to that of Jupiter and Saturn; then to the sun; then we reached the solar system; next the Sirius system; each system we find to be a mere pattern of a greater system and this a mere corner of the universe.

Congress

Assembled on Monday. Senator Crozier of Kansas was sworn in. Senator Sumner presented his Civil Rights bill.

The call of the House roll found 278 members present.

The vote for Speaker resulted as follows: Blaine 190, Wood 77, scattering 4. All the republican nominees were chosen.

Another Ocean Tragedy.

Steamship Ville du Havre, which left New York for Havre, Nov. 15th, collided on the 3d with British ship Loch Earn, from London for New York, and sunk twelve minutes afterward. Eighty-seven persons were saved and 226 were drowned. Ten of the 87 were women, fourteen others were passengers, and the remainder were the captain and 52 of the crew. The Loch Earn lowered three boats and rendered all the service possible. Among the lost were Judge Peckham and wife, of Albany, Henry Belknap, a New York merchant, A. Cramer and A. B. McCreery, capitalists, of Troy, Henry Sigourney and family, Charles Mixter, wife and daughter, and Nathaniel Curtis, of Boston, and Miss Swift, of New Bedford.

Only 28 below zero at Bethlehem, Monday morning!

The public debt statement shows an increase for the month of November of $9,000,000.

U. S. Senator Casserly, of California, has resigned, much to the consternation of the democrats. Governor Booth and Ex-Governor Haight are candidates for the vacancy.

Gen. Sherman states that the number of enlisted men in the army is 29,505, 495 less than the number limited by law. Only 19,652 are fit for military duty.

The protocol is signed, but the war preparations continue. Judging by the activity in naval matters the Government has little faith that Castelar will be able to carry out his agreement.

At the republican House caucus, Saturday evening, Blaine and McPherson were unanimously renominated for Speaker and Clerk. Sergeant-at-arms Ordway was also renominated, as was Buxton, the door-keeper. Sherwood, of Michigan, was nominated for postmaster.

That gentle soul, Mrs. Mary L. Carpenter, having been elected school superintendent of Rockford County, Ill., was serenaded by a brass band, made a speech and asked the collected crowd in to a lunch.

The Secretary of the Navy asks for $19,252,235 for the next fiscal year.

From the report of Hon. J. H. Ela, Fifth Auditor of the Treasury, we learn that the expenses of collecting internal revenue taxes for this district for the year ending June 30, 1873, were $5,747.92. Amount assessed, $241,845.87; amount collected, $197,440.96. The amount collected in the other two districts of the State was but $128,890.18. The compensation of Collector A. H. Young was $1605.23; clerk hire, $400; storekeepers, $1044; assistant assessors, $2724.06.

After being taken to Blackwell's Island, Tweed was asked the usual questions by the recording clerk, to which he answered that he was fifty years old; occupation, a "statesman;" no religion; but as his family are Protestants he was entered as a Protestant. He weighed 263 pounds. He was taken to a bath and thoroughly cleansed, then had his head shaven in penitentiary style and was arrayed in the full striped uniform. He had two letters from New York city physicians, recommending that he be placed in the hospital, but after examination by the penitentiary physician, he was remanded to a common cell like all other felons, and numbered thirty-four. The jacket given him to wear is known as the "larceny jacket." His son stayed by him until he was led away to his cell, when he and a few friends and reporters left the island.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 96.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

FIRST REPRESENTATION OF PORTSMOUTH IN A LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.—In 1641 the town as to its settlement was eighteen years old. That year New Hampshire was united with Massachusetts. There was no legislative body in New Hampshire before the union, but after this, the four towns in the Province were entitled to a representation in the General Court, held in Boston. The Representatives were called Deputies. The following served from Portsmouth: [The spelling is as found on the Records of the General Court.]

1642, 1643, Jam. Parker, 1644, Stee Winthropp. Then ten years passed without any being sent. 1654, Brian Pendleton. Next three years not any. 1658, Brian Pendleton, next year none. 1660, Henry Sherburn and Brian Pendleton. One was chosen in May the other in December. Probably there were two sessions that year and there was an election to each. 1661, 1663, Brian Pendleton, the year between not any. 1664, none; 1665, Richard Cutt; 1666, Nath'l Fryer; 1667, '68, E'las Stileman. One of the years the spelling is Styleman. 1669, '70, Richard Cutt; 1671, Elias Stileman; 1672, two were sent, Capt. Ri. Cutt, Rich. Martyn; 1673, Elias Styleman, first session; second, Rich. Martyn. 1674, '75, Capt. Rich. Cutt. 1676, Richard Cutt, second session, John Cutt. 1677, Capt. Elias Styleman; 1678, none; 1679, Richard Martyn. And then New Hampshire was made a separate province.

In 1672 it is seen that two were sent. Possibly the town was not entitled to two. If not, one might have failed to attend the session through, and the other filled the vacancy.

Richard Cutt and John Cutt, named as Deputies, were brothers. They were from Wales and settled in Portsmouth somewhat early. Both were large land holders, owning for a time a considerable part of what is now the compact part of Portsmouth. But then, much of it was woodland or pasturage, with here and there cultivated plots. Richard Cutt died in 1676. John was Provincial Governor in 1680 and part of the next year. He was the first after the separation from Massachusetts.

His health was poor much of the time he was Chief Magistrate. His will is dated May 6, 1680. It commences thus: "I John Cutt, being in perfect memory, but crazy and infirm in body through many weaknesse's by reason of age and otherwise," etc. He was a member of what is now the North church and gave it as a legacy fifteen pounds; thirty pounds to the poor of the town; one hundred pounds toward the exertion of a free school and "fivety" pounds to Rev. Joshua Moody, pastor of the church. He died in 1681 and was buried in the small burying place on the west side of Green Street. The descendants of the Cutt family in time spelled the name Cutts.

Secretary Belknap's Report.

The annual report of the Secretary of War shows that the estimates for this department for the year ending June 30, 1874, were $33,826,378, while the appropriation was $32,917,971. He says that a large list of expenses are included in the appropriations which should not be classed as military, such as freedmen's hospitals, signal stations, light houses, &c. He recommends the enlistment of boys as field musicians. He suggests the passage of a law to punish minors who enlist and then claim discharge under the baby act. The order prohibiting any officers visiting Washington during the session of Congress will continue to be rigidly enforced. He compliments the efficiency of the troops in Texas Further legislation is necessary to properly define the scope of the law relative to pay of officers covering commutation of forage, fuel, etc. All departments occupied by the army throughout the country have been thoroughly inspected during the year, and the disbursements have been made without a defalcation.

Of fifty railroads, which at the close of the war purchased material of the War Department to the amount of $7,500,000, thirty roads have paid their debts in full. The other twenty owe over $4,500,000. The contracts for headstones for soldiers' graves aggregate $770,045. He recommends tobacco as a part of the army rations and an increase in number of paymasters. The work of coast and harbor defence has been well advanced under the Engineer Corps and much valuable information was collected in Europe relative to the torpedo system of defence.

The report of the board to examine the system of breech-loading arms, recommending Springfield breech-loaders, has been adopted, and hereafter Springfield breech-loading muskets and carbines will be used in the army. He asks an appropriation of half a million dollars for the manufacture, during the year, of 35,000 of these arms. He recommends an increased appropriation of a million and a half dollars for great guns and sea-coast defences. The heavy rifled guns ordered in 1872 will be finished this winter.

There are ninety-two signal stations—seventy-eight in the United States, eleven in Canada, three in West Indies, and others will soon be established.

He closes by recommending the revival of a law authorizing the appointment of a historian of the rebellion.

—If your big boy thrashes my little boy, and you won't call him to account for it, I will. If you are a "struggling young Republic," it don't make any difference, that don't help to cure my boy's bruises, nor excuse you for your incapacity to make your boy behave himself. And that's just what Uncle Sam ought to say to Senor Castelar.

Report of the Secretary of the Navy.

The Secretary of the Navy in his report to the President says:—There are now in the navy 165 vessels carrying explosive howitzers, 1,267 guns, a reduction since the last annual report by sale and otherwise, of thirteen vessels. A general enumeration of these vessels presents 63 steamers other than iron-clads and tugs carrying 826 guns; 29 sailing vessels, 322 guns; 48 iron-clads vessels, 121 guns; and 25 tugs used for navy yard and freight purposes. Of this number there are at present in commission for the sea service, distributed on the several foreign stations and on our own coast, 46 vessels, carrying 407 guns. The list will show a force slightly decreased in numbers by the sales of vessels, which were, while we retained them, only a source of expense, and has somewhat weakened our strength by the condemnation and laying up of several of our white oak cruisers, which have reached the limit of their cruising life and can no longer be used with safety on the seas. Many of the ships now on the navy list and which serve to swell the number to the figures above given, are far from being such as are really needed, and their true condition, which has often been officially represented to Congress, can be fully understood and appreciated by reference to reports of the bureaus. In the meanwhile, however, we have been engaged in repairing six of our live oak cruising ships, which are now in various stages of forwardness at the several navy yards. These are all of moderate size and none of them sufficiently advanced to be of present use, but they are adapted to the wants of our cruising navy and will in a few months add materially to its strength and efficiency. The eight sloops of war authorized by Congress are all in process of building.

The valuable work thus begun should not be discontinued, but the Department should be provided with a moderate amount of funds and authorized to commence each year to build a certain number of tons to supply regularly the yearly expenditure of naval force which will of necessity occur. The work of putting our iron-clad force in an efficient conditition, has been forwarded as the means necessary for the extraordinary work could be spared from the current appropriation for the support of the navy.

The wisdom of this action needs no illustration at this time. Without it we would have been not only powerless to assert our own rights, but almost defenceless against arrogance and oppression; but the expenditure required has crippled our working bureaus in their general work, and it is necessary that this should be reimbursed to them if they are to proceed steadily and efficiently.

The stations have been unchanged during the year as now established. They are designated as European, Asiatic, North Atlantic, South Atlantic and South Pacific. Over these, embracing all the frequented waters of the globe, are scattered a cruising force of less than forty vessels, which by their presence are relied on to encourage our citizens, and if required, to protect them and their property in all the lands to which, by their inclination or interest, they are drawn.

Thrilling Adventure.

Along the line of the Grand Trunk Railroad, between the Island Pond station and the village of Conticook, in Canada, a distance of eighteen miles, the country is almost an unbroken forest, and wild animals are frequently seen beside the road staring in wonder at the passing trains, while deer, foxes, lynxes and wolves often bound across the track in front of the locomotive. Some years since the latter animals were remarkably plenty, sometimes appearing in droves of a dozen or twenty.

One evening, late in the autumn, a young fellow had occasion to pass along this lonesome way on foot, and had not accomplished more than half the distance when he heard a crackling in the bushes at the side of the track, denoting the presence of some wild animal. Thinking to frighten the creature, he threw a stone toward the place where it appeared to be. This was answered by a howl from the wolf, for such it was, and what added to the discomfort of the situation various other howls were echoed and re-echoed by wolves from all sides, and they soon began to close in around the now thoroughly frightened man, who started on a run, but was soon obliged to slacken his pace from mere exhaustion. Although the pack of wolves now numbered about twenty, they still, for some reason, failed to attack him, but surrounded him at the distance of a few paces, each moment growing bolder and bolder. In his desperation he picked up stones and threw towards them, at which they would scatter for a brief period, and he would make another effort to escape them, which, however, would prove useless, for as soon as he turned to run they would again surround him, and the only method by which he could keep them at bay was to keep up the shower of missiles, shouting at the top of his voice. But even this resource was last failing him, as he was well nigh exhausted and ready to drop with fatigue and fright, when suddenly unexpected assistance arrived. He heard afar off a low rumble, and knew that a train was approaching. Could he only hold his fierce enemies at bay until its arrival he felt that he would be safe. He redoubled his efforts and soon the rumbling of the train grew louder and the headlight of the locomotive appeared around a curve. The hunted man now gave up the unequal contest with the savage brutes, and, facing the approaching train, threw up his arms and concentrated all his energies in a loud call for help, which was heard above the rattle of the cars. The engineer whistled "down brakes," the train came to a standstill, and the poor fellow, more dead than alive, climbed into the cab of the engine, and it was only after the arrival at the next station that he was able to relate his terrible experience.

HARD HAND.

Declining.

The Pittsburg (Pa.) Dispatch says: The famous and at one time immensely popular hotel, the Danforth House, Pithole City, which cost $28,000, was sold on Friday last for a ten dollar note; and the furniture, which cost $3,000, brought less than $90. And that leads to speculation on the rise, the glory, and the fall of that once famous city. Within one month from the completion of the first house she had an $80,000 hotel. In two months she had a daily paper, and a fast one it was too. In three months she had a theatre. (That theatre went to Pleasantville, thence to Lawrenceburg, thence to Parker's Landing, thence to where the woodbine twineth, in the second great fire at the Landing last winter.) In four months she had another theatre and an academy of music. In five months she had her celebrated mud fire extinguisher, a curious invention for throwing mud, sired by live Yankee and d—d by necessity, for the city had no water—the people all drank whiskey. In six months she had seventy-four hotels and boarding-houses where the substitute for water was dispensed. In seven months the Miller farm pipe line was completed, which event threw 4,000 men and 2,600 horses out of employment, and Pithole City had reached the zenith of her glory. She had at that time 15,000 inhabitants, elaborate water-works, and the paraphernalia of a city government. She has now no theatre, no newspaper, no hotel, no telegraph office, (the telegraph office was closed for time and eternity last week,) and but nine families out of all that multitude. The Pithole and Oleopolis Railroad runs but one train of one car a day, and that only to hold the charter.

An Old Book.

Mr. Joel Taylor, the well-known letter-carrier, has handed the editor of the Manchester Union an old book of bank notes, with counterfoil or stub. The book was evidently printed at Portsmouth about 1822, and though the style of printing has considerably changed since then, it is, all things considered, rather creditable in its execution.

The book contains a number of notes or copies of notes, in favor of Joseph and Toory L. Huckins. They are all payable in cash, except one, which we copy:

"NEWFIELD, July 23, 1818.

For value received, I promise to pay Joseph Huckins, or order, five hundred and fifty pairs of good goat-skin morocco shoes; the said shoes are to be worth one dollar per pair at the wholesale price.

(Signed) SAM DATTON."

Mr. Taylor picked up this relic in the street, while on the road of his duties.

—The following thrilling incident was related recently by Anna Dickinson, in the lecture delivered by her in Albany. Last summer while she was in Philadelphia, a note was handed to her at her home, requesting her to come to a certain house in that city at once. She obeyed the summons and was ushered into apartments luxuriously furnished, in which was seated the madame of the establishment, surrounded by half-a-dozen of her "boarders." In the midst was a girl of fifteen, with a pretty, innocent face, on which lines had been traced by the cruel finger of starvation. She had come to this abode of sin and asked to be taken in. "Do you know what you are coming to?" had been the question of the mistress. "I have not had enough to eat for six weeks," was the reply. "I think I should like something like this." "Do you know the price you will have to pay for this?" was the next question. "No," was the startled reply. Calling the girls around her, the mistress told them the story, and into the lap of that starving child they poured the contents of their purses, and threw the rings from their fingers till the sum of $1,700 had been contributed. Then they had sent for the speaker, and thus she had found them. "Up, take her out of this. Do not wait a moment! For God's sake, take her out of this house!" was the command, which was quickly obeyed, and a soul saved from the mouth of hell.

—While on the Peninsula during the war an officer came across a private belonging to one of the most predatory companies of the Irish Brigade, with the lifeless bodies of a goose and hen tied together by the legs dangling from his musket. "Where did you steal those, you rascal?" "Faith, I was marching along with Color-Sergeant Maguire, and the goose—bad cess to it!—come out and hissed the American flag." "But the hen, sir; how about the hen?" "The hen, bless ye, was in bad company, and laying eggs for the rebbels."

The Hudson was full of cabbages at Newburgh one day last week, owing to the sinking of a canal boat. The water resembled a huge checker board. The inhabitants put out in small boats and all secured a winter supply.

Pernicious Purgatives.

The brilliant idea of half a century ago that the weak and ailing could be bled, blistered and salivated into a condition of health and vigor is happily exploded; but violent and prolonged purgation is still, to some extent, in vogue. We have impostors who are daring enough to offer to the world, as tonics and restoratives, the most destructive cathartics, unmodified by a single stimulating, soothing or restorative element. Compare the operation of one of these terrible nostrums with that of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are combined the three great curative elements—a tonic, an alterative, and an aperient. The former completely paralyzes the vital forces, so that nature can make no resistance to disease; the latter sustains the strength of the patient, while it restores the suspended functions of the secretory organs and relieves the bowels without violence or pain. It is simply a choice between restoration and prostration.

Hack, Hack, Hack! Cough, Cough, Cough!

Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of Bronchitis, from incipient Consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent attack, or a lingering cough, the Discovery is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it, not by drying it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the irritation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a Cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous disease of the lungs is liable to result. 705

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured; for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

Ordinance No. 41,

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. That the occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every full thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n25-1m

Local Matters.

The New Hampshire Monument.

You and your readers, Messrs. Editors, know all the movements that have been made for a monument to the first settlers of our State, and all the talk also that has resulted—the last being a note published in the Portsmouth Journal from Albert H. Hoyt, Esq., a gentleman whose opinions and wishes in historical matters are worthy of great respect and consideration. But, like the old lady who differed from St. Paul—I must say, that I cannot agree with friend Hoyt this time. And with a single honorable exception, I have not seen or heard of any other person who does agree with him in desiring to locate the monument in this city. The Monument Committee, partly chosen at a public meeting in this city, and partly appointed by the N. H. Historical Society, and including such historical scholars as John Elwyn and Lory Odell of Portsmouth, C. H. and J. J. Bell of Exeter, B. F. Prescott of Concord, Wm. B. Towne of Milford, John H. Elliot of Keene, and others,—after due consideration and discussion of the subject, in full committee, were unanimous and decided in favor of Odiorne's Point for the monument.

At the citizens' meeting here, when part of this committee were chosen, Mr. Hoyt's first letter urging the placing of the monument in this city, was read, but the suggestion met the approval of nobody. Messrs. E. A. Rand and F. W. Hackett, who started this movement for a monument—like all the rest, prefer Odiorne's Point as the location, above and before all others.

Not meeting much encouragement here, Mr. Hoyt wrote to the Dover Enquirer, advocating Portsmouth as the place for the monument, rather than Odiorne's Point, where the first settlers landed and lived, died and are buried. If his efforts effect anything, under the circumstances, it would seem liable to be a division of forces, or defeat of the whole enterprise. Already Mr. C. W. Tuttle, another influential historical writer, has come out in the Dover Enquirer in favor of placing a monument to the first settlers on Dover Neck—a project well enough in itself, but unfortunately broached at this time. Portsmouth and Dover, as is well known, are recorded as settled nearly at the same date; but the probabilities of location, to approach from ocean settlers, and other circumstances, lead reasonably to the supposition that the very first settlement, a little prior to any other in the State, was at Odiorne's Point, now included in the town of Rye. At any rate, this was the point recommended to the Monument Committee by the citizens' meeting, approved and endorsed by the State Historical Society, and adopted, as stated, by the Committee. The question is, shall a monument be built there? I have no doubt it will be done—the question now being one of money, only or mainly.

But Mr. Hoyt, in the Journal, says that if the monument was built in Ladd's field on South street, opposite my residence, a natural foundation and fitting material for the monument can be readily and cheaply procured on the spot, while neither of these conditions would probably be found to exist at Odiorne's Point. Again he is mistaken, I think. I intended to have built a stone house myself, had the material so abundant in that vicinity been at all fit, but expert stone masons pronounced it impracticable; while there are natural foundations at the Point equally substantial with Ladd's, and the building material there is far better. For my own part, while I have always regarded Ladd's hill (or "six pine hill," as I believe it was called in olden days, to distinguish it from "seven pine hill," afterwards Breakfast Hill,) as a desirable location for a public observatory, I should not enjoy seeing the New Hampshire Monument there. The fittest place for man to die, if the poet is correct, is where he dies for man; and to my apprehension, and that of our whole Committee, the fittest place for the Monument to the New Hampshire pilgrim fathers, is where they landed, lived and died—just as Bunker Hill monument is located where that battle was fought.

And while I am very sorry—we are all sorry, we cannot have the co-operation of so eminent a local historian as Mr. Hoyt in this matter; yet differences of opinion must be tolerated—and New Hampshire always allowed the largest liberty to her inhabitants, except when under control or influence of the Bay Colony.

Mr. C. H. Bell alludes to the suggestion for two monuments, one at Dover and one at Odiorne's Point, in the Exeter News Letter, and regrets it—and thinks that while one could doubtless be procured, the two probably could not be.

I have been told that a monument to Hannah Dustin, of Indian fame, was erected two or three miles out of Haverhill, Mass., where she lived and died, and where the monument should be; but that a dispute arising between those who chose the situation, and those who desired it in the city proper, and in the melee the monument not being paid for, the stones were taken down and removed by the builder! Let us hope that we of New Hampshire shall agree better than that.

"J. D. L." of Exeter also has an article in the last Dover Enquirer on the subject, in which he speaks rather slightingly of "the old aristocrats" who settled Portsmouth, and rather puts the up-river settlements ahead of this. I do not have a very high respect for any aristocracy save that of excellence; but the early settlers of Portsmouth not only builded better than they knew, but I think the record shows, better than most of their contemporaries, near or far.

Finally, I will add, that it was the desire from the first, that this movement should not be in any manner sectional or local—but embrace the whole State. And this is still the determination of the Committee. All inhabitants of "the Piscataqua country," on either side of the river; all citizens of New Hampshire or emigrants or descendants therefrom, will in due time be cordially invited to contribute toward the erection of a New Hampshire monument at Odiorne's Point. And New Hampshire expects every man to do his duty in the premises and I have no doubt the monument will be built.

The Committee will meet with the State Historical Society at Concord, on the morning of Dec. 17th inst.

Yours respectfully,

FRANK W. MILLER, Sec. Mon. Com.

The prinpal amusement at that time for people indoors was to clear the frost from window panes for the purpose of seeing passing pedestrians keep each pair of ears covered by a pair of hands, an achievement not altogether comfortable if one is heavily weighted with clothing.

A dispatch from Gloucester, Mass., to the Boston Herald, dated Nov. 29th, says: Orrin Edgerly, a paving cutter at Bay View, employed by the Bay View Granite Company, who has been missing since Thursday, was found dead, this forenoon, near Bay View, in the woods, and must have died before the snow storm, as he was covered with snow. He was probably frozen to death. He was a young man, unmarried, and belonged in Portsmouth, N. H.

A party of brick-makers from Eliot got on a bender in this city on Monday and attacked an elderly man, on Noble's Island, knocked him down and stole his overcoat. They also stole a buffalo robe from a team and varied the monotony of their fun by insulting ladies. Officers Wallace and Davidson, with Deputy Sheriff Philbrick of Kittery, chased them two miles, and brought them to this city. They languished in the lock-up over night.

The pleasing music of the famous Temple Quartet, the fine organ-playing of Dudley Buck, and the desire to listen to the exquisite music from the instrument of Portsmouth's young violinist, Master Willie E. Nowell, will bring out a large audience this evening, at the Middle street (Baptist) church, the occasion being the benefit of Master Nowell. The young beneficiary has been exceedingly industrious in his studies and practice and deserves encouragement. Buy reserved seats, which are limited to 200, at Preston's.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has produced me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh over since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, and think God too bountiful that brought its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new.

E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

Castelar.

Castelar, the President of the Spanish Republic, is the foremost man in Europe at the present time. He has the best brain and the best heart of any man in authority on the continent. He has more of the American idea in his head and more of the American spirit in his heart than any of his contemporaries on foreign ground. Is it not a strange thing that a man who, before he became widely famous, commenced a series of articles on Republicanism in Europe for an American periodical, (Harper's Monthly,) while his country was yet ruled by a king, became, before he had closed the series, the President of a Republic on his native soil? This is one of the miracles of modern civilization! Castelar was, at an early period, an emancipationist and a friend of civil and religious freedom in a land of priests and superstition and tyranny. He saw, in his early years, the American idea, and adopted it—and, more than any other man in Europe, he is our personal, political and practical friend.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. Increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all disease originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and obdo advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary fees to Attorney in Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are procured by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves the confidence and attention to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has not led the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES,

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be more appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. That the subscriber to "THE ALDINE will, as a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of the art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original picures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without the intervention of the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Contributors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the Soil—those who Cultivate and Those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Horticulturists and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, invariably and strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN EXQUISITE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and salesmen, because it is absolutely NEW, and "has money in it." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
For all the Purposes of a Family Physic
CURING
Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN MIXED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS-VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping points, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no coarse will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANSED BY HAND.

A Poet's Strange Adventure.

The Chicago Times details a singular circumstance in connection with Brock McVicker's adventure. It is said the little girl the young poet saved from a terrible death by burning is his own and only child. The following narrative is given:

Shortly before Wild Edgerton's (McVicker's) European trip he was so severely afflicted with rheumatism that it became the custom for a maid-servant in his father's family to help him on with his coat each morning. Once, when performing this service, she said to him in a pleasant way:

"Mr. M., if this keeps on you will have to get a wife to take care of you, for I shall not be always here." "I might be tempted, Lucy," he remarked, "but I never expect to find any one who will have me."

"Perhaps you have never tried," suggested Lucy. "Hardly any woman would refuse as fine a manas you."

On the impulse of the moment Mr. McVicker responded, "I'll try at once: Lucy, be my wife?"

"Agreed," said Lucy, laconically. And it is believed that soon after they were secretly married to evade the opposition of his family. There was little love between the two; probably never more than an ordinary friendship. And this could not last. Even before the memorable trip abroad our poet had met and formed a deep attachment for a fair young actress, since deceased. This attachment was one of those powerful, ineradicable sentiments known only to poets, we presume, and it severed the legally-wedded ones forever. They parted by mutual consent, and the miserable husband went across the ocean to wear out his sorrows in foreign adventures, of which the world has heard.

Whilst absent in Europe the young actress died, and when "Wild Edgerton" came back to America, he returned to his lonely Bohemian life, and has never seen his own wife, Lucy, since their formal parting. Since the discovery that it was his own child whom he so providentially saved the other day, a strong effort has been made to effect a reconciliation between Lucy and Brock, but the attempt has proved an utter failure. He will see her no more, and he feels he can never love again.

It seems that Mr Vicker found the little child's clothes in a blaze. With his jack-knife he riddled the clothing of the luckless little sufferer, and in less than a second the burning fabric was sizzling in the mud of the gutter. The danger over, the condition of the child became painfully mortifying to a modest young man like Brock McVicker. The youngster's attire consisted of a pair of dirty stockings, shoes out at the toes and down at the heels, and—nothing more, quoth McVicker, nothing more. Had the child been sixteen instead of six, Brock would have committed hari-kari on the spot. As it was, he covered his face with his hands and wept, and shortly after remarked to a friend that he never saw a more embarrassed maiden in his life.

Beecher's Trick Donkey.

[New York Cor. New Orleans Herald.]

Shall I tell you a little anecdote about Henry Ward Beecher's jackass? The scene was the Twin Mountain House, White Mountains, New Hampshire, not many weeks ago. I had just arrived in advance of President Grant, and was on the piazza, with hundreds of others, admiring the sunset, when a boy appeared in front of the hotel, riding an ass—Mr. Beecher's ass. Henry Ward, who had been anxiously inquiring about the "hay fever" guests, quickly appeared, and everybody looked upon him with admiration. He is so handsome, you know! Suddenly P. H. Jones, a New York merchant and a member of Mr. Beecher's church—one of the elect of Plymouth—appeared, and Mr. Beecher bantered him to ride the ass. Deacon Jones declined. Then Elder Hutchinson, also of Plymouth, exclaimed, "Brother Jones, if you'll mount the ass and ride up and down in front of the hotel, I'll give you ten dollars." Brother Jones—"Done. Here, Brother Beecher will hold the money. I want to see the greenbacks, Brother Hutchinson." Elder Hutchinson, who used to be a Commissioner of Health in Brooklyn, went down into his pockets, and drawing out $10 placed it in the hands of Parson Beecher, with the remark:—

"Brother Jones, mount! the ass awaits you."

Brother Jones, whose legs are very short, threw himself into the saddle of the pastor's ass, and twice rode past three hundred guests, while Beecher stood in the sand in front of the piazza with a whip and applied the lash to the donkey's flanks. Beecher had taught his ass "a trick or two," and when he felt that Deacon Jones had won the $10, he touched him quietly on the lower rib. There was an elevated pair of feet and tail, descending head and ears. Parson Beecher's ass stood upon his fore legs and Parson Beecher's deacon rolled in the dust. Deacon Jones survived, and before President Grant arrived I saw upon a subscription to relieve the farm of Elder Barry, an earnest Baptist missionary in the mountains, of a mortgage, the following legend, in the handwriting of H. W. Beecher:—"Jack Ass, per D. H., $10."

—"What comes after T?" asked a teacher of a small pupil who was learning the alphabet. He received the bewildering reply: "You do—to see 'Liza."

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1873.

The Message.

President Grant sent his annual message to Congress yesterday. We present below the portion embodying a statement of the present condition of the Spanish question, with his views on the subject. To-morrow we shall give the message entire.

OUR RELATIONS WITH SPAIN.

In compliance with the request of Congress, I transmitted to the American minister at Madrid, with instructions to present it to the Spanish government, the joint resolution approved on the 3d of March last, tendering to the people of Spain, in the name and on the behalf of the American people, the congratulations of Congress on the efforts to consolidate in Spain the principles of universal liberty in a republican form of government. The existence of this new republic was inaugurated by striking the fetters from the slaves in Porto Rico.

This beneficent measure was followed by the release of several thousand persons illegally held as slaves in Cuba. Next the captain general of that colony was deprived of the power to set aside the order of his superiors at Madrid, which had pertained to the office since 1825, and the sequestered estates of American citizens, which had been the cause of long and frequent correspondence, were ordered to be restored to their owners. All these liberal steps were taken in the face of violent opposition, directed by the reactionary slanderers of Havana, who are vainly striving to stay the march of ideas which has terminated slavery in christendom—Cuba only excepted.

Unhappily, however, this baneful influence has thus far succeeded in defeating the efforts of all liberal-minded men in Spain to abolish slavery in Cuba, and in preventing the promised reform in that island. The struggle for political supremacy continues; the pro-slavery and aristocratic element in Cuba is gradually arraying itself in more and more open hostility and in defiance of the home government, which, it still maintains a political connection with the republic on the peninsula, and although usurping and defying the authority of the home government, wherever such usurpation or defiance tends in the direction of oppression or of the maintenance of abuse, it is still a power in Madrid and recognized by the government.

Thus an element more dangerous to continued colonial relations between Cuba and Spain, than that which inspired the insurrection at Corea, an element opposed to granting any relief from misrule and abuse, with no aspirations after freedom, commanding no sympathies in generous breasts, and destined to rivet still stronger the shackles of slavery and oppression, has seized many of the emblems of power in Cuba, and under professions of loyalty to the mother country is exhausting the resources of the island, and is doing acts which are at variance with those of justice, of liberty and of right, which give nobility of character to a Republic. In the interests of humanity, of civilization and of progress, it is to be hoped that this evil influence may be soon averted.

THE STEAMER VIRGINIUS

was on the 26th day of September, 1870, duly registered at New York, as part of the commercial marine of the United States. On the 4th of Oct., 1870, having received the certificate of her register in the usual legal form, she sailed from the port of New York, and has not since been within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States. On the 31st day of October last, while sailing under the flag of the United States, on the high seas, she was forcibly seized by the Spanish gunboat Tornado, and was carried into the port of Santiago de Cuba, where many of her passengers and crew were inhumanly, and so far at least as relates to those who were citizens of the United States, without due process of law, put to death.

It is a well established principle, asserted by the United States from the beginning of their national independence; recognized by Great Britain and other maritime powers, and stated by the Senate in a resolution passed unanimously on the 16th of March, 1858, that American vessels on the high seas,—in time of peace,—bearing the American flag, remain under the jurisdiction of the country to which they belong, and therefore any visitation, molestation, or detention of such vessel by force, or by the exhibition of force on the part of a foreign power is its deprivation of the sovereignty of the United States. In accordance with this principle the restoration of the Virginius, and the surrender of the survivors of her passengers and crew, and a due reparation to our flag, and the punishment of the authorities who had been guilty of these illegal acts of violence, were demanded.

The Spanish government has recognized the justice of the demands, and has arranged for the immediate delivery of the vessel, and for the surrender of the survivors of the passengers and crew, and for a salute to the flag, and for proceedings looking to the punishment of those who may be proved to have been guilty of illegal acts of violence towards citizens of the United States, and also towards indemnifying those who may be shown to be entitled to indemnity.

A copy of a protocol of a conference between the Secretary of State and the Spanish Minister, in which the terms of this arrangement were agreed to, is transmitted herewith. The correspondence on this subject with the Legation of the United States is by cipher and by cable, and needs the verification of the actual text of the correspondence. It has seemed to me to be due to the importance of the case not to submit this correspondence until the accurate text can be received by mail. It is expected shortly and will be submitted when received.

In taking leave of this subject for the present, I wish to renew the expression of my conviction, that the existence of African SLAVERY IN CUBA is a principal cause of the lamentable condition of this island.

I do not doubt that Congress shares with me the hope that it will soon be made to disappear, and that peace and prosperity may follow its abolition.

The embargoing of American estates in Cuba, the cruelty to American citizens detected in no act of hostility to the Spanish government, the murdering of prisoners taken with arms in their hands, and finally the capture upon the high seas of a vessel sailing under the United States flag and bearing a United States registry, has culminated in an outburst of indignation that has seemed for a time to threaten war. Pending negotiations between the United States and the government of Spain, on the subject of the capture, I have authorized the Secretary of the Navy to put our navy on a war footing, to the extent, at least, of the entire annual appropriation for that branch of the service, trusting to Congress and the opinion of the American people to justify my action.

Attorney General Williams has been appointed Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, and Gen. B. H. Bristow, of Kentucky, succeeds to the Attorney General's office.

The Salary Grab.

There is a very good prospect that this precious piece of legislation will get hurt before Congress adjourns, and it is a noticeable fact that the record so far made on the subject is more advantageous and creditable to the Republicans than to the Democrats. The latter nominated as their candidate for speaker Fernando Wood, the most conspicuous grabber on that side of the house; and when a few men like Sunset Cox and Holman of Indiana attempted to give matters a different direction in their caucus, they were treated with contempt and sneered at as "cheap demagogues." There is not much hope of reform, we should say, in a party which inaugurates a session of Congress in that style.

On the other hand, a Republican caucus, called for the express purpose of considering the obnoxious bill, went to work in a business like fashion and, after debate, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the act of the 3d of March, 1873, so far as it increases the salaries of members of Congress and of certain officers and employes of the two houses, ought to be repealed.

Resolved, That a committee of five members of this caucus be appointed by the chairman, to whom all propositions offered this evening shall be referred, and who shall report a suitable bill to be presented to the house at the earliest opportunity.

Many opinions were expressed in the debate as to the manner in which, and to what extent, the desired object should be effected. Of course Gen. Butler excelled everybody else in the originality of his views. He said he had not been able to convince his constituents that it was right to keep the back pay, and he was for the repeal, and for compelling all those who took it to return it.

Readables.

When Aleck Stephens, late vice president of the Southern Confederacy, appeared in the House of Representatives on Monday, as one of the Georgia members, he was treated with every courtesy, and shared with Dawes, the oldest member of the house, the privilege of having the first choice of seats. This looks like practical amnesty. It is putting the "bloody chasm" business in a tangible shape.

Further details of the terrible Ville du Havre disaster state that at the time of the collision the lights on the steamer were all right. The Lock Earn struck the steamer amidships, and under a chasm twelve feet deep and twenty-five to thirty feet wide. The Lock Earn was so badly damaged that the persons rescued by her from the wreck requested to be put on board the Trimountain. All were safely transferred, with the exception of three persons, who were too badly injured to be removed. The Lock Earn put about for Queenstown, at which port she was due about the 29th ultimo. Nothing has yet been heard of her.

Hon. E. H. Rollins, Treasurer of the Union Pacific Railroad, while on his way to his room in Bulfinch street, Boston, accidentally slipped on the icy sidewalk and completely turned the ankle joint of the right limb. Mr. Rollins was unable to rise, and was assisted by a lady who was passing at the time, who aided him to the door of his house. Mr. Rollins will be confined to his room a few days, but attends to all urgent business there.

The Rochester Dem. Chron. says "Hard dimes come again no more."

A Curiosity. [Concord Patriot.]

A gentleman in this city handed us, this afternoon, one of the original copies of the first number of the New Hampshire Gazette, which is a curious and venerable relic of the early newspaper days of this State. It is a sheet about eighteen by ten inches in size, dated Portsmouth, Thursday, Oct. 7, 1756, (117 years ago,) and was printed by Daniel Fowle. The subscription price of the paper was one dollar per annum. The first page of the paper is devoted to a salutatory, the first paragraph of which is as follows: "Upon the Encouragement given by a Number of Subscribers agreeable to printed Proposals, I now publish the first Weekly Gazette, for the province of New Hampshire; depending upon the favour of all Gentlemen who are Friends to Learning, Religion and Liberty to countenance my undertaking, as this is the beginning of Printing in this Province, so that I may go on cheerfully, and continue this Paper in a useful and entertaining manner." Then follows a statement of the objects to which the paper was to be devoted, with a brief essay on the mission of the press. The second, third and fourth pages are devoted to items of news. The paper shows marks of age, but the reading matter is yet very distinct and well preserved.

Engines of War.

The Boston Advertiser gives the following particulars of the Wiard gun experiments, Thursday, at Nut Island:

The experiments were conducted with the view of testing the efficacy of the invention at short range. The guns used were two twenty-one ton, fifteen-inch guns, cast for the purpose, at the South Boston foundry. One of these was rifled under the supervision of Mr. Wiard, and the other had the ordinary smooth bore. The rifled gun was first tried. One hundred and fifty feet off were placed two iron targets exactly alike, fifteen inches in thickness and composed of five three-inch plates firmly bolted together, and backed by the natural gravel of the bank, forming a most powerful resistance. The gun was loaded with a conical shot of 400 pounds, with a flange on either side to fit the rifled bore. The powder was loaded in bags, to the amount of 150 pounds, the heaviest charge ever fired from one cannon. The charge was exploded by means of a string, the man who pulled it standing several hundred feet off. The effect was terrific, the force carrying the shot entirely through the target and twelve feet into the solid gravel, which was frozen for some distance. The massive target was almost completely demolished. Through the first two plates the shot made a clean-cut hole, but the last three plates were shattered, the bolts and rivets which held them together being broken and torn from their sockets. A piece of the target weighing something like half a ton, was hurled over the heads of the spectators who stood looking on from afar off, in a manner to strike terror to their hearts. It fell into the sea something like half a mile off. The second experiment was with the smoothbore gun, which was loaded with the same amount of powder and a spherical shot of the same weight as the other. The shot penetrated but three of the five plates of its target and was then crushed and stopped, showing the vast superiority of the rifled shot, which would crush through the stoutest iron-clad afloat as it would an egg shell Mr. Wiard claims that with a thirty ton gun he could as easily carry a shot through a twenty inch plate. The experiments were regarded as highly satisfactory, and the result was telegraphed to the Secretary of the Navy as soon as the party returned to the city. A photographer was on the spot and took views of the guns, plates and all the surroundings, for the use of the Navy Department. Early next week further experiments will be made at long range, in the direction of Strawberry Hill and Nantasket, with a view of ascertaining the velocity of the shot and the distance to which it can be fired.

Railway Speed.

We notice among some of the English papers a controversy over the speed of railway express trains, several of the principal lines claiming the honor of running the fastest trains. The latest testimony is in favor of the Great Western Express, which regularly makes the seventy-eight miles between Paddington and Exeter in eighty-seven minutes or at the rate of over fifty-three miles an hour. This is far ahead of any time made on American railways; though, for a while, the Fort Wayne and Chicago route came pretty near to it in the attempt to reduce the time between New York and Chicago to twenty-nine hours. The English railway trains are now admitted to be the fastest in the world, and it used to be said that they were the safest. But that, it is said, can no longer be boasted of them. Through various causes the famous English railway system is losing its prestige. Railway accidents are now of almost daily occurrence in England. The latest mails bring a resume of the mishaps for October. It is a startling list—thirty-six in all. Defective signalling, rotten material, want of punctuality, insufficient brake-power, are some of the explanations assigned. Some of these accidents may be due to the excessive speed maintained on the English lines. At fifty or sixty miles an hour, the strain upon the wheels and all the machinery becomes enormous, and the likelihood of something breaking is greatly increased. At maximum speed trains are more apt to fly the track, brakes to become inoperative, and when collisions or other accidents do occur, the consequences are vastly destructive to passengers. The road-beds and tracks and bridges on some of the English lines must be sadly injured by the wear and tear of lightning expresses, and the number of accidents recorded for October may not be considered surprising.

A Liberal Profession.

"Parents in search of a profession for their sons," remarks the Pall Mall Gazette, "might do worse, indeed could hardly do better, than make Russian monks of them, for, to judge by the account given of these holy men by a correspondent of the Tablet, writing from Novgorod, there are few positions more enviable. There are, it seems, in Russia, 9,000 monks and nuns who are waited on by 16,000 lay brothers, or sisters, as the case may be, who are really servants although they wear the monastic habit instead of a livery. All the property of the monasteries was confiscated in 1764 by the Empress Catherine, who at the same time assigned to those establishments in compensation a money indemnity which amounts at the present day to about 400,000 roubles per annum. She, however, took the precaution to make a regulation that no monastery should acquire any landed property without permission by a Royal rescript. The monks have been none the worse for this act of spoliation. The piety of the Russian people has made them ample amends. The annual offerings to monasteries to which pilgrimages are made, and which nearly all contain relics or miraculous images, amount to no less than 10,000,000 roubles, (£1,583,333 6s. 8d.,) and for the last 100 years the legacies in money alone have constituted a capital producing 8,000,000 of rentes annually. The result is that each individual monk has an annual income of £154 7s. 6d. at his own disposal and one-third of the revenue of a monastery belongs to the superior, so that the poorest of the archimandrites have from 200 to 10,000 roubles (£1,583 6s. 8d.) per annum. There are others who have as much as 30,000 roubles, (£4,750,) equal to an ambassador's salary. The monks, moreover, engage in trade, lend money at cent. per cent., and indulge in speculations. Very few of them are engaged in studious pursuits, a love of money rather than learning being their ruling passion.

Jolly Lunalilo.

[Letter of a German Merchant.]

Two weeks ago we had a ball at the palace of our King, Lunalilo I. He is our friend. When he was still merely Crown Prince, I loaned him two dollars—only for a day, he said. When I met him a year after, I reminded him of the loan, but he told me to wait till he should have become King, of which prospects were then very slight. But now he is King, and I have silently made him a present of the two dollars—cheap friendship considering he is King. It was a fine ball, which he gave in honor of the English Admiral, and the King was the first who got gloriously drunk; next came musicians; then the guests, and—finally—I myself began to feel unsteady. I saw a young English officer occupy the kingly throne with a Honolulu girl by his side, while the King and Queen Emma sat at his feet. Then the King took a drum and walked around the floor, beating the tattoo. Finally, the musicians began quarreling and fighting in regular John Bull style, so that the Admiral could not part them. But our King is said to have amused himself exceedingly, particularly as lots of drinkables remained for him to consume himself, though an awful quantity was drunk. Whether he did consume it all, I don't know, but it is said he was not sober for two days afterward, though he can stand a vast amount. Otherwise the King is a good fellow, and likes us Germans particularly, probably because we "treated" him so often when he was only Crown Prince. He has even learned some German songs, which he sings passably; for instance, "When the Swallows Homeward Fly," and "Out of the Tavern I've Just Stepped To-night."

December Dividends.

The amount of semi-annual dividends payable in Boston in December, mainly by manufacturing companies, is $1,653,588. Many of the companies reduce largely. Thus, the Amoskeag reduces from 8 to 6 per cent., Appleton 5 to 4, Boston 5 to 3, Jackson 10 to 4, Lancaster 12 1-2 to 10, Langdon 10 to 5, Nashua 8 to 4, and Stark 6 to 5 per cent. The Lowell Machine Shop pays 4 per cent. at this time against 8 per cent. in May, which is the usual way of dividing their dividends for the year. The Cocheco and Salmon Falls dividends, due about Dec. 12, are not yet declared. The Hamilton and Lawrence make the same dividends as the previous six months. The Boston and Maine Railroad Company will pay, Dec. 15, the dividend of 4 per cent. deferred from Nov. 15. The Treasurer of the Old Colony Railroad will redeem a small sum of the Cape Cod Railroad bonds maturing Dec. 15.

The Johnstown (Pa.) Voice has suspended. That story about a woman hatching out a hen's egg in a demijohn killed it.

Miss Dot Steck, of Greensburg, Pa., nearly died from the effect of a puncture from a steel pen. She should not stock steel pens into herself.

The census of Baltimore, taken by the police with great care, shows a population of 308,000. The population by the national census was 267,000.

—It is estimated that Hon. John P. Hale left to his wife and two daughters between fifteen and twenty thousand dollars.

DIED.

MESSER. In this city, Dec. 2d, of consumption, Mr. HOWARD M. MESSER, aged 38 years.

Funeral on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, from No. 73 Islington street. Relatives and friends are invited.

A conscientious friend, a devoted son, a kind father, has departed this life, leaving a record of integrity and faithfulness that is like a shining light, leading others to realize that truth has yet its exemplars, and honesty its earnest attendants. Doing by others as he would that others should do by him, our friend was unassuming—was content to tread life's stormy path with a confidence that its trials were but a prelude to a happier future existence. To the bereaved mother, children and relatives we tender our heart's best sympathy. The grief that all are heir to, the sorrow that tears do not obliterate, let us hope are for this world alone. Happier is he who has passed from the winter of life to the summer of eternal rest.

20,000 cures of Piles have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments, and quack nostrums always make them worse ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple, permanent cure, acts as a bouyee, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 40 Walker street, New York.

The Human Kitchen and its Dumb Waiters.

The body is supplied with aliment by vessels which connect the stomach and it auxiliaries with the venous system, and, so to speak, perform the office of dumb waiters in a restaurant. In other words, these media of communication between the animal kitchen and its dependents supply to each member and organ, near or remote, the quantity and kind of sustenance required to keep it going. When the stomach is derelict in its duty, or the dumb waiters inert or obstructed, it is the peculiar province of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters to strengthen and regulate them. Hence its marvelous cures of chronic indigestion, and the emaciation, debility and languor which are generally its concomitants. It is, moreover, a powerful alterative and corrective, and the rapidity with which it checks irregularities of the liver and bowels, and braces and invigorates the nervous system, is a marvel, not only to the general public, but to professional men.

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blur or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.: I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 10 years old; but it had all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt constantly as though troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered constantly. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the third bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is the medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work, and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1st, 1873. JACOB J. FLANDERS.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choking and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Loss than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Local Matters.

A Sad Accident.

Another of those accidents so common on railroad freight trains occurred on the Eastern road near the Concord crossing just outside of the depot about four o'clock on Tuesday morning. The head brakeman of the express freight train, named Harry Marshall, of Portland, slipped from the roof of the cars (as is supposed) and falling beneath the train, was crushed to death by the wheels of several cars passing over his body. One car was thrown from the track, by the accident and the train was stopped as soon as possible, the body properly cared for, and the friends of the deceased notified of the sad event. We learn that Marshall leaves a wife in Portland, and that he was about 30 years of age. Coroner Rider summoned the following jury: Capt. John S. Pray, Dr. Benj. R. Curtis, and Ashuela F. Thurston. The testimony of Mr. Samuel Barrett, station agent and that of Henry Marston, yard master, who has charge of freight trains by night, was taken, which developed the probability that Marshall slipped from the cars while in the discharge of his duties as brakeman. The most important evidence being that of the train hands, who could not be summoned until today, the inquest adjourned until 10:30 this morning, when more direct information is expected.

Death of a Printer.

Under the appropriate heading this morning will be observed a brief allusion to the decease of Mr. Howard M. Messer, whose death deserves more than a passing notice on account of his having been employed in this office for a number of years, and of his connection with the craft. Mr. Messer learned the art of printing in the office of the Rockingham Messenger, (afterwards the American Ballot) under the tutelage of John Mason, Esq., now foreman of the Boston Advertiser. After the Ballot was removed to Exeter, Mr. M. worked in the several printing offices of the city and after the breaking out the rebellion found employment in the machiuists' department at the navy yard, then under the superintendence of G. J. Prescott, Esq. The fickle nature of government work being a constant source of anxiety to him, in consequence of the pressing wants of a large family, he resolved to secure a more permanent business, and consequently sought and found employment as job printer at the CHRONICLE office under Miller & Vaughan, (afterwards Miller & Co., and still later Marston & Freeman,) a position which he held until February 1st, 1873, when in consequence of the sale of the job office to outside parties, and his failing health, he was obliged to seek out-door exercise, and was again employed in some light avocation on the navy yard. A chronic catarrhal difficulty, aggravated by a severe cold, after a while obliged him to relinquish labor, since which time he has been failing rapidly, until Tuesday morning, when death terminated his sufferings. His age was 38 years.

Such is a brief outline of a quiet, gentle, unobtrusive life. In the humbler walks of life, few men have won more attached friends or more worthily deserved the friendship of others. Conscientiously faithful to duty in every relation to which he was called, generous in the affection he bestowed upon those who won his regard, modest and unassuming to a degree, may his memory live to keep bright an example that most of us need in this hard, work-a-day world.

S. P. C. A.

The society of the multitudinous initials had a very pleasant meeting on Monday evening. Mayor Marvin, as president, occupied the chair. The annual report shows the treasury to be in a healthy condition. The following directors were elected for the ensuing year:

Mrs. John J. Pickering; Miss E. H. Pearson; Mrs. F. W. Miller; Miss Sarah Peirce; Mrs. A. W. Benedict; Mrs. A. W. Haven; Miss Eliza Rice; Mrs. W. C. Knight; Miss Mary Foster; Miss Susan Christie; Hon. T. E. O. Marvin; Rev. Canon Walsh; Rev. L. L. Harmon; Dr. A. P. Stevens; Wm. H. Sise; A. R. Hatch, Esq.; J. B. Tiffany; L. E. Smith; Dr. J. R. May; E. D. Coffin.

Appropriate and interesting remarks were made by Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, A. R. Hatch, Esq., Rev. Canon Walsh, and Drs. Stephens and Norton; and a vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Pickering for her untiring labors in behalf of the society. The directors will meet next Monday evening to complete the organization.

Newcastle.

Thanksgiving had its cup of bitterness, for we mourned the death of the wife of Charles W. Cole. This is the seventh death within the week, and fourth in seven months past.

The Congregationalist society's entertainment was a success.

The new hotel is progressing lively, there being three men at work on it.

The village schools commenced Dec. 1st, with the same teachers as engaged during the fall term. R.

Rye.

A large and successful singing school has been commenced at the new town hall under the direction of Mr. David Jenness, who taught last season in the Congregationalist vestry.

A dancing school has been opened at the new hall of Otis D. Marden.

Work is soon to be commenced upon the new life saving station at Straw's Point, the same having been unavoidably delayed by the extremely rough weather.

A flattering testimony to the efficiency of the common schools of Rye is the fact that one of the boys, not yet sixteen years of age, who has never attended school elsewhere except for a period of six months, recently entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The test for admission is so severe that few outside of the best high schools in the cities, are to be found among the applicants. His success is alike creditable to his industry as a scholar, and the thoroughness of his instructors.

Mr. G. H. Jenness, superintendent of schools, is arranging for a course of lectures the coming winter, in the new town hall, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the benefit of the schools. ATLANTIC.

Laconics.

U. S. S. Sloop Plymouth was taken into dry dock on Tuesday for repairs, orders having been received to fit her for sea.

A number of boiler makers and laborers were taken on the Navy Yard on Tuesday, in the department of steam engineering.

Schooner Z. Snow, of Rockland, from Bangor for Boston, went ashore on York ledge at 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning. She was loaded with slate and slab-wood. It was thick with vapor at the time. The vessel will probably be a total wreck. The crew were all saved, and landed at New Castle.

Kearsarge S. F. Engine Co., No. 3, intend to give their third annual ball on new year's eve. It will be first-class in all respects, and many new features introduced in the order of the evening. Harlow's brass band, will play for the grand march, and the full string band for dancing. Many distinguished firemen from abroad will take part.

At the annual meeting of St. Andrew's Lodge of F. and A. M. the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Samuel C. Whittier, W. M.; John Pender, S. W.; Edwin Underhill, J. W.; A. F. Howard, S.; Wingate N. Tisley, T.; William P. Walker and Joseph Parry, standing committee; and Philip S. Mizener, representative to Grand Lodge.

Music Muss Once More.

I had thought, Mr. CHRONICLE, that I would not say more; but it silence gives consent, then I cannot be silent under the charges of "Music a Blessing," who shifted his batteries from the Journal to your columns, but kept his pen aimed still at the local music teachers, over my back.

He accused me of getting my brother, "Blessed Music," to help me out; but I have never spoken of this subject to any person, nor made known my identity to any; and I did not know "Blessed Music" was coming, and do not now know who he is or whence he came or went.

But as he is evidently competent to fight his own battles, and has besides a new and efficient ally in "Jubal" in the last Journal, I shall leave them and their subject, with a general disclaimer of the opinions of "Music a Blessing," and adherence to my former statements, including the faith for which I believe I have the reason—that any of our male teachers or "Professors," so called, and two at least of our female local teachers, are fully the equals of the imported lady as instructors of the young.

Shall I add a little story, perhaps not mal apropos to this place and this subject, which I happened to see from a correspondent in Brainard's Musical World, of Cleveland, Ohio:

While visiting some of the smaller villages around Lancaster, a good old Dutch farmer, a radical by the way, hearing we came from Lancaster, addressed us in this wise:

"Well, sir! I hear they are going to start a conservatory in Lancaster. I don't like these conservatives, any way you can fix it. I don't see how long the people will stand this sort of thing. Just to think, a school for conservatives. Where will this sort of thing lead to? These fellows do a heap of damage to this government, and now they start a school to teach 'em new tricks."

"You are mistaken, sir; it is a musical school they are going to start, and not a school for conservatives."

"The thunder they are! Are they? Well why don't they say so, and call the thing by the right name."

But a word in earnest. The project is not to die, so Mr. Woodward says. Why not gather all the musical talent in Lancaster, and start a conservatory? There are many good teachers in this city, while but few earn enough to make a living. Why bring strangers in, when the home talent is so good? Good teachers will not readily enter upon new enterprises, in a town where they are not known, such as, for example, a conservatory in Lancaster. On the other hand, those from abroad who can easily be had, are not worth having. Many citizens of Lancaster, who felt an interest in the conservatory, were grieved at the utterance of the unmistakable brassy sound, which was to start the idea, that all future musical knowledge and culture would begin with the conservatory. Lancaster is an old city and knows something about music, if it is a Dutch town? But "let us wait a time with patience."

If this story has no point, then it will not prick anybody, will it? If the coat does not fit anybody, they need not put it on. And at any rate, it was not written by

Yours truly, MUSICUS.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65.

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1869. n25-1m

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my engineers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Apparatus in the blood, and cures "the diseased life," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a Journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 100,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture, has grown up with, and has nourished the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possession of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 22 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, as no agent is allowed to be local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the facsimile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practicalmen, this Journal is believed to possess exceptional value to the chosen Medium of intercommunication among Producers interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Producers of improved Animals, and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ Horse-rakes and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $8, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signatures of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND SEVENTY THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more sales than any other one sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the merits of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would retail easily for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the agents and subscribers, because it is absolutely new, and "has money in it." AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
For all the Purposes of a Family Physic
CURING
Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, men of eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits by their use, and we publish the Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in preparing sizes, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

Daily Chronicle.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The year that has passed since the submission of my last message to Congress has, especially during the latter part of it, been an eventful one to the country. In the midst of great national prosperity a financial crisis has occurred that has brought low fortunes of gigantic proportions. Political partisanship has almost ceased to exist, especially in the agricultural regions, and finally the capture upon the high seas of a vessel bearing our flag has for a time threatened the most serious consequences and has agitated the public mind from one end of the country to the other, but this is happily now in the course of satisfactory adjustment, honorable to both nations concerned.

OUR FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The relations of the United States, however, with most of the other powers, continue to be friendly and cordial. With France, Germany, Russia, Italy and the minor European powers, with Brazil and most of the South American republics, and with Japan, nothing has occurred during the year to demand special notice. The correspondence between the department of State and various diplomatic representatives in or from those countries is transmitted herewith.

THE VIENNA EXPOSITION.

In executing the will of Congress as expressed in its joint resolution of the 14th of February last, and in accordance with the provisions of the resolution, a number of practical artisans, of scientific men and of honorary commissioners, were authorized to attend the Exposition at Vienna as commissioners on the part of the United States. It is believed that we have obtained the object which Congress had in view when it passed the joint resolution in order to enable the people of the United States to participate in the advantages of the International Exhibition of the products of agriculture, manufacture and the fine arts to be held at Vienna. I take pleasure in adding that the American exhibitors have received a gratifying number of diplomas and of medals. During the exposition a conference was held at Vienna, for the purpose of consultation on the systems prevailing in different countries for the perfection of inventions, I authorized a representative from the patent office to be present at Vienna, at the time when this conference was to take place, in order to aid as far as he might in securing any possible additional protection to American inventors in Europe. The report of this agent will be laid before Congress.

CHINA.

It is my pleasant duty to announce to Congress that the Emperor of China, on attaining his majority, received the diplomatic representatives of the Western powers in person. An account of these ceremonies and of the interesting discussions which preceded them, will be found in the documents transmitted herewith. The accompanying papers show that some advance, although slight, has been made during the past year towards the suppression of the infamous Chinese-Coolie trade. I recommend Congress to inquire whether additional legislation be not needed on this subject.

THE GENEVA AWARD.

The money awarded to the United States by the tribunal of arbitration at Geneva was paid by her Majesty's government a few days in advance of the time when it would have become payable according to the terms of the treaty. In compliance with the provisions of the act of March 3, 1873, it was at once paid into the Treasury and used to redeem so far as it might, the public debt of the United States, and the amount so redeemed was invested in a 6 per cent. registered bond of the United States for fifteen millions five hundred thousand dollars, which is now held by the Secretary of State subject to the future disposition of Congress.

I renew my recommendation made at the opening of the last session of Congress, that a commission be created for the purpose of auditing and determining the amounts of the several direct losses growing out of the destruction of vessels and their cargoes by the Alabama, the Florida or the Shenandoah, after leaving Melbourne, for which the sufferers have received no equivalent or compensation, and of ascertaining the names of the persons entitled to receive compensation for the same,—making the computations upon the basis indicated by the Tribunal of Arbitration at Geneva; and that the payment of such losses be authorized to an extent not to exceed the awards of the Tribunal at Geneva.

THE NORTHERN BOUNDARY LINE.

By an act, approved on the 14th day of February last, Congress made provisions for completing, jointly with an officer or commissioner, to be named by Her Britannic Majesty, the determination of so much of the boundary line between the territory of the United States and the possessions of Great Britain as was left uncompleted by the commissioners appointed under the act of Congress of August 11th, 1856. Under the provisions of this act the Northwest water boundary of the United States has been determined and marked in accordance with the award of the Emperor of Germany. A protocol and a copy of the map upon which the line was thus marked are contained in the papers submitted herewith. I also transmit a copy of the report of the commissioners for marking the northern boundary between the United States and the British possessions west of the Lake of the Woods, and of the operations of the commission during the past season. Surveys have been made to a point 497 miles west of the Lake of the Woods, leaving about 350 miles to be surveyed, the field work of which can be completed during the next season.

THE MIXED COMMISSION,

organized under the provisions of the treaty of Washington for settling and determining the claims of citizens of either power against the other, arising from acts committed against their persons or property during the period between April 13th, 1861, and April 9th, 1865, made its final award on the 25th day of Sept. last. It was awarded that the government of the United States should pay to the government of Her Britannic Majesty, within twelve months from the date of the award, the sum of $1,929,819 in gold. The commission disallowed or dismissed all other claims of British subjects against the United States. The amount of the claims presented by the British subjects, but disallowed or dismissed, is understood to be about $93,000,000. It also disallowed all the claims of citizens of the United States against Great Britain, which were referred to it.

I recommend the early passage of an act appropriating the amount necessary to pay this award against the United States. I have caused to be communicated to the government of the King of Italy thanks of this government for the eminent services rendered by Count Corti as the third commissioner on this commission, with dignity, learning and impartiality. He discharged duties requiring great labor and constant patience, to the satisfaction, I believe, of both governments.

WAR CLAIMS.

I recommend legislation to create a special court to consist of three judges who shall be empowered to hear and determine all claims of aliens upon the United States, arising from acts committed against their persons or property during the insurrection. The recent reference under the treaty of Washington was confined to claims of British subjects arising during the period named in the treaty, but it is understood that there are other British claims of a similar nature arising after the 9th of April, 1865, and it is known that there are other claims of a like nature advanced by citizens or subjects of other powers. It is desirable to have these claims also examined and disposed of.

Official information is being received from the Dutch government of a state of war between the King of the Netherlands and the Sultan of Ocheen. The officers of the United States who were near the seat of the war were instructed to observe an impartial neutrality; it is believed that they have done so.

THE MEXICAN CLAIMS

The joint commission, under the convention with Mexico of 1868, has again been legally prolonged and has resumed its business, which it is hoped may be brought to an early conclusion. The distinguished representative of Her Britannic Majesty at Washington has kindly consented, with the approval of his government, to assume the arduous and responsible duties of umpire in this commission, and to lend the weight of his character and name to such decisions as may not receive the acquiescence of both the arbitrators appointed by the respective governments.

THE RAIDS FROM MEXICO.

The commissioners appointed, pursuant to the authority of Congress, to examine into the nature and extent of the forage of trespassers from that country upon the herds of Texas, have made a report which will be submitted for your consideration.

THE VENEZUELAN GOVERNMENT has been apprised of the sense of Congress in regard to the award of the joint commission under the convention of the 25th of April, 1866, as expressed in the act of the 25th of February last. It is apprehended that that government does not realize the character of its obligations under that convention. As there is reason to believe, however, that its hesitancy in recognizing those springs, in part at least, from real difficulty in discharging them, in connection with its obligations to other governments, the expediency of further forbearance on our part is believed to be worthy of your consideration.

TURKEY AND EGYPT.

The Ottoman government and that of Egypt have latterly shown a disposition to relieve foreign consuls of the judicial powers which heretofore have been exercised in the Turkish dominions, by organizing other tribunals. As Congress, however, has by law, provided for the discharge of judicial functions by Consuls of the United States in that quarter, under the treaty of 1860, I have not felt ready formally to accept the proposed change without the assent of Congress, whose decision upon the subject, at as early a period as may be convenient, is earnestly requested.

SAN DOMINGO.

I transmit herewith, for the consideration and determination of Congress an application of the Republic of San Domingo for this government to exercise a protectorate over that Republic.

NEW TREATIES.

Since the adjournment of Congress the following treaties with foreign powers have been proclaimed: A naturalization convention with Denmark; a convention with Mexico for renewing the claims commission; a convention of friendship, commerce and extradition with the Orange Free State; and a naturalization convention with Ecuador.

EXPATRIATION.

I invite the earnest attention of Congress to the existing laws of the United States respecting expatriation and the election of nationality by individuals. Many citizens of the United States reside permanently abroad with their families. By the provisions of the act approved Feb. 10th, 1855, the children of such persons are to be citizens of the United States, but the rights of citizenship are not to descend to persons whose fathers never resided in the United States. It thus happens that persons who have never resided in the United States have been enabled to bring forward a pretension to the protection of the United States against the claim of military service of the government under whose protection they were born and have been reared.

In some cases naturalized citizens of the United States have returned to the land of their birth with intent to remain there, and their children, the issue of a marriage contracted there after their return, and who have never been in the United States, have laid claim to our protection when the lapse of many years have imposed upon them the duty of military service to the only government which they had ever known.

Until the year 1868 it was left embarrassed by conflicting opinions of courts and of jurists to determine how far the doctrine of allegiance derived from our former colonial relations with Great Britain was applicable to American citizens. Congress then wisely swept these doubts away by enacting that no construction, instruction, opinion, or decision of any officer of this government, which denies, restricts, impairs or questions the right of expatriation is inconsistent with the fundamental principles of this government, but Congress did not indicate in that statute, nor has it since done so, what acts are to be deemed to work expatriation.

For my own guidance in determining such questions required under the provisions of the constitution, I obtained the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon certain questions relating to this subject. The results elicited show that further legislation has become necessary. I, therefore, commend the subject to the careful consideration of Congress, and I transmit herewith copies of the several opinions of the principal officers of the executive department, together with other correspondence and information on this same subject.

The United States, who led the way in the overthrow of the feudal doctrine of perpetual allegiance, are among the last to indicate how their own citizens may elect another nationality. The papers submitted herewith indicate what is necessary to place us on a par with nations in liberality of legislation on this international question. We have already in our treaties assented to the principles which would need to be embodied in the laws intended to accomplish such results. We have agreed that citizens of the United States may cease to be citizens and voluntarily render allegiance to other powers. We have agreed that residence in a foreign land, without intent to return, shall of itself work expatriation. We have agreed in some instances to the length of time necessary for such intent.

I invite Congress now to make out and define when and how expatriation can be accomplished, to regulate by law the status of American women marrying foreigners; to fix the status of children born in a foreign country, of American parents, residing more or less permanently abroad, and to make rules for determining such other kindred points as may seem best to Congress.

OUR RELATIONS WITH SPAIN.

In compliance with the request of Congress, I transmitted to the American minister at Madrid, with instructions to present to the Spanish government, the joint resolution approved on the 3d of March last, tendering to the people of Spain, in the name and on the behalf of the American people, the congratulations of Congress on the efforts to consolidate in Spain the principles of universal liberty in a republican form of government. The existence of such a republic was inaugurated by striking the fetters from the slaves in Porto Rico.

This beneficent measure was followed by the release of several thousand persons illegally held as slaves in Cuba. Next the captain general of that colony was deprived of the power to set aside the order of his superiors at Madrid, which had pertained to his office since 1825, and the sequestered estates of American citizens, which had been the cause of long and frequent correspondence, were ordered to be restored to their owners. All these liberal steps were taken in the face of violent opposition, directed by the reactionary slanderers of Havana, who are still endeavoring to stay the tide of ideas which has terminated slavery in christendom—Cuba only excepted.

Unhappily, however, this baneful influence has thus far succeeded in defeating the efforts of all liberal-minded men in Spain to abolish slavery in Cuba, and in preventing the promised reform in that island. The struggle for political supremacy continues; the pro-slavery and aristocratic element in Cuba is gradually arraying itself in more and more open hostility and in defiance of the home government, while it still maintains a political connection with the republic on the peninsula, and although usurping and defying the authority of the home government, wherever such usurpation or defiance tends in the direction of oppression or of the maintenance of abuse, it is still a power in Madrid and recognized by the government.

Thus an element more dangerous to continued colonial relations between Cuba and Spain than that which existed at the insurrection at Coreo, an element opposed to granting any relief from misrule and abuse, with no aspirations after freedom, commanding no sympathies in generous breasts, and destined to rivet still stronger the shackles of slavery and oppression, has seized many of the avenues of power in Cuba, and under professions of loyalty to the mother country is exhausting the resources of the island, and is doing acts which are at variance with those of justice, of liberty and of right, which give nobility of character to a Republic. In the interests of humanity, of civilization and of progress, it is to be hoped that this evil influence may be soon averted.

was on the 26th day of September, 1870, duly registered at New York, as part of the commercial marine of the United States. On the 4th of Oct., 1870, having received the certificate of her register in the usual legal form, she sailed from the port of New York, and has not since been within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States. On the 31st day of October last, while sailing under the flag of the United States, on the high seas, she was forcibly seized by the Spanish gunboat Tornado, and was carried into the port of Santiago de Cuba, where many of her passengers and crew were inhumanly, and so far as appears, without cause, shot as if they were citizens of the United States, without due process of law, put to death.

It is a well established principle, asserted by the United States from the beginning of their national independence; recognized by Great Britain and other maritime powers, and adopted by the treaty of 1856, a principle passed unanimously on the 16th of June, 1858, that American vessels on the high seas,—in time of peace,—bearing the American flag, remain under the jurisdiction of the country to which they belong, and therefore any visitation, molestation, or detention of such vessels by any ship of the exhibition of force on the part of a foreign power is in derogation of the sovereignty of the United States. In accordance with this principle the restoration of the Virginius, and the surrender of the survivors of her passengers and crew, and a due reparation to our flag, and the punishment of the authorities who have been guilty of these illegal acts of violence, were demanded.

The Spanish government has recognized the justice of the demands, and has arranged for the immediate delivery of the vessel, and for the surrender of the survivors of the passengers and crew, and for a salute to the flag, and for such proceedings looking to the punishment of those who may be proved to have been guilty of illegal acts of violence towards citizens of the United States, and also towards indemnifying those who may be shown to be entitled to indemnity.

A copy of a protocol of a conference between the Spanish minister and the Spanish Minister, in which the terms of this arrangement were agreed to, is transmitted herewith. The correspondence on this subject with the Legation of the United States is by cipher and by cable, and needs the verification of the actual text of the correspondence, which has been delayed by due to the importance of the case not to submit this correspondence until the accurate text can be received by mail. It is expected shortly and will be submitted when received.

In taking leave of this subject for the present, I wish to renew the expression of my conviction, that the existence of African is a principal cause of the lamentable condition of the island.

I do not doubt that Congress shares with me the hope that it will soon be made to disappear, and that peace and prosperity may follow its abolition.

The wrongful seizing of American estates in Cuba, the cruelty to American citizens detected in no act of hostility to the Spanish government, the murdering of prisoners taken with arms in their hands, and finally the capture upon the high seas of a vessel sailing under the United States flag and bearing a United States register, has excited manifest an outburst of indignation that has seemed for a time to threaten war. Pending negotiations between the United States and the government of Spain, on the subject of the capture, I have authorized the Secretary of the Navy to put our navy on a war footing, to the extent, at least, of the entire annual appropriation for that branch of the service, trusting to Congress and the opinion of the American people to justify my action.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS PROPOSED.

Assuming from the action of the last Congress, in appointing a committee on privileges and elections to prepare and report to this Congress a constitutional amendment to provide a better method of electing the President and Vice President of the United States, and also from the necessity of such an amendment, that there will be submitted to the State legislature for ratification such an improvement in our constitution, I suggest two others for your consideration:

First, To authorize the executive to approve of so much of any measure passing the two houses of Congress, as his judgment may dictate, without approving the whole—the disapproved portion or portions to be subjected to the same rules as now, to wit: to be referred back to the House in which the measure or measures originated and if passed by a two-thirds vote of the two Houses, then to become a law without the approval of the President. I would add to this a provision that there should be no legislation by Congress during the last twenty-four hours of its sitting, except upon vetoes, in order to give the Executive an opportunity to examine and approve or disapprove the bills understandingly.

Second, To provide by amendment that, when an extra session of Congress is convened by executive proclamation, legislation during the continuance of such extra session shall be confined to such subjects as the Executive may bring before it, from time to time in writing.

The advantages to be gained by these two, amendments are obvious. One session in each year is provided for by the Constitution, in which there are no restrictions as to the subjects of legislation by Congress. If more are required, it is always in the power of Congress during their term of office, to provide for sessions at any time.

The first of these amendments would protect the public against the many abuses and waste of public moneys which creep into the appropriation bills, and other important measures passing during the expiring hours of a session, to which otherwise the consideration cannot be given.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

The receipts of the government from all sources for the last fiscal year were $333,-738,294, and expenditures on all accounts $290,345,245,—thus showing an excess of receipts over expenditures of $43,953,049. But it is not probable that this favorable exhibit will be shown for the present fiscal year. Indeed it is very doubtful whether, except with great economy on the part of Congress in making appropriations and the same economy in administering the various departments of government, the revenue will not falls short of the actual expenses, including the interest on the public debt. I commend to Congress such economy, and point out two sources where it seems to me, it might commence, to wit: In the appropriations for public buildings in the many cities where work has not been commenced, in the appropriations for river and harbor improvements, in those localities where the improvements are of but little benefit to general commerce, and for fortifications. There is a still more fruitful source of expenditure, which I will point out later in this message. I refer to the method of manufacturing claims for losses incurred in suppressing the late rebellion.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

I would not be understood here as opposing the erection of good substantial, and even ornamental buildings by the government wherever such buildings are needed. In fact I approve of the government owning its own buildings in all sections of the country, and hope the day is not far distant when it will possess them, but will erect in the capital suitable residences for all persons who now receive commutation for quarters or rent at the government expense, and for the Cabinet, thus setting an example to the States which may induce them to erect buildings for their Senators. But I would have this work conducted at a time when the revenues of the country would abundantly justify it.

THE PANIC.

The revenues have materially fallen off for the first five months of the present fiscal year, from what they were expected to produce, owing to the general panic now prevailing, which commenced about the middle of September last. The full effect of this disaster, it should not prove "a blessing in disguise," is yet to be demonstrated.

In either event it is your duty to heed the lesson and provide by wise and well considered legislation, as far as lies in your power, against its recurrence, and to take advantage of all benefits that may have accrued.

SPECIE PAYMENT.

My judgment is, that, however much individuals may have suffered, one long step has been taken towards specie payments; that we can never have permanent prosperity until a specie basis is reached, and that a specie basis cannot be reached and maintained until our exports, exclusive of gold, pay for our imports, interest due abroad, and other specie obligations, or so nearly so as to leave an appreciable accumulation of the precious metals in this country from the products of our mines.

THE PRECIOUS METALS.

The development of the mines of precious metals during the past year, and the prospective development of them for years to come, are gratifying in their results. Could one-half of the gold extracted from the mines be retained at home our advance towards specie payments would be rapid. To increase our exports, sufficient currency is required to keep all the industries of the country employed. Without this, national as well as individual bankruptcy must ensue. Undue inflation would produce ruin, while it might give temporary relief, would lead to inflation of prices, the impossibility of competing in other markets for the products of home skill and labor, and repeated renewals of present experiences. Elasticity of our circulating medium, therefore, and just enough of it to transact the legitimate business of the country, and to keep all industries employed is what is most to be desired. That exact medium is specie, the recognized medium of exchange the world over; that obtained, we shall have a currency of an exact degree of elasticity. If there be too much of it for the legitimate purposes of trade and commerce, it will flow out of the country; if too little the reverse will result. To hold what we have and to appreciate our currency to that standard, is a problem deserving of the most serious consideration of Congress.

The experience of the present panic has proved that the currency of the country, based, as it is, upon the credit of the country, is the best that has ever been devised. Usually in times of such trials currency has become worthless or so much depreciated in value as to inflate the values of all the necessaries of life as compared with the currency in the one holding it has been anxious to dispose of it on any terms. Now we witness the reverse. Holders of currency hoard as they did gold in former experiences of a like nature. It is patent to the most casual observer that much more currency or money is required to transact the legitimate trade of the country in the fall and winter months, when the vast crops are being removed, than during the balance of the year.

With our present system, the amount in the country remains the same throughout the entire year; resulting in an accumulation of all the surplus capital of the country in a few centres, when not employed in the moving of the crops, tempted there by the offer of interest on call loans. Interest being paid, this surplus capital must earn this interest paid with a profit. Being subject to "call," it cannot be loaned, only in part at least, to the merchant and manufacturer for a fixed term; hence, no matter how much currency there may be in the country, it would be absorbed, prices keeping pace with the volume, and panics, stringency and disasters would ever be recurring with the Autumn.

in our monetary system is the object to be obtained first; and next to that, as far as possible, a prevention of the use of other people's money in stock and other species of speculation. To prevent the latter it seems to me that one great step would be taken by prohibiting the national banks from paying interest on deposits by requiring them to hold their reserves in their own vaults, and by forcing them into resumption, though it would be in only legal tender notes. For this purpose I would suggest the establishment of clearing-houses for your consideration. To secure the former many plans have been suggested, most if not all of which look to me more like inflation on the one hand, or compelling the government on the other to pay interest without compounding for the increased surplus funds of the country, during the seasons when otherwise unemployed.

I submit for your consideration whether this difficulty might not be overcome by authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue at any time to the National Banks of issue any amount of their notes below a fixed percentage of their legal, say forty per cent.,—upon the banks depositing with the Treasurer of the United States, an amount of government bonds equal to the amount of notes demanded, the banks to forfeit to the government—say 4 per cent. of the interest accruing on the bonds so pledged, during the time they remain with the Treasurer as security for the increased circulation, the bonds so pledged to be redeemable by the banks at their pleasure, either in the whole or in part, by returning their own bills for cancellation to an amount equal to the face of the bonds withdrawn.

I would further suggest for your consideration the propriety of authorizing national banks to diminish their standing issue at pleasure, by returning for cancellation their own bills and withdrawing so many United States bonds as are pledged for the bills returned. In view of the great actual contraction that has taken place in the currency and the positive one that will be continually going on, due to the increase of population, the increase of manufacturers and all the industries, I do not believe that there is too much of it now for the dullest period of the year.

Indeed, if clearing houses should be established, thus forcing resumption, it is a question for your consideration whether banking should not be made free, retaining all the safeguards now organized to secure bill holders.

In any modification of the present laws regulating national banks as a further step towards preparing for the resumption of specie payments, I would strongly urge to a consideration of the propriety of exacting from them the retention as a part of their reserve either the whole or a part of the gold interest accruing upon the bonds pledged as security for their issue. I have not reflected enough on the bearing this might have in producing a scarcity of coin with which to meet our interest payments, to give it my positive recommendation, but your attention is invited to the subject.

THE CURRENCY.

During the last four years the currency has been contracted, directly, by the withdrawal of the three per cent. certificates, compound interest notes and 7.30 bonds outstanding on the 1st of March, 1879, all of which took the place of legal tenders in the bank reserves, to the extent of $63,-000,000.

During the same period, there has been a much larger comparative contraction of the currency. The population of the country is largely increased; more than 10,000 miles of railroad have been built, requiring the active use of capital to operate them; millions of acres of land have been opened to cultivation, requiring capital to move the products; manufactures have multiplied beyond all precedent in the same period of time, requiring capital, which for the payment of wages, for the purchase of material, and probably the largest of all comparative contraction, arises from the organizing of free labor in the South. Now every laborer thus receives his wages, and, for want of saving banks, the greater part of such wages is carried in the pocket or hoarded until required for use.

These suggestions are thrown out for your consideration without any recommendation that they shall be adopted literally, but hoping that the best method may be arrived at to secure such an elasticity of the currency as will keep employed all the industries of the country and prevent such an inflation as will put off indefinitely the resumption of specie payments—an object so devoutly to be wished for by all, and by none more earnestly than the class of people most directly interested—those who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow. The decisions of Congress on this subject will have the hearty support of the executive.

SHIPBUILDING.

In previous messages I have called attention to the decline in American shipbuilding, and recommended such legislation as would restore to us our proportion of the carrying trade. Stimulated by high rates and an abundance of freight, the progress for the last year in shipbuilding has been very satisfactory. There has been an increase of about three per cent. in the amount transported in American vessels over the amount for the year, with the reduced cost of material which has taken place it may reasonably be hoped that the progress will be maintained and even increased.

However, as we pay about $80,000,000 per annum to foreign vessels for the transportation of our surplus products to a market, thus increasing the balance of trade against us to this amount, the subject is one worthy of your serious consideration.

CHEAP TRANSPORTATION

is a subject that has attracted the attention of both producers and legislators for the past few years and has contributed to, if it has not been the direct cause of the recent panic and stringency. As Congress, at its last session, appointed a special committee to investigate this whole subject during vacation and report at this session, I have nothing to recommend until their report is read.

There is one work, however, of a national character in which a greater portion of the East and West the North and the South, are equally interested, to which I will invite your attention. The State of New York has a canal connecting Lake Erie with the Hudson river, and the State of Illinois has a similar work connecting Lake Michigan with navigable water on the Illinois, thus making a water communication inland between the East and the West and South.

These great artificial water courses are the property of the States through which they pass and pay toll to those States. Would it not be wise statesmanship to pledge these States that if they will open these canals for the passage of large vessels the general government will look after and keep in navigable condition the great public highways with which they connect, to wit, the overslaugh on the Hudson, the St. Clair flats and the Illinois and Mississippi rivers.

This would be a national work, one of great value to the producers of the West and South, in giving them cheap transportation for their products to the seaboard and a market; and the consumers in the East, in giving them cheaper food—particularly of those articles of food which do not find a foreign market, and the prices of which, therefore, are not regulated by foreign demand. The advantages of such a work are too obvious for argument. I submit the subject to you, therefore, without further comments.

THE AMAZON RIVER.

In attempting to regain our lost commerce and carrying trade, I have heretofore called your attention to the States south of the United States, a field where much might be accomplished to further this object. I suggest that a small appropriation be made, accompanied with authority for the Secretary of the Navy to fit out a naval vessel to ascend the Amazon river to the mouth of Madeira, thence to explore that river and its tributaries through Bolivia, and report to Congress at its next session or as soon as practicable, the accessibility of the country by water, its resources and the population so reached. Such an exploration will cost but little, it can do no harm and may result in establishing a trade of value to both nations.

TARIFF AND MINTS.

In further connection with the Treasury Department I would recommend a revision and codification of the tariff laws, and the opening of more mints for coining money, with authority to coin for such nations as may apply.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

The attention of Congress is invited to the recommendations contained in the report of the Secretary of War, herewith accompanying. The apparent great cost of supporting the army is fully explained by this report, and I hope will receive your attention. Two recommendations of the Secretary of War I would especially invite your attention.

First. The importance of preparing for war in time of peace, by providing proper armament for our seacoast defences. Proper armament is of vastly more importance than fortifications. The latter can be supplied after speedily for temporary purposes. When needed, the former cannot be.

The second is the necessity of reopening promotion in the staff corps of the army. Particularly is this necessity felt in the Medical, Pay and Ordnance Departments.

At this time it is necessary to employ contract surgeons to supply the necessary medical attendance upon troops, and civilians, orphans and dependent relatives of deceased officers, sailors, and marines of the war, making a total among pensioners of 2200, and a grand total of pensioners of all classes of 238,411, showing a net increase during the fiscal year of 6182.

EDUCATIONAL.

The evidently increasing interest in the cause of education is a most encouraging feature in the general improvement and prosperity of the country, and the bureau of education is earnest in its efforts to give proper direction to the new applicants, and the increased facilities which are being offered to aid be education of the country in their great work.

THE CENTENNIAL CENSUS.

The ninth census has been completed and the report thereof published and distributed and the working force of the bureau disbanded. The Secretary of the Interior has made preparations for a census to be taken in 1875, to which subject the attention of Congress is invited. The original suggestion in that direction was made by general inquiry from the country, and even if it be not deemed a wisable at present to provide for the decennial enumeration of the census taken in 1875, the report of which could be completed and published before the 100th anniversary of our independence, would be especially interesting, and valuable, as showing the progress of the country during the first century of our national existence. It is believed that a regular census every five years would be of substantial benefit to the country, because of the rapid increase of population, and the rapid that the results of the decennial census are necessarily unreliable as a basis of estimates for the latter years of a decennial period.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Under the very efficient management of the governor and the board of public works of this district, the city of Washington is rapidly assuming the appearance of a capital of which the nation may well be proud. Pennsylvania avenue, which a few short years ago, disagreeable to pass through in summer, in consequence of the dust arising from the unpaved roadway, and almost impassable in the winter from the mud, it is now one of the most sightly cities in the country, and can boast of being the finest street. The work has been done systematically, the plan, grades, location of sewers, water and gas mains being determined upon before the work was commenced, thus securing permanency when completed. I question whether so much has ever been accomplished in any American city for the same expenditure. The government having large reservations here should bear its just share of the expense of these improvements. Every citizen visiting the capital feels pride in government ownership in the institution of learning or university of the highest class by the donation of land. There is no place under heaven that more rapidly develops the national capital. There is no other place in which every citizen is so directly interested.

CIVIL-SERVICE REFORM.

In three successive messages to Congress I have called attention to the civil-service reform question. Action has been taken so far as to authorize the appointment of a board to devise rules governing methods of examination and appointment, but no action has been any action making these rules binding, or even entitled to observance, where persons desire to avoid appointment to office or to escape from offices official who may be disagreeable to them. To have the objective point of the reform fully attained, action of Congress as well as of the Executive. I recommend, therefore, the subject to your attention, and suggest a special committee for the purpose, if you may confer with the civil-service board during the present session, for the purpose of providing such rules as can be maintained, and which will secure the services of honest and capable officials, and which will give the incumbent of office a tenure independence while in office. Proper rules will protect Congress as well as the Executive from much needless persecution, and will prove of great value to the public at large.

ADMISSION OF COLORADO.

I recommended for your favorable consideration the admission of Colorado as a State in the Union. It possesses all the elements of a prosperous State, and its population is sufficient to entitle it to representation in Congress, and I believe it has a population to justify such admission.

A SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION.

In connection with that I would also recommend the encouragement of a canal, for purposes of irrigation, from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific coast, to the mouth of the Missouri River. As a rule, I am opposed to a further donation of public lands for internal improvements, but in this instance I would make an exception between the Missouri River and the Rocky Mountains. There is an arid belt of country, extending from one hundred to five hundred miles in width, perfectly valueless for the occupation of man for want of sufficient moisture to enable the growth of vegetable matter, in irrigating. A canal was made as productive a belt as wide as the supply of water could be made to spread over across this entire country, and would secure a cordon of settlements connecting the present populous belt of the mountains and the Pacific, with that of the older States. All the land reclaimed would be clear gain, if alternate sections are retained by the government. I would suggest that the retained sections be thrown open to entry under the homestead laws, or sold to actual settlers at a very low price.

GENERAL AMNESTY.

I renew my previous recommendation to Congress for general amnesty. The number still engaged in the late rebellion yet laboring under disabilities is very small, but enough to keep up a constant irritation. No possible danger can accrue to the government by restoring them to eligibility to hold office.

CIVIL RIGHTS.

I suggest for your consideration the enactment of a law to better secure the civil rights which freedom should secure, but has not effectually done so to the enfranchised slave.

The message of the President is receiving a cordial reception in all sections of the country, and from men of all classes. The judgment at Washington, according to the correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, is that it is the best message General Grant has ever sent to Congress.

The Republican house caucus committee have agreed to report a bill to repeal the salary increase, including members and employees. There is little doubt but that the bill, so far as it is determined the constitution will allow, will be repealed.

Havana dispatches state that the publication of the protocol for the settlement of the Virginius affair caused some excitement, which, however, soon subsided. The United States steamship Juniata has arrived at Santiago, and her commander has had an interview with the surviving passengers of the Virginius, 101 in number. It proves that only 89 prisoners were executed.

The first day's proceedings of the New Hampshire farmers' convention, at Manchester, on Tuesday, consisted of an address of welcome by Mayor Newell, reports of the condition of the various sections of the State, and the discussion of various agricultural topics.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather, Tuesday evening, the course of select assemblies opened very auspiciously at Congress hall.

A sympathetic Tennessee reporter writes up an account of the shooting of a man, and says: "The bullet penetrated his stomach, whence it was recovered by the use of an emetic, so that the lead was not lost."

It has been noticed, truthfully remarks the St. Louis Democrat, that the man who interrupt the end of a play at the theatre by breaking for the door, all have low foreheads and scrubby hair.

We presume it was the police court fiend of the Nashville Union who said of a couple of men on trial: "During the recital both demons occasionally smiled in a hellish, sarcastic way."

In a devout Thanksgiving editorial the editor of the Topeka Commonwealth remarks that: "It is difficult to believe that God ever interferes in Kansas politics," and concludes that "Thanksgiving Day is chiefly serviceable in bringing to our remembrance the fact that there is a God."

The Chicago Times wants a home for fallen men established in that burg. We suggest that they just roof the town in.

The Concert

at the Middle Street Church on Tuesday evening, by and for Willie E. Nowell, the promising young violinist, was an entertainment of great merit. The vocal performances of the Temple Quartet were finished and unexceptionable; Mr. Buck handled the beautiful organ as if he were himself "attached" to it and part of it; and the performances of the talented and unassuming young beneficiary upon his loved viol, were highly creditable and enjoyable. The audience, though fair, was not so numerous as the excellent entertainment merited, not to mention the commendable object.

Laconics.

The friends of Mr. Thomas P. Moses are to raffle an elegant new $600 piano for his benefit, in 100 shares at $6.

W. Harvey Jenness, Esq., of Rye, has been mentioned as a suitable candidate for State senator for this district.

No smelts on Great Bay yet. It is thought that the filling up the river at Dover Point will partly or entirely destroy the smelt fishing.

The caulkers are to resume work on the navy yard to-day. They have been suspended for two weeks. They go to work on the Plymouth.

The prohibitionists will meet at Sons of Temperance hall, corner of Ladd and Market streets, Friday evening, Dec. 6, at 7 1-2 o'clock, to choose delegates to attend the State convention.

The coroner's inquest in regard to the Eastern road was continued Wednesday. H. D. Hill, the engineer of the train, was examined. His testimony was not important. Some of the witnesses summoned did not appear, and the jury adjourned to meet at the call of the coroner.

Theodore Thomas, assisted by Mr Myron W. Whitney, the celebrated soloist, and an orchestra of sixty pieces, will give one of his unequalled concerts at the City Hall, Newburyport, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 10th, and as his engagements are such that it is impossible for him to favor our citizens by giving a concert in this city, arrangements have been made by which those who wish can take the six minutes past five train on Wednesday afternoon, and return in a special train after the concert. Tickets $1.70 each, including fare in the cars and reserved seat at the concert. Persons who wish to improve this opportunity to listen to one of the finest orchestras in the country, can secure their tickets by calling at Dr. Preston's drug store, Congress St.

The Sea Island Planters.

At a recent meetug the Agricultural Society of South Carolina discussed very fully the question of the Sea Island cotton-planting interest, and finally appointed a committee to invite and make arrangements for a conference, in convention, of the Sea Island planters of South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida. The committee have decided to hold the proposed convention in Charleston, on the 15th of December. Its objects they state in their circular thus: "The annual visitation of the destructive caterpillar, the ruinous rate of interest which planters have to pay for money to employ labor of an uncertain character and to buy plantation supplies, and the manifestly increasing production of Sea Island cotton in other countries, from seed of our own selection, and by labor obtained at a nominal cost, have reduced the value of our cotton below the cost of production, and rendered its consumption and sale precarious and commercially too hazardous. It is, therefore, deemed a wise course for an intelligent body of farmers to meet and counsel together, and suggest such substitute of growth as are most likely to suit our genial soil, and give a reasonable remuneration for capital and labor employed."

Architect Mullett's Report.

Mr. Mullett says in his report: "I desire once more to call attention to the eight-hour law, believing it to be alike, injurious to the best interests of the Government and the workmen themselves. It frequently happens that the mechanics and laborers employed by the Government, and those employed by contractors, are required to work on the same building and at the same time. Those employed by the Government work but eight hours, while those employed by contractors work ten hours. This causes much feeling and needs no argument to prove it is unjust, and that the mechanic who performs ten hours' work is taxed for the benefit of the more favored workman, who has friends and influence to obtain employment for him on Government work. I would recommend such modification of the law as will entitle all persons employed by the Government to the highest market rates for their labor, and the benefit of the local rules and regulations in regard to the hours of labor.

The Human Kitchen and its Dumb Waiters.

The body is supplied with aliment by vessels which connect the stomach and it auxiliaries with the venous system, and, so to speak, perform the office of dumb waiters in a restaurant. In other words, these media of communication between the animal kitchen and its dependents supply to each member and organ, near or remote, the quantity and kind of sustenance required to keep it going. When the stomach is derelict in its duty, or the dumb waiters inert or obstructed, it is the peculiar province of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters to strengthen and regulate them. Hence its marvelous cures of chronic indigestion, and the emaciation, debility and languor which are generally its concomitants. It is, moreover, a powerful alterative and corrective, and the rapidity with which it checks irregularities of the liver and bowels, and braces and invigorates the nervous system, is a marvel, not only to the general public, but to professional men.

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by cleaneling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any ink in the market. This ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

FOR SALE CHEAP AT

H. B. Buzzell & Son's,

n3 14 PLEASANT ST., OPP. POST OFFICE.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all be buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n25-1m

'73 REUNION.

THE "HISTORY OF THE RETUEN OF THE SONS & DAUGHTERS OF PORTSMOUTH, JULY, 1873," is just published. It contains 96 pages, octavo, and is a thorough detail of everything relating to the three Festal Days,

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N. H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headaches at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. I took three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membrane and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that he has the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by inexperienced traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and wants. Indeed, when we find into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture this year, has kept pace with, if it has not outstrip, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great share upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh message to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possession of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST, AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE.

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater durability of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of the heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among those interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Producer and Shipper, as well as the Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fullest and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: One Copy, one year, $2.50; Four Copies, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; Ten Copies, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (290,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in uniformity and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous binding of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is making a tremendous sensation among the people and salesmen, because it is absolutely NEW, and "has money in it." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. H. BOOT & CO., N. Y., Boston, Chicago, San Francisco or Cincinnati. td13

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
For all the Purposes of a Family Physic
CURING
Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole frame. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also Plymouth Church Declared Independent.

The meeting in Plymouth Church, which voted almost unanimously to decline the interference of the Church of the Pilgrims and the Clinton Avenue Church, in the matter of dropping T. Tilton's name off the rolls, numbered over a thousand persons. After the resolution had been debated, Mr. Beecher came forward and delivered the most fiery and eloquent speech he ever uttered, in support of Plymouth Church and its right to maintain its own discipline. In conclusion, he said:—

I would to God I stood on a platform so absolutely independent that every Christian church should say, "That is his utterance, and we are not responsible." I don't want the Baptists to be responsible for my notions of Millenium or Communion; I don't want the Presbyterians to be responsible for my ideas of Church Government nor my ideas of the Westminster Confession of Faith; nor do I want the Congregational Church of New England to be responsible for my ideas of the fall of Adam and original sin, nor for my conception of the Atonement; and, therefore, I say again, that although I may do no violence, nor thrust myself out of the place where God put me, it would be an infinite relief if I could stand on a platform where no man on earth was responsible for the things I said. I don't think it is fair to put it on my brethren, and let them bear all of the load; but still if they love it let them do it. I shall not live a thousand years longer; my work is not, I feel, far from done; while I do live I have that one desire that has kindled in my heart, ever since I was a boy—I have loved my kind. [Applause.] I have loved man more than anything—that is except Him that redeemed men, and my whole nature goes out in that way. When I am under the inspiration of these sympathies I care not what theology nor churches nor men think about it; while I love men and feel that I am beloved by them, I will not be turned aside from my work. I will go on preaching as I have preached before, fearlessly and freely; and if God gives me a church to take care of I will attempt to govern that church by no management, no machinery of government except that applied in the absolute existence of the church itself. I will govern it by making government unnecessary. I will govern it by influencing men in such a way that they shall do the thing that is right. I give you a fair notice of my intention. [Applause.] I will attempt to put down ecclesiasticism here and everywhere as not in accordance with the highest plan of Christian experience, nor with the best interpretation of the New Testament, nor with the dictates of the Holy Ghost as poured out upon the hearts of God's people everywhere, and I advocate the passage of these resolutions, but not in any taunting spirit. I would willingly take back some of the things said here to-night which were not agreeable to my ears or heart. If you think I am one that would be pleased by denunciation of the men that inveigh against me, you don't understand me. If you don't think I love those brothers after I have done so all my life long, because at present they happen to be divided in judgment against me, and, with pain to themselves, are opposed to what they think wrong in the church, you don't understand me. There is not a day nor an hour that I could not go to any man who ever lived on God's earth and take him before Christ with all sincerity and say: "By the love which I bear for this man, be patient with him." I live to love men, and though naturally I am a good hater, a good fighter, yet I owe thanks to the blessed God that at least, while old age is beginning to whiten my hair [and here Mr. Beecher's voice sank to a tremulous whisper,] I can turn to all my fellow beings, and shining with one undiminished increasing disposition of sympathy, of helpfulness, of patience, born of that love which is born of God and say: "Dearly beloved brethren of this church, keep me or let me go; let me live or let me die; living or dying I am the Lord's, and desire to live in an atmosphere such as breathes from the very heart of God, not in contentions and not in slaughters." [Prolonged applause.]

While Mr. Beecher was speaking of his years with the church, tears rolled down his face, and many of his audience were affected in the same way.

"Malindy" Runs Away.

It was a lively rattle of shoe-leather down on Main street yesterday afternoon, says the Dalton (Texas) Herald—a young girl ahead, and an old man behind. O, she was sweet, and O, he was fierce and ugly! She was a daughter, and he her "pa." She had left her home because her "ma" had said she shouldn't have her own way; but she would have her own way, and if she couldn't have it at home, she'd have it somewhere else. So her "ma" got up one fine morning to find that "Matilda" (that was her real name as pronounced by the old man) had not milked the cows, and when she went to inquire "why" and "if she could be sleeping," no Matilda was to be seen. Then there was a noise—considerable of a noise. The old heads shook dubiously over the absence of the young heart, and they all at once remembered "Matilda's" threat, and the old lady got her bonnet and the old man his hat, and with an old green cotton umbrella they took the first train from a station on the Central road, and were "set down" at length in this city. The old lady, after an hour's argument, concluded to stay at the depot and let the "pa" part of the business reconnoitre. He wore the cap of Fortunatus, and did not know it. The first "young gal" he met was "his gal." He called. She turned, saw, and fled. With youth still in his limbs, and "thrice armed," because his quarrel was just, he gained upon the pretty fugitive, and at last, with his hand upon her arm, said, "Stop!" She stopped. He scolded. She pouted. He stamped and growled. She defied and cringed not. Then, he wheedled and cajoled. Then she dropped eyes, and was silent. Then he held out his arms and cried. Then she fell upon his shoulder and sobbed, and they took a car for the depot. "Ma" covered them both with gushes, and her repentant birdling with a shawl, and in the soft birth of the morning, passionless and calm, they went their way rejoicing."

Assurances are received from the Spanish government that the authorities in Cuba will make no opposition to the terms of settlement of the Virginius affair. There are rumors, not credited, however, of further complications with Spain.

The war against the salary bill continues at Washington.

Thirty Spaniards met in New York, Wednesday, in answer to a call which had been freely circulated, to protest against the protocol entered into by Secretary Fish and Admiral Polo in regard to the Virginius affair. The meeting agreed to issue an address to the citizens of Spain, setting forth that the Spanish residents of New York have no sympathy with and do not countenance Admiral Polo's action.

A gentleman in Virginia, when exerting himself one day, felt a sudden pain, and fearing some internal injury, sent for a negro living on the plantation, who made pretensions to medical skill, to prescribe for him. The negro, having sagely investigated the case, prepared and administered a dose with the utmost confidence of a speedy cure. No relief being obtained, however, a regular physician was sent for, who, on arriving, inquired of the negro what he had given. Sambo promptly responded, "Rosin and alum, sir!" "What did you give them for?" continued the doctor. "Why," replied Sambo, "de alum to draw de parts togedder and de rosin to soder 'em."

The gradual disappearance of the lobster from the coast of Norway has induced a Mr. Hansen to experiment on its artificial reproduction. He made his first attempt last year, but as he did not begin until September, nothing of any account was accomplished. This year Mr. Hansen placed in the water a large box, furnished with a rim instead of a lid, so that the lobster might be exposed to the sun and air, and at the same time would not be able to get out. Early in July three full grown females were placed in the box. In a few days the surface of the water was swarming with young lobsters. This fact will easily account for their disappearance when fish, fowl and winds are taken into consideration. When Mr. Hansen was last heard from the young lobsters were not then sufficiently grown to be able to take care of themselves, but he expected that by the end of the autumn they would be able to protect themselves from their worst enemies. Next year he proposes enclosing a park into which the young lobsters may be introduced from the hatching boxes, and in which they will not suffer from close packing.

The Kansas Pacific Railroad Company defaulted on its interest due Monday on $4,063,000 bonds, and the interest on $350,600 7 per cent. gold bonds of the Tebo and Neosho Railroad, which should have been paid by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad Company, was also passed.

The New Chief Justice.

Attorney General George H. Williams, who has been appointed to the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, was born in Columbia county, N. Y., in 1823. After receiving an academic education and completing his law studies, he removed to Iowa. In 1853, he was appointed Chief Justice of the Territory of Oregon, and was reappointed in 1857, but resigned. He was elected to the United States Senate from that Stae in 1865, and at the expiration of his term was appointed Attorney General of the United States.

Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D. C.

[Lippincott's Magazine for December.]

There are few more interesting thoroughfares in the world than this avenue. Here ruler and ruled jostle each other; here thunder the liveried equipages of foreign nobles; here saunters the President, and nobody turns to look. Sooner or later all the famous of the world are tolerably sure to be met upon it; as we walk there History walks beside us and mighty shadows move before us. Washington has dashed down that avenue in his yellow chariot that was painted with cupids and drawn by six white horses; Hamilton, Jefferson, Lafayette, Burr, and all the gods of the republic have trodden it before us; dishonoring British squadrons have marched upon it; it has shaken to the tread of our own legions; and great terms begin to loom in the national memory that have just passed from its daily crowds. Nor does all its interest belong to the past; those daily crowds themselves are full of perpetual dramas in which the actors are unknown perhaps to fame or fiction, but none the less real, and in sad earnest with their play. Here goes a little withered man in his threadbare coat; he has a proud and scowling face, but he pauses with a singularly sweet and gentle manner at every group of children, black or white. He is an old numismatician, a foreigner, and his youth in Europe was given to the gathering of coins and medals till he had a nearly unrivaled collection, and he came over the sea, hoping to dispose of them to the government of this country. Failing in his purpose, his means dwindling day by day, he was obliged to pledge a portion of his treasure that he might be able to live. It cut him to the heart to divide his collection. He had the history of the world in those incontrovertible records of brass and silver and gold; currency of the old Hindoo, of the Assyrian; medals where Alexander's superb profile shone crowned as Apollo; coins of the Ptolemies, of the Cæsars, of almost every people and generation from the beginning of civilization till to-day. But divide them he did, and left a part of them in other hands, and went to the North. There, driven by necessity, he pledged another portion; and after a while, wishing to redeem the latter pledge, and not being allowed to do so, he began a lawsuit to obtain it. The court decided the case against him; and the little man, half crazed, unable to obtain the portion he had pledged in Washington, and now seeing this also leave him, cried out in the open court, "O, unjust Judge! God shall demand your soul of you!" And the Judge, with a sudden exclamation, fell backward, and before the sun set he was dead. The little numismatician returned to Washington, and having failed in all the hopes of his life, took translating and any other writing he could find to do. But there a certain high official having treated him unworthily, he adjured him as much as he had adjured the unjust Judge; and a fortnight afterward the official had gone to join the Judge. It is hardly surprising if there were a vague feeling toward this really excellent man and scholar as toward one having the evil eye, whom people dread to meet and fear to offend.

But here is another individual with another experience. Gems are his passion, and for years he has sacrificed to it. He is only an old clerk on a moderate salary, but no misadventure has ever disturbed his plans, and year by year he has added some treasure to his hoard till it is unique as it is precious. There are rings of Bishops and Kings; jeweled baubles from Egyptian tombs and gold-wrought ornaments of the Montezumas; a cameo where a single face with its shadows makes six laughing and six weeping outlines; a cat's-eye quartz to which the one the King of Siam has is perhaps the mate; diamonds and pearls, amethysts and topazes, beryls and opals, single emeralds of rare beauty and doublets of great size, rubies of the real pigeon's blood, and sapphires whose heart is blue as the blackest midnight, but whose angles refract a radiance red as fire; chains of carved beads; seals, intaglios—to almost all of them some legend attaching.

Here passes a person very different from either of these—a tall and martial figure, a filibustero in every clime, hunted with blood-hounds in the Spanish sierras when Don Carlos needed him, floated naked on bladders down the Danube with dispatches in his mouth when the Hungarians were sore pressed. Here goes a jolly, happy man, who contentedly lets title and coronet go by across the sea while he practices law in the Patent Office. Here on the avenue go up and down all these people, and countless others with stories as pointed, whether it be such a story as that of Captain Suter, whose treacherous servant bartered all the gold of California for a single drink, or of this black man who to-day is free and yesterday was a slave.

A Young Hippopotamus.

Mr. Frank Buckland writes in Land and Water:

Wednesday last, the 5th of November, being the first birthday of little Guy Fawkes, the young hippopotamus, I have called at the Zoological Gardens to wish the pretty little fellow "many happy returns of the day." After he had finished his breakfast, Prescott, the keeper, enticed Guy Fawkes and his mother out of the water. The little one is as tame, playful and docile as a kitten. We made him out to be about six feet four long, and two feet ten at the shoulders. His back is a black color, but his cheeks, chest and legs are of a lovely pink salmon color. We calculated his weight to be nearly one ton, and his mother would make and weigh about three little hippos. He eats and sleeps well, and, besides his natural nourishments, his meals consist of chaff, bran, mangold-wurzel, scalded oats, biscuit, and sugar. He is very fond of anything sweet. He has already learned to beg for food; he puts his head out between the bars, opens his mouth and pricks up his little ears when he wants to beg. The gape of his mouth is about 18 inches, he has already a most lovely set of teeth, and the tusks begin to project out of his pink gums. His mother is very watchful over him, and if she thinks anyone is about to disturb her child, hisses loudly like a big snake. Every morning, when it is moist and wet, he and his mother are let out into the bath outside; when it is dry and frosty they are kept in the house, as the frost would crack and parch their delicate skins. When in his morning bath he is very playful, and plunges about like a porpoise. The pair of hippos sleep on the straw all night, but they spend a great portion of the day in their bath in the house in a sort of semi-sleep. They float up to breathe apparently without an effort, like corks rising to the surface. When under water they keep their eyes wide open after the manner of crocodiles. When the mouth of the young one is wide open, it will be seen that the tongue is arched directly upward, so as to form a compact valve, which prevents the water going down the gullet. The old father in the next den talks to his wife and child by means of sonorous gruntings, and they answer him. The father's face is much longer and sharper than that of his wife, and his eyes and nose are much more prominent. I understand from Mr. Bartlett, who kindly allowed me a private interview with the hippos, that another baby is expected about next April, and that Barnum is most anxious to obtain it. I doubt if he will: let him go and catch a wild baby hippo for himself. The excellent health and condition of the three hippos does Mr. Bartlett, and Prescott, their personal valet, the greatest credit. I forgot, when writing the above, to mention that Guy Fawkes turns out, after all, to be a young lady hippo; she is more delicately featured than her father, and is very like her mother in face. Let us all wish her "many happy returns of the day."

Senator Sumner's Financial Measure.

Mr. Sumner's bill to authorize compound interest notes as a substitute for legal tender notes directs the Secretary of the Treasury to prepare for circulation compound interest notes similar to those issued under the act of March 3, 1873, and equal in amount to outstanding legal tender notes and fractional currency of the United States. Twenty million dollars of these notes are to be dated on the first day of each month, commencing with the first of next July, and these notes shall be paid out for all currency disbursements of the Treasury and exchanged for legal tender notes so as to put the full sum of $20,000,000 into circulation each month. Legal tender notes to an equal amount are to be destroyed each month. The compound interest notes so issued are at the end of two years to be convertible at the holders' option in sums of $100 or its multiple into 10-40 5 per cent. bonds, which the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to issue whenever these notes or the bonds into which they may be converted can be sold at par in gold. The Secretary of the Treasury may sell them in such sums as may be called for, and apply the proceeds in gold, to cancel legal tender notes as they are paid into the Treasury. It is finally provided that the compound interest notes issued under this act shall constitute no part of the legal currency reserve required of the national banks.

The Whereabouts of Peter Brains Sweeny.

The exact locality of Peter B. Sweeny's present habitation is by no means easy to ascertain. It is known that he first found a refuge in Canada, but he is also known to have been enjoying his ease and dignity at Lake Mahopac last summer. Subsequently he was in Europe, and it is said he has been seen in New York within two weeks. Inquiries among his friends, however, are answered by the statement that he was last seen in England, and that he is probably either spending the winter in that country or hibernating in Ireland. Sweeny does not now stand charged with any crime. An indictment was found against him, but it was by a grand jury which Judge Bedford had with questionable authority continued from term to term, and the indictment has been quashed upon the ground that the jury finding it had been illegally continued. This, of course, does not prevent the finding of a new indictment, and as the statute of limitations has now been extended to five years, there are still two years and more during which an indictment may at any time be found.

The Ville Du Havre Disaster.

The purser of the ill-fated steamship Ville du Havre gives the following narrative of the disaster:—

"We were seven days out. It was Saturday night. I was sleeping when the collision occurred. Rushing on deck I descried a sailing ship, and three minutes later gained the fearful conviction that the ship was going down by the bow. Thirty or forty passengers managed to get into the long boat and life grew strong with them when freed from the sinking ship. But suddenly the mizzenmast fell over the left side of the vessel, killing or wounding nearly the whole of them. Immediately afterward the mainmast fell on the deck, killing and wounding more. The water was rushing down the windpipe with a fearful velocity. The vessel was sinking. I jumped overboard with another person, and swan toward the Loch Earn, half a mile off. Looking around, I saw the steamer disappear without reeling, going down bow foremost. For a moment a mighty shriek rent the air, the last outbreak of agony. A death-like calm succeeded the noise and tumult. The captain remained on the bridge during the whole scene. He was rescued one hour later. Six officers out of the fifteen were saved by swimming, except the First Lieutenant, who went in a boat to the Loch Earn. The purser gives a touching narrative of the presence of a French priest, who, amid deathlike calmness on deck, dispensed blessings."

The boats cruised about until ten o'clock the next morning, in hopeless efforts to pick up others. The survivors remained on board the British ship until 3 o'clock P. M., and were then transferred to the American ship Tri Mountain, commanded by Capt. Urquhart, who gives the following narrative:

"On Saturday morning we saw a vessel with the weather-bow bowsprit gone and sails flowing, which proved to be the Loch Earn, of Glasgow, bound for New York. The Captain asked to transfer the surviving passengers and crew of the steamer Ville du Havre, which sank at 2 o'clock that morning. All except two, one a French priest, and the other, a person who remained to act as nurse, were transferred. It was a pitiful sight to see these human beings huddled together in a small cabin, heart-broken and destitute of clothing, but still thankful for their lives, and grateful for the hospitality received on the Loch Earn. Many were hurt by fragments of the wreck. We cruised till nearly dark, and then proceeded on the voyage to Bristol. Not a vestige of the Ville du Havre—man, woman or child—could be discovered in the neighborhood of where the collision occurred. There was a rather heavy sea, but little wind, when the disaster occurred."

That Turtle Dog.

[Peoria Review.]

If anybody has seen a black-and-tan dog, answering to the name of "Judge," going down street in company with a hard-shell turtle, that won't answer to anything, and certainly won't answer to tackle, as the dog can tell you if you can get him to stop long enough, please halt the eloping pair, as they are the property of the editor of this paper. We are fondly attached to the dog, on account of his vagabondish, Bohemianish habits. He knows every dog in Peoria by name, and is on speaking terms with nine-tenths of the granger dogs that come in under the wagons, and he knows more of the inhabitants of this city than the tax-collector does. The turtle is a more recent acquisition. It was placed in the back yard yesterday, and the dog spent an hour and a half trying to entice it to come out of its shell and be sociable. The old iron-clad maintained his reserve, however, until the dog crammed his nose against the forward part and began to sniff. The pair seemed to come to some understanding at once, for the dog made an impetuous remark on a very high key, and they both started on a trip after Donaldson's balloon. When the dog jumped over Fisher's barn we thought he had struck the eastern current and would get right through, but we learn since that he landed and was sauntering along like a whirlwind, the turtle staying right by him. We should be very sorry to lose the dog just now, as he has acquired another and valuable quality. He knows more about turtles than any other dog in the country, and it's mighty hard to find a real good turtle dog.

The Cost of Living in the South.

The Savannah Advertiser, quoting an Augusta contemporary, calls for a "marking down" of prices, saying:

In our Southern cities the rents and rates are enormous, and it is almost impossible for a man with a moderate income to get a decent house in a convenient neighborhood. Marketing, too, in the South, is simply atrocious. Meats are within bounds, but vegetables are entirely too high. One reason of this is because the South, for some inexplicable reason, has not understood and employed the fractions of the nickel. At the North nobody, even during inflated prices, ever thought of giving more than two cents for a soup-bunch and four cents for a cabbage. In our market a soup-bunch, and a poor one at that, costs ten cents, and a cabbage of ordinary dimensions brings twenty-five cents. There should be reform in these and other things. Let somebody start the fractional copper currency here, if possible, and let venders of small articles understand that they must "mark down," as well as the venders of luxuries.

It is said that notwithstanding his industry and the apparent popularity of his works, Ruskin has never made money by their publication.

After all, it was not our Andy who prepared a patent plane, upon which to launch in (as the Pilgrim would say) for a new public career. It was some other Andy, a Johnson from California, and who stoutly asserts himself to be no relative of Mrs. Surratt's friend.

The Baptist Church in Stamford, Conn., celebrated its centennial last week with a dinner and addresses by their pastors, past and present, and others. "The speeches," says the Examiner and Chronicle, "were all good, none better than that of Dr. Dodge, of the Universalist Church.

The small boat made from the wreck of the Polaris, and from which the Buddington party were rescued, is to be brought over from Glasgow and placed in the Smithsonian Institute at Washington.

20,000 cures of Piles have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments, and quack nostrums always make them worse ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple, permanent cure, acts as a bougee, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

"Tried and True." What words of confidence and trust are these! It is what many a poor sufferer can say of HELMBOLD'S BUCHU. It is the only reliable medicine of those terrible diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Beware of counterfeits. The genuine has the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. Full direction with each bottle. For sale by all druggists.

The Human Kitchen and its Dumb Waiters.

The body is supplied with aliment by vessels which connect the stomach and it auxiliaries with the venous system, and, so to speak, perform the office of dumb waiters in a restaurant. In other words, these media of communication between the animal kitchen and its dependents supply to each member and organ, near or remote, the quantity and kind of sustenance required to keep it going. When the stomach is derelict in its duty, or the dumb waiters inert or obstructed, it is the peculiar province of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters to strengthen and regulate them. Hence its marvelous cures of chronic inactivity of the stomach, and the numerous ailments incidental to which are generally its concomitants. It is, moreover, a powerful alterative and corrective, and the rapidity with which it checks irregularities of the liver and bowels, and braces and invigorates the nervous system, is a marvel, not only to the general public, but to professional men.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners destroying to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new.

E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

A New Grammar.

We have hastily glanced at a new text book entitled "Kerl's shorter course in English Grammar," which aims to obviate the objections hitherto urged against such treatises and to correspond the work to the modern style of a preliminary oral course supplementing it with lesssons in text. A great difficulty in the study of grammar lies in the long stretches between what is learned and its practical application or beauty; and another chief difficulty is the abstract nature of the subject. Our schools in common with most others have been afflicted with didactic expositions of English grammar, heavy with wordy definitions, so profound as to be entirely beyond the comprehension of the ordinary beginner and the result has been a constant wail, from the teachers in the matter of poor grammars. Years ago, we were familiar with Smith's grammar, an excellent work for the young scholar and while, perhaps, it had some objectionable features, still, for simplicity of style, and the absence of profundity, it has not yet been equalled. Kerl's book seems to meet the want complained of; and by illustrations and exercises inducts the young mind into the mysteries of orthography, etymology and syntax with an ease that is refreshing. We cordially recommend this work to the attention of our school committee and teachers, and trust that the grammar now in use may be discarded, and Kerl's treatise be given a fair trial.

The elements are in a melting mood just now. Education of Apes.

The suggestions of a writer in Nature proposing that some experiments be made in the domestication and education of the higher anthropoid apes, has borne fruit in a general submission of views on the subject; and a correspondent of the American Naturalist puts the condition of such an experiment in the form they must necessarily assume. "Suppose," says the writer, "a man whose wealth corresponded with his love for scientific investigation, or some liberal institution or government in his place, should begin the following experiment, viz., the careful education of a family of the most intelligent apes, through generations, with a view of determining whether such a system would result in an increased development of brain, both in size and quality, and in the retention by one generation of knowledge acquired by a former." The editor of the Naturalist thinks the experiment is one worth pondering, as it would settle many an issue in regard to the doctrine of evolution, which is now the subject of mere plausible conjectures.

The newspapers in Pennsylvania stand 208 in favor of the new constitution and 18 against it.

Massachusetts' Big Bore.

The Hoosac Tunnel, from an engineering point of view, is a big affair. It is 25,031 feet long—four miles—two miles less than the Mont Cenis Tunnel. It has two shafts letting in air from above—one 318 feet deep, and the other 1,028; and so accurate was the work of the engineers, that the parties working through the bowels of the mountain toward the shaft varied from the proper direction hardly a hair's breadth. The cost of the enterprise has been 136 lives, several reputations, and $10,000,000 of money.

As to what it will accomplish, New York and Boston differ. The latter city points out that she is two hundred miles nearer the Old World grain markets than New York, and, by this time, just as near, via the Erie Canal and New York Central, to the grain supply of the West. New York, on the other hand, turns up her nose, and replies that she has the business and Boston can't take it away. At all events it opens a rivalry between the two cities which promises well for the prosperity of the West and Western farmers.

—"Sympathy," says John Paul, "is something which I never withhold from those in trouble, whether they happen to be friends or not; there's nothing mean about me. I find, too, that one can go around shedding sympathy on all sides for weeks at a time without spending a cent, or being at much personal inconvenience.

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow black in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

'73 REUNION.

THE "HISTORY OF THE RETURN OF THE SONS & DAUGHTERS OF PORTSMOUTH, JULY, 1873," is just published. It contains 96 page, octavo, and is a thorough detail of everything relating to the three Festal Days,

The Reunion, July 4th,

High School Reunion, 5th,

The Praise Meeting, 6th; and containing a

Verbatim Report

of every speech that was uttered at the Tent on the 4th and 5th, besides giving a full report of all the Reunion preliminary movements in Portsmouth, Boston and New York. Much of the matter of this work has never yet appeared in any form, and we think it will prove interesting to all who participated in the Three Days' Jubilee.

The work is for sale at the Chronicle Office, J. H. Foster's Bookstore, and at Wm. R. Preston's.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choknigs, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hennikes, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

HIS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choknigs and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six weeks ago. I feel a decided relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1873.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, or Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Hectic Fevers, Lost Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon sound Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women, and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

DRY AND GROUND ZINC, LITHARGE, RED LEAD, LEAD PIPE, SHEET LEAD, TIN PIPE, TIN LINED PIPE, IRON PIPE & FITTINGS, PUMPS, &c.

Our Pure White Lead, both dry and ground in oil, we warrant to be strictly pure, and GUARANTEE that for fineness, body and durability, are not surpassed by any Lead in the market, either Foreign or American.

In order to protect ourselves, we have adopted as our trade mark an eight-pointed red star, with our corporate seal in the centre. This is on every package of our Pure Lead. None genuine without it.

"A Complete Pictorial History of the Times"—"The best, cheapest, and most successful Family Paper in the Union."

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 130,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, compass, taste, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has not led the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its patrons, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—and utterly without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of the paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates" is rapidly yielding to a more educated, and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general attractiveness. To the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The Best" and "The Week." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, (ix 20 inches), representing a little Italian exile to whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with oil Chromos free.

FOR 99 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and delivered free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, within the responsibility of the publishers, and in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West, and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the Soil—from Those Who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owners of the Productions—Breeders of Improved Stock and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Horticulturists and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the prospects, prices and returns of each successive Season, as they throw light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and one additional copy for the year free, to the person for of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

"Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry"

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

and all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nearly one-fifth of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
BRILLIANT OIL-COLOR PICTURES
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

CURING
Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion; Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dysyrsias, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL.
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a competent and experienced, and skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being mined from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO A PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or discouraged by users desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and in far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. De Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

MUSTER-DAY IN 1823.

[New York Argus.]

To one whose memory extends back through the period of half a century, no reminiscence comes more vividly to mind than that of the regimental muster of that time. In view of the struggle of real warfare that our nation has since passed through the ancient muster may seem an insignificant affair, but in the days of its prime it was the great social, as well as military institution of the season. It was looked forward to with interest, not merely by militiary men, but by youths and maidens, boys and girls, and even by hard working wives and mothers, albeit they were obliged to work yet harder, for weeks beforehand, to get the children's clothes ready, and even to repair, or to help make the husband's military suit. I remember that the getting together of my father's coat was a great occasion. It was of dark blue broadcloth cut at Concord, by a tailor who was supposed to know how a colonel's coat ought to fit, but made at home by a tailoress, Mrs. Leach, who was in our house a week, for that purpose. It was mostly covered with gilt lace, and his epaulettes cost $12. Perhaps he purchased glory cheaply but I know that, to my mind, these epaulettes represented a great sum. The coat was further set off by an elegant ruffled shirt, the construction of which cost the skillful fingers of my youngest aunt many days' labor. Nor was it enough, in those days, for an officer to be generous to himself. He must treat his men generously. When my father was captain, I remember that he invited his whole company to breakfast at his house, on muster morning, and my mother was up all night making the necessary preparations. A sheep was slain, cut up and baked for the occasion, with other things to keep it company. The 30th New Hampshire regiment was composed of men from Warner, New London, Bradford, Newbury, (then Fishersfield) Sutton, Wilmot, and at one time Salisbury. For many years they mustered at Jonathan Harvey's, in Sutton. Using my best judgment, I should say that nature made that muster field with special reference to military display, just as much as each man's uniform was made for the same purpose; for I do not know of another like it in Sutton, nor in any of the towns adjacent. A high table-land, embracing more than twenty acres, so level that the eye could take in the whole scene at once, is a rare thing in the broken mountainous region I speak of. From a distance of two or three miles, Kearsarge mountain, like a commander-in-chief, with his staff of smaller hills could, and always did, survey the pageant at leisure.

Like Christmas, muster day always began the evening before, and the clans were gathering all night. Peddlers, showmen, and other itinerants of a more or less questionable character, who followed the muster around all over the State, began to arrive. The refreshment tents, which for some days had been in process of erection, were, by this time, well stocked with needful things to eat,—oysters, gingerbread, water melons, honey, apples, cider and stronger liquors.

In the afternoon the inspector general arrived, with his suit, and was at once shown to the best apartments in the house, a large roomy mansion built, and for some years used, for a tavern, as it was then termed.

The next most important arrival was Tony Clark, with his fiddle for the dancers. Before midnight the house, barns and sheds were filled to the utmost capacity with visitors of various social grades, determined to lose no fraction of muster day. Cæsar Lewis, a colored man like Tony, with his wife —Dinah—was always on hand to assist in waiting on the table of officers and gentry. The last thing that everybody, in all the towns I have named, invariably did, before going to bed, was, to cast an eye up to the weather to see what it promised for the morrow. In those days if people desired to know about the weather, they had to consult the weather itself; they could not tell by looking in one the Boston Dailies, for then "Old Prob." had not established his signal stations from Mount Washington to the peaks of the Pacific coast.

Towards morning the roads leading to the muster field were full of vehicles of every description, loaded and packed with arms, soldiers, women and children. The mothers must go to take care of their offspring, and a sorry time they had of it, for to keep them out of mischief was a thing impossible. Had not the boys and girls been saving up their coppers for weeks, with a view to this very occasion, and weren't they going to have a good time out of it? The possible detriment to clothing or stomach was not to be considered a moment. To those who lived near it was comfort enough to lie in bed and hear the teams go by, with shouts and occasional drum beats, and know for a certainty that it was really muster morning. Generally the artillery was the first company we used to hear going by. One platoon of perhaps 80 men composed this company, with one 12 pound brass field piece, mounted on a blue carriage. They belonged to Warner. On the morning that I well remember, about the year 1823, before 9 o'clock, Jonathan Harvey, Adj't, mounted on a splendid horse, took his station in front of the house, and called the companies in their order, and as they formed escorted them to their station on the field. First, the cavalry, consisting of 100 men and horses. Their uniform scarlet coats, buff pants, and black shakos plumed. They rode two abreast, and to them was assigned the extreme left of the field, (as viewed from the west.) Next came the grenadiers, in scarlet coats, white pants and tall, conical shaped, black shiny leather caps. This company was organized by Capt. John Harvey, and, until his promotion, commanded by him, when 1st Lieutenant Daniel Woodward took the command. Next to the grenadiers, appeared a company of riflemen, dressed in frocks like back-woodsmen. At their head, marching four abreast, were four "pioneers," with pikes and tomahawks. This company came from Bradford. Next came six or seven companies of infantry, armed and equipped, but not uniformed. The artillery occupied the extreme right of the field.

At the head of the regiment rode John Harvey, Colonel, he having just succeeded his brother, Philip S. Harvey, in the same office. The group of mounted officers consisted of Inspector-General Solomon McNiel with his suite, Gen. Hoyt of Bradford, a fine looking officer, with his staff, Anthony Colby, Major, (Gov. Colby, recently deceased, full of years and honors, and well known by all.)

For music, each company had a bass drum, tenor drum, and fife. The cavalry had a bugle. When the companies were all on the field, the whole was withdrawn to form together a band, under the direction of a drum major. Sometimes a Bartlett, of Warner, held this office. (It is understood that I am writing the combined recollections of two or three musters that I witnessed about the year 1823.) The music was stationed a little to the right of the center in advance of the regiment.

The adjutant formed the whole regiment into a hollow square, into which he presently escorted the chaplain, surgeon, and mate. The chaplain, Rev. Oren Tracy of New London, was a man of fine personal appearance, a good sonorous voice, and complete master of the handsome horse he rode. He wore a cloak thrown gracefully back to display the star on his breast. The surgeon was sometimes Dr. Henry Lyman of Warner, whose handsome appearance some may remember. My own recollections point more directly to the time when I saw Dr. Robert Lane of Sutton acting as surgeon of the muster field. As he sat there on his horse, he seemed to me the embodiment of grace and conscious power. The chaplain prayed, the whole regiment listening with uncovered heads.

Then the regiment was placed in a line stretched across the field. Then the inspector general and field officers advanced, the music saluting them by rapid drum beats, and three prolonged notes on the fife. Then the captains of the companies advanced and saluted their superior officers. Then the colonel said, "Attention, battalion," and battalion drill followed. After that came inspection, a tedious process, occupying several hours. The inspector general went through the whole regiment, and if anything was wrong, even a spot of rust on a gun, a rip in a knapsack, or if the "two spare flints" were not produced, made a note of it.

I forgot to say in its proper place that I remember Simon Bartlett of Warner present at one time as major, at another, I think, he was quartermaster. I should also mention another uniformed company, the "Washington Blues" of New London. Their uniform was very handsome—dark blue, hemmed with gilt lace, and bell buttons. All wore high neck stocks. They were at one time commanded by Anthony Colby, at another time by one of the Burpees. Capt. John Pike also commanded one of the New London companies.

The regimental flag was placed in the center of the field, at first. After inspection the honor of carrying the colors at the grand review was awarded to the company that had made the best appearance in drill, discipline, and at arms. That was a very exciting moment when the captain of the fortunate company was called forward to receive from the hand of the inspector general the honored flag, with the accompanying words of compliment. He took it, bowed, and passed it to one of his subalterns, and perhaps th at was the proudest moment of his life.

After inspection the men were dismissed for dinner—a grand dinner being provided at the house for the officers.

After dinner the regiment was called to the field again by the discharge of the cannon, and formed as in the morning. "Grand review" followed, all the men under the captains marched before their superior officers, making the circuit of the field. This was the really splendid feature of the day's exercises.

Then came the last scene, the sham fight, when the regiment was divided, and the two halves were instructed to "fight it out on that line" against each other.

When this was over, they were dismissed, and the muster was done. But oh! the excitement and noise that followed! The shouts of auctioneers, heard above the din of other voices, the confusion of carriages and horses and peddlers' carts, men women and children, running against each other.

Meantime, at the house, another kind of evolutions were going on—Tony Clark with his fiddle acting as inspector general. As soon as possible after the dinner tables were cleared away the hall was made ready for the dancers. The muster ball was a splendid affair. Even high military functionaries did not disdain to take off boots and don their pumps, and join with the wives and daughters of the military and social aristocracy of the land.

The great day was over at last,—the feet of soldiers and dancers could not keep time to music forever, and the music itself had ceased. The multitude of carriages no longer blocked up the great wide road between the house and the muster field. The cannon had belched forth its final thunder. Those that "rode in the troop" had galloped furiously out of sight, only an occasional drum-beat among the hills, growing farther and farther off, was heard, and the clear sky and cold stars of a September midnight looked down upon the muster field at Jonathan Harvey's.

I will make some brief mention of the more prominent actors in the scenes I have described. General Solomon McNeil, son-in-law of Gov. Pierce, and brother-in-law of President Pierce, was a man of fine personal appearance, being over six feet in height. I believe he was considered the tallest man in the State, except his brother, Gen. John McNeil. I remember being filled with admirstion when my childish eyes saw him dismount at the great gate with his suite, —among whom was one of the Starks, whether son or grand-son I cannot tell.—With one foot lifted out of the stirrup, all waited for his word of command, "dismount," when each man sprang to the ground, and gave his horse to his waiter.

Cæsar Lewis, the head table-waiter, was a full negro, of good appearance. He had a suit of clothes that served him for muster occasions for many years—buff nankeen coat, white pants and vest. It was a sight worth seeing when with this nicely starched suit on, his dark locks powdered, and a white napkin on his arm he entered the dining hall, bearing a platter of roast beef. In his way, Lewis made just as good an appearance with his suit, as Gen. McNeil did with his suite. He was a man of good abilities, good manners and unblemished integrity. He lived to a great age, long after extreme age made it possible for him to dispense with powder on his snow white locks. He died in Sutton a few years ago, being over 100 years old.

Tony, or Anthony, Clark, the fiddler and dancing master, probably did more towards instructing the young people in the arts and graces of politeness and good manners than any other man of his day and generation. He also lived to a great age—107 years—and when he died, having served his country in the Revolutionary war, they gave him a military funeral which was a splendid affair.

Another negro, born in Africa, for many years lived in Warner woods under the name of Prince Martin. He used to contribute much to the enjoyment of Muster day. He could sing many songs and play on the bones, and always had a crowd of listeners around him.

Cuba--New Complications.

The one weak point in the protocol between Secretary Fish and the Spanish minister on the Virginius affair was the difficulty that might be experienced in enforcing its provisions, and the latest news from Cuba gives reason to believe that the fears on this head are only too well founded. Some idea of the excited state of popular feeling in Cuba may be gathered from the following dispatch of Captain-General Jouvellar to the Madrid government, which was sent on Thursday night:

"The Madrid government peremptorily orders the captain general to deliver up the Virginius. General Jouvellar respectfully resigns his position, and demands that another person be appointed who can carry out the orders of the government. Considering the excited state of public opinion, and the impossibility of overcoming the difficulties, General Jouvellar states that a manifesto was prepared for delay, during which an opportunity would be given for reflection and time gained to allay the fiery patriotic spirit of the great national party in Cuba, but the strong orders from Madrid, immediately to be executed, deprive him of this resource, through which he hoped to save the upholding of the authority and interests of the country. In order that the Madrid government may comprehend the difficulties of the situation and do justice to the ardor and perseverance with which he began his labors, which had already begun to produce fruit, the captain-general describes the situation in the island. He declares the impression produced by the news of the arrangement which had been completed between Spain and the United States can be compared with that produced in Spain by the treaty of Bayonne, which led to the war of independence against Napoleon. He begs to assure the government that the immediate delivery of the Virginius will instantaneously cause a frightful commotion throughout the island, which would be sure to result in successive catastrophes, even if a man of the highest ability should be in command there.

This may be put down for bluster, and it is noteworthy that the authorities at Washington do not apprehend any trouble about the surrender of the Virginius.

Readables.

There was a very destructive fire at Suncook early Thursday morning. The Pembroke House and stable were completely destroyed, also several stores and a dwelling house. Seventeen horses perished in the flames.

News is received of a collision at sea between the British man-of-war Bellerophon and the Brazilian steamer Hamsteed. The latter sunk, but all hands were saved.

Vice President Wilson has not so fully recovered as was hoped. By the advice of his physician, he is able to attend the session of the Senate only one hour every day. It will be necessary to appoint a President pro tem. and in this issue, the scandal about Mr. Carpenter, who has previously held the place, becomes of some importance. Anthony, Frelinghuysen and Edmunds are mentioned as having rather better chances than Carpenter.

The question of assigning the "liberal" senators in Congress to places on the committees was decided harmoniously, Thursday, in accordance with the proposition of the caucus committee, and all the liberals excepting Senator Tipton accepted places from the republicans. Mr. Sumner is on the committee on privileges and elections and education and labor.

The chairmen of the more important committees are as follows: Privileges and elections, Morton; foreign relations, Cameron; finance, Sherman; appropriations, Morrill of Maine; commerce, Chandler; military affairs, Logan; naval affairs, Cragin; judiciary, Edmunds. Senator Wadleigh is on the committees on military affairs, public lands and patents.

A Washington judge has decided that no man in this country is obliged to pay for a pair of boots which do not fit him.

State News.

The Newmarket Methodist church has had twenty-six ministers since 1828, all of whom are now living.

Rev. George S. Hill is about to quit the pastorate of the Free Baptist church in Gonic, and will supply the Charles-street pulpit in Dover till April.

The Manchester print works will start upon the usual running time on Monday, Dec. 8th. The other corporations are yet, and will probably remain, on full time, as they will be obliged to keep briskly at work to satisfactorily fill the demands upon them for goods.

The Ashuelot boot and shoe company of Keene discharged all their workmen last week and closed their shop for the present. They have a large stock of goods on hand, which they propose to dispose of before manufacturing more.

The Keene granite company, at South Keene, who have a contract for getting out and fitting granite blocks for the new State House at Albany, have discharged the majority of their workmen and reduced the wages of the remainder about twenty per cent. This course was necessary on account of the appropriation of the New York legislature, at their last session, having been all expended.

The New Attorney General.

Of Col. Ben. H. Bristow, who has been nominated for Attorney General, the Louisville Courier-Journal, a Democratic paper, thus speaks: "Col. Bristow is a native of Kentucky and at present a resident of Louisville. He lived in Hopkinsville up to the breaking out of the war, and at its conclusion commenced the practice of law in this city. Shortly afterward he was appointed District Attorney of Kentucky, and fulfilled the duties of that position with such signal ability that, some years since, the President called him to Washington as the special legal adviser of the Government. The high talents and extensive legal acquirements which had marked Col. Bristow as one of the foremost lawyers of this State, soon made for him a very enviable reputation at the national capital. It was about a year ago, we believe, that Gen. Bristow offered his resignation, which, after great reluctance, was accepted by the President. He resigned to accept a very honorable and lucrative position connected with the Southern Pacific Railroad, which he yet holds. Some months since Gen. Bristow returned to this city from Philadelphia, and is now, with his family, domiciled at the Galt House. He is building a very handsome residence on Broadway, which he will be loth to leave, even to accept a seat in the Cabinet. The new dignity, however, will not add to the estimation in which Gen. Bristow is held by his friends and admirers in this city and State. It has been remarked by a gentleman who has been most intimately associated with him, that to be in Gen. Bristow's presence is to instinctively recognize that one is brought in contact with a great man.' He is, doubtless, the most popular man in his party in this section, and the appointment will give entire satisfaction to the Republicans of Kentucky and the South. Gen. Bristow is of a very striking and handsome presence, a man of culture, and a thorough gentleman. He is genial in his manners, a firm friend, and (those who know him best say) a pretty good enemy. He will dignify and elevate the office which he is called upon to fill, and will bring into the social life of the national capital personal and family relations which will adorn that society."

A Cute Rascal.

A wicked young fellow in Chicago, named Dennis Reddin, successfully imposed upon a fellow-prisoner some time since. The two had been placed in the same cell, one charged with drunkenness and the other (Reddin) with felony. Reddin, after some some skirmishing, prevailed upon his verdant cell-mate to change their clothing and, when the time came in the morning that they should be tried, to also change their names. Reddin represented that it would be a huge joke on the police and no harm would come of it as he (Reddin) was in for only a trifling offense, the punishment of which was about the same as that of a "drunk case." The green individual assented, the transformation scene taking place while the turnkey's attention was diverted elsewhere. Reddin stepped out boldly in the morning when his friend's name was shouted, and on the officer by whom the verdant lodger was arrested making his appearance and swearing as to his condition, &c., the Justice fined him $10, which was paid, and Reddin stepped outside the bars. The mistake was discovered when, however, it was too late, and Reddin has been at large ever since. He was seen by Officer Laughlin the next forenoon trying to pick a passenger's pocket at the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway, and taken into custody. He was given a hearing, and held over by Justice Banyon in $1,000 bonds.

Married Over the Edge of the Wagon.

Emigrants must not stand upon ceremony. Many a wedding on wheels has signalized the "cities" on the great frontier. The Warrensburg (Mo.) Standard says:

Last Friday afternoon, as one of our popular justices from Ashbury was in meditation deep among the papers pertaining to his law cases, a swift and heavy step was heard on the stairway and along the hall leading to his office. The door was opened without any ceremony, and in rushed a man in a state of high excitement not usually seen in our quiet city.

"Are you the Squire," he asked, as he wiped the perspiration from his heated brow.

"I am," replied the justice.

"Well, I want to get married, and want the thing done right away."

"All right," said the justice; "bring on your woman."

The excited individual then informed Squire A. that the fair and expectant one was in town, and that he wanted the Squire to go to her with him, and perform the ceremony.

And after a few preliminary arrangements, which included the fee and marriage certificate, the justice followed the gentleman, and finally brought up with him at the side of a covered wagon on the street near the public square.

"Here, Mary," said the man, "I have brought the Squire," and raising the side of the wagon cover, the form and features of a handsome young woman were revealed to the astonished justice.

"Mary, do you wish to marry this man?" inquired the justice, solemnly.

"I do," faltered the blushing bride.

"Shall—shall, she get out on the street, sir," stammered the soon-to-be husband.

"No," said the justice.

"Sh—shall I get in the wagon, then?" continued the man, who had some faint idea of the impropriety of the thing.

"No," said the justice, "stand by the side of the wagon, and take Mary by the hand."

This being done, the two were solemnly made one under cover only of the white-sheeted wagon and the blue canopy of heaven. A number of ladies and gentlemen passed by near the parties, but knew nothing of the interesting ceremony that was taking place. Thus the legal bonds were bound around the already united souls of William Mize and Mary Catherine Palmer.

A Turkish Family Scandal.

A remarkable "scandal," says the Levant Times, which promises to furnish an interesting addition to Eastern causes celebres is at present the subject of private judicial investigation in Constantinople. On the death, about a year ago, of a well-known Israelitish financier, who had a couple of years before married a widow a good deal younger than himself, his sons-in-law, his principal heirs, could only, to their great astonishment, find some £6,000 worth of property, out of £60,000 which he had possessed. All traces had disappeared, also, of an old servant of the deceased who had been much in his confidence. The deceased's illness was very short, and he had only one medical attendant, a doctor of his own faith, who, as well as the wife, excluded all members of the patient's family from visiting him, and also declined to hold a cohsultation with other practitioners. After the death the widow, who had always "gay" tendencies, and seems, notwithstanding a notable personal defect, to have had some peculiar power of fascination, launched out in a flashy style of living, and her two sons, by her first marriage, who had no private means, also distinguished themselves by their profuse expenditure. The moral conviction as to the source of this wealth was always strong in the minds of the deceased's family, but all their efforts failed to discover any proof. Only very lately their suspicions received confirmation in a very singular way. The old servant suddenly reappeared in Constantinople, and avowed that he had received £500 from the widow and her sons to leave the capital and remain in seclusion in the interior. Some time ago he lost one of his sons, and within a month two others followed, and the surviving one was also taken ill. Regarding this as a Divine punishment, he hastened to come to implore the family of his old master to accept his confession as an atonement which might save the life of his remaining child. The widow's sons were at once summoned before the authorities, and, after undergoing an interrogatory separately, the younger one, being informed, it is said, that his brother had already confessed, (which was not the fact,) made a full disclosure as regards the spiriting away of the bulk of the property.

—A lank, hungry-looking Mill-Creeker stepped into the Marshal (Ind.) bank on Thursday, and accosted Mc. with, "Do you keep drafts here, Mister?" "Yes, sir," replied the polite and dulcet-toned Mc. "What are they worth?" queried the Mill-Creeker. "Owing to the size entirely, sir.' "Well, I guess I've got means enough to git one about a foot square. Make her stout as blazes, Cap, for it's the old woman's back, and I want it to draw her double."

VEGETINE has never failed to cure the most inflexible case of Canker.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and used before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 706

20,000 cures of Piles have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments, and quack nostrums always make them worse ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple, permanent cure, acts as a bougee, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

"Tried and True." What words of confidence and trust are these! It is what many a poor sufferer can say of HELMBOLD'S BUCHU. It is the only reliable medicine of those terrible diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Beware of counterfeits. The genuine has the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. Full direction with each bottle. For sale by all druggists.

The Human Kitchen and its Dumb Waiters.

The body is supplied with aliment by vessels which connect the stomach and it auxiliaries with the venous system, and, so to speak, perform the office of dumb waiters in a restaurant. In other words, these media of communication between the animal kitchen and its dependents supply to each member and organ, near or remote, the quantity and kind of sustenance required to keep it going. When the stomach is derelict in its duty, or the dumb waiters inert or obstructed, it is the peculiar province of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters to strengthen and regulate them. Hence its marvelous cures of chronic indigestion, and the emaciation, debility and languor which are generally its concomitants. It is, moreover, a powerful alterative and corrective, and the rapidity with which it checks irregularities of the liver and bowels, and braces and invigorates the nervous system, is a marvel, not only to the general public, but to professional men.

Local Matters.

The Water Question.

Notwithstanding the subject it was called to consider, the meeting at the common council room, Friday evening, was rather a dry affair. Something less than a score of gentlemen met together, and talked over the subject in an informal manner. J. C. Carr, president of the board of trade, occupied the chair, and J. C. Butler was in his accustomed place at the secretary's table. After a good deal of discursive conversation, the sentiment of the meeting was crystallized in a resolution by W. R. Preston, that "the board of trade recommend the city government to take immediate measures to secure the property and franchises of the aqueduct company for the use of the city." This is in line with action already taken by the board of mayor and aldermen, a committee of which has the matter in charge. The resolution was unanimously adopted. It was stated during the evening that the aqueduct company could be "bought out" for $40,000; and again it was said that the property was held at $100,000. Judge Bufford don't remember any sale of stock at over $400 a share. There are 100 shares in the corporation. Without further action than the resolution noted, the meeting adjourned for two weeks.

Mayor and Aldermen.

At Thursday evening's meeting of the board, the petition of Sarah C. Gray and others for a new highway from High street, fifty-eight feet from Congress street, to Fleet street, was laid on the table.

Petition of Richard Davidson and others, watchmen, for increase of pay to $2 per night, for six months from November 1st, was received.

The Mayor stated that the Globe National Bank would pay coupons on $50,000 city bonds about to be issued, in addition to coupons now payable by them, on condition of a constant deposit of $2,000.

Voted, That the bonds and coupons be made payable at the Globe National Bank in Boston.

Claim of Daniel Murphy and wife, for compensation for injury received by Mrs. Murphy in falling over projecting steps on Pleasant street, was presented.

Voted, That Mrs. Murphy be paid $30, upon her signing a receipt for all damages, etc.

Joint resolution amending ordinance 113, section 1, was read a first time, and the rules being suspended was read a second time and passed.

Voted, That the Mayor be requested to cause cess-pools to be affixed to the drains in the station-house, or to devise some plan to prevent the stench from arising.

The committee on streets reported a plan of a part of Summer street, showing the encroachments at the Catholic church.

Voted, That the plan be adopted and that all persons encroaching on Summer street, be notified to remove obstructions.

Leave to incumber School street, for building was granted.

Voted, That the physician of the Board of Health be paid, in all cases of infectious, contagious or malignant disease, the sum of $5 per visit for his attendance at the small pox hospital.

The Prohibitionists.

Have we a prohibition party among us? The leading prohibitionists in the city say we soon shall have, if we haven't one already. The meeting on Friday night to elect delegates to the State convention was largely attended, and pervaded by a good deal of enthusiasm. It resolved to form a prohibition club, the organization to take place next Friday evening. The following were elected delegates to the State convention:

Rev. A. C. Hardy, Rev. J. A. Goss, Wm. D. Fernald, S. Parks, Dr. A. P. Stevens, John S. Rand, Edwin Underhill, S. W. Webber, John M. Davis, A. Perry, jr., Daniel McIntire, Dr. C. A. Norton, Chas. Robinson, B. F. Thorndike, Joseph Pettigrew, John W. Wilson, A. H. Harlow, S. Gilbert, Geo. W. Ham, W. T. Lyons, A. C. Craig.

Laconics.

Rev. A. S. Ladd, of Biddeford, told the Kittery lyceum goers about "True Manliness," Wednesday evening.

Mr. C. L. Duncan, late machinist in the ordinance department of the navy yard, has been appointed gunner in the navy.

Twenty marines, three sergeants and ten rifers leave the barracks at the navy yard this morning to join the U. S. S. Franklin.

Hampton Beach has a shell-road, the highway from the Union House to the Ocean House having been macadenized with the shells taken from the clams used last summer.

The Sunday morning services at the Episcopal, Universalist and Unitarian Churches now begin at 10:30 o'clock, the bell ringing 15 minutes previous. The other churches commence 15 minutes earlier.

Rev. W. H. Alden of this city is to deliver a lecture at the Baptist church in Hampton Falls, Tuesday evening next, on "Jerusalem and its Environs." We learn that the night train down (Pullman) will stop that evening at Hampton Falls.

Next Monday a special dedicatory service—the Feast of the Immaculate Conception,—is to be observed by the Catholic church here, according to an official promulgation of the archbishop and bishops sent to all the Catholic churches. High mass will be celebrated, a sermon preached, and after the sermon the Act of Consecration, closing with a Te Deum.

The officers and members of Extinguisher engine company, No. 5, with invited guests, including ladies, sat down to a clam chowder, at their house on State street, Thursday evening. Speeches were made by Chief Engineer Marston, Assistants Betton and Waterhouse, and others, all being satisfied that Griffin knew how to make a chowder as well as to eat it.

Gunner Wilson was the recipient of a very handsome present from the members of Riverside Lodge, I. O. O. F., before leaving to join the Franklin. It consisted of a combination gold pin with Masonic and Odd Fellow emblems on it, a heavy gold ring with Odd Fellow emblems set in enamel, and a set of studs combining Masonic and Odd Fellow emblems.

The steam tug Clara Bateman has become an institution in this harbor that could hardly be dispensed with, and we are pleased to learn that her gentlemanly commander and owner is winning the pecuniary reward due to his enterprise. Steam is kept up on the tug at all times, and she is always ready to render assistance when need ed. Already this season she has towed two wrecks into the harbor, and in several instances has boarded vessels whose crews were sick and disabled, and has brought them safely to the city, thereby relieving suffering and probably preventing loss of life.

The city now possesses a safe and convenient landing-stage at the foot of Daniel street, but the float and brow need to be kept free of snow and ice during the winter in order that the public may be properly accommodated. Mr. Anderson, who has long had the care of the navy yard stage and ferry house, has thus far kept the city landing in good order, without compensation, but it cannot be expected his charity in this direction will extend through the whole winter, though he would doubtless take the responsibility for a reasonable compensation, and the navy yard authorities would not probably object to his earning a few dollars in that way. We suggest that somebody be employed to take care of the landing, before immediately.

The Conservatory of Music.

The Portsmouth Conservatory of Music, under the direction of Prof. E. S. Metcalf, is fast growing in favor with our citizens, and may now be ranked with the other established institutions of our city. It has just finished one term of instruction to the perfect satisfaction of its many pupils—it claims to do excellent work, which we may believed to be true from the fact that it has the continued patronage of nearly all those who have attended the recent term, among whom may be named the following ladies and gentlemen: Mrs. Rev. Dr. Bingham, Mrs. Chas. Gerrish, Miss G. Walsh, Miss M. Shores, Miss N. Locke, Miss N. Ackerman, Miss H. S. Howell, Miss F. Fitts, Miss E. Grace, Mr. F. D. Nowell, Mr. F. Burnham, Mr. R. Reinwald, (both of the marine band,) and three sons of Capt. Pray. Many pupils are also in attendance from Kittery, Newington, Rye, Greenland, and other neighboring towns.

The Children's Fair.

Messrs. Editors: The article in Friday's CHRONICLE, speaking of the piece of Rogers statuary to be disposed of at the children's fair, does injustice to the little ladies having the fair in charge.

The fair is not given by the Society with a long name, or yet under its auspices, but was conceived, and is entirely under the management of the little folks, who propose do nating the proceeds to the Society.

The family of Ex-Gov. Goodwin have extended many facilities to the little people, and individual members of the Society have tendered their assistance, but aside from this the credit of the whole movement belongs to the little ladies in question.

ANTI-CRUELTY.

—The "decline in values," of which commercial men speak so often, is, says the Louisville Courier-Journal, "painfully illustrated in the case of an Illinois man, whose wife was killed by a railroad train and who accepted $35 from the railroad as full compensation.

— A gentleman at a dance remarked to his partner, a witty young lady, that the "room was too close—he must go out and get some air." After an absence of half an hour he returned, when she asked him "if he had not been to the graveyard, as his breath smelt of the beer."

—"Is the Colonel here? shouted a man, sticking his head into a Kansas City street car. "He is," answered thirteen men as they rose up.

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufacture i, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

Ordinance No. 41,

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all he buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be counted from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n25-1m

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Peterboro', and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and I feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choking and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1873.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors.

A Keene Sensation.

A Keene correspondent of the Concord Monitor sends the following account of a scene in that town, Tuesday night:

There was quite a sensation on the street on Wednesday morning last. It appears that Mr. S. V. Stillings, who lives at No. 10 West street, on going home about 10 o'clock Tuesday evening, found one Green, an employe of the Ashuelot Boot and Shoe Company, in his wife's room. Some words passed between Mr. S. and Green, when the latter fired a shot from a pistol at Stillings, with no effect, when Mr. S. was able to secure the pistol, and Green, also, until the police arrived. Green was arraigned before the police court on Wednesday morning; he waived examination and was bound over in the sum of $1000 to appear for trial on the charge of adultery at the next term of the Supreme Judicial Court. Mrs. Stillings, who belongs to one of the first families of Keene, has for some time been considered insane, and was taken to the asylum at Concord, about two months since, but her release from that institution was soon after procured by her husband.

—Joaquin Miller, in his book about the Modocs, relates that an old fellow who had been on the war-path brought to him a leather bag. While he tapped it gently with his bowie-knife the blood oozed through the seams. Looking at Joaquin, the old Modoc said: "Them's scalps."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as readily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing diseases and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot resist trying it for a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of pushing their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved tastes.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has noticed the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great share upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "out-door" life in "the West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, fifteen by twenty-inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where a receipt is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practicalmen, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and results of each successive season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

'Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry'

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SEVEN, averaging nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounced it superb. Miss Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and human beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in a charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 or $3, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR
TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.
Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.
AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus healthy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and unerring. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.
As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL, FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL, SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL, SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL, NORTH FRANKLIN COAL, LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be maintained. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing the refuse from the mines, if possible, and coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts to prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future expects to do tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by others desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious cutting of materials and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in partnership for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.
D. H. MONTGOMERY.

A DRUMMER BOY'S LUCK.

[New York Sun.]

There are many who are ignorant of the fact that the Japanese government has established a postal service, and that it has entered into a regular postal treaty with the United States. A still larger number do not yet know what has given the ancient empire such a glorious start in the race of progress. The story is as pleasant as it is instructive, and here it is:

With one of the Ohio regiments that passed through Washington at the beginning of the war came a drummer boy, Samuel M. Bryan, about twenty years old. He enlisted at Cadiz, the home of John A. Bingham, but after an experience of a few months he secured a discharge, obtained employment in one of the departments, and by perseverance and patience soon worked himself into a clerkship in the Sixth Auditor's office at a salary of $1,000 a year, and was placed in charge of what is known as the British Mail desk. In this position he became thoroughly acquainted with our foreign mail system, and obtained also an excellent general knowledge of postal business in all its various departments.

One day, after reading an account of the Japanese Embassy's reception at San Francisco, the thought arose in his mind that while Japan had attempted to introduce our Internal Revenue and Agricultural Bureau systems, she had as yet made no effort to establish a Postal Department. He argued that the government which could so clearly see the advantages of system in the workings of the agricultural and revenue departments could not be blind to the importance of a plan by which general intelligence could be most rapidly and most cheaply distributed among its people. Filled with the thought that he might be the means of conferring a lasting benefit upon Japan, while he himself might occupy a prominent position in the line of promotion to immortality, he lost no time in surveying the field and preparing for action.

His first step was to introduce himself to the Hon. Jacob A. Ambler, member of Congress from the Seventeenth Ohio District.

"I should have gone to Mr. Bingham," said he to the Congressman; "but he is so lazy that I know he would do nothing but make promises."

From Mr. Ambler young Bryan learned that the Japanese government had no postal service, but that, according to Minister Mori, attempts were being made to establish one. He next called upon Mr. Mori, but received no encouragement.

When Minister De Long arrived with the Japanese Embassy Bryan obtained an introduction to him from his good friend Mr. Ambler, and after fully explaining his plans received from De Long assurances of his earnest co-operation. The chief men of the Embassy were delighted with the explanations of the young enthusiast, and were easily won to promise their aid in the prosecution of his enterprise. They had no authority to enter into any arrangement with him, but urged him to go at once to Japan and treat directly with the Imperial government.

"This was flattering," said Bryan, "but how could I follow their advice? Without money, without moneyed friends to assist me, what could I do? Mr. De Long came to my aid with a happy suggestion. It was simply to put myself in communication with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, lay my plans before them, secure an appointment as agent for the line, and while in Japan press my scheme upon the government.

Backed up by Minister De Long, who, on his departure for Europe, left him a letter of introduction and recommendation to be handed to the President of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, Bryan was appointed purser in the branch line plying in the Eastern waters, and received a free ticket from San Francisco to Yokohama.

Leaving $300 with his wife he started for New York with $75 in his pocket. From C. P. Huntington, Vice President of the Central Pacific, to whom he bore letters from the Postmaster General, he received a pass over the road from Ogden to San Francisco. At Council Bluffs he purchased an army officer's ticket over the Union Pacific, for which he paid $88.20, and had just $2.50 in currency left.

On the train he met the mail clerk, who engaged him as his assistant. This made it unnecessary to use his ticket, and when he reached Ogden he sold it for $41.50. In San Francisco he obtained from a friend a letter of introduction to H. M. Miller, the chief officer of customs in Japan, and on reaching Yokohama after a pleasant passage his cash amounted to twenty-five cents in silver.

At Yokohama he met with Mr. De Long, who advised him to go at once to Yeddo.

"I was again in pecuniary trouble," continued Mr. Byran. "A third-class ticket to Yeddo, eighteen miles away, was only 37 1-2 cents, but that was just 12 1-2 cents more than I had in the world. I was not discouraged. I called upon Mr. Miller, presented my letter, and asked the loan of $25, which was given with cheerful alacrity. At Yeddo I met Mr. De Long's interpreter, by whom I was introduced to the interpreter of the Court, who arranged a meeting between myself and the Minister of Foreign Affairs. But little was done at this interview. Two weeks slipped away, and my purse was again empty. I went back to Yokohama, saw Capt. Lane, agent of the Pacific Mail Company, told him what had brought me to Japan, enlarged upon the benefits that must accrue to the company in the event of my success, and borrowed of him 250 Mexican dollars. At the end of two months Capt. Lane advanced me $250 more, and this sum carried me through. Aided by Mr. De Long, I was soon enabled to lay my plans before the Ministers. I found them very intelligent, quick to perceive, willing to listen and learn, and prompt to act. But now came my trials. You know every government that is in commercial intercourse with Japan has its own mail service. Our Consuls act as postmasters, and so do the French, British and German Consuls. The British Consuls, who had everything their own way in Japan until the arrival of Mr. De Long, were violently opposed to me and my plans. So were our own Consuls. Whatever they could do to embarrass me and prevent action by the government they lost no time in doing. But for this influence I should have accomplished my object in two or three months at furthest. But I succeeded at last and to my great joy an imperial edict was issued establishing a Department, with Mayshimi Hisaki as Postmaster General. I was appointed his Imperial Majesty's special commissioner to negotiate a postal treaty with the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany, and my salary fixed at 6,000 Mexican dollars per annum, with an allowance of $300 a month for traveling expenses, railroad fare and like expenses being extra. His Majesty allowed me $500 to compensate me for the delay to which I had been subjected, and $500 more for passage money by steamer to the United States. I have negotiated a treaty with this government which is very favorable. The rates of postage are to be 15 cents per ounce for the first year, and 12 cents thereafter. The rates will not be raised even should the subsidy paid to the Pacific Mail Company be withdrawn, each government agreeing to pay its due proportion of the carrying expenses. The treaty has just been confirmed by the Imperial Government.

Mr Bryan sailed for Havre on Saturday. From Havre he goes to Paris, and after negotiating a treaty with France he visits Berlin and London. He expects to accomplish his mission and return to the United States by next July. When he comes back he will have the dies for the Japanese stamps engraved, and purchase a large quantity of bags and bagging, and other material needed in the mail service. He has an assistant at $5,000 a year, and two clerks at $2,500 each, to travel with him. While Mayshimi Hisaki is nominally Postmaster-General of Japan, Bryan is the real head of the department. It was at Bryan's suggestion that Mayshimi Hisaki was raised from an inferior clerkship in the Finance Department to the position he now occupies, and the grateful chief is the young American's devoted friend.

Japan has never had what could be called a postal service. There was a sort of postal express through different parts of the island, but it did not meet the requirments of the people. The government is now for the first time having surveys made, with the view of establishing post roads, and the work, Mr. Bryan thinks, will be finished before his return.

The House Committees.

Speaker Blaine announced the standing committees of the House of Representatives on Friday. The retention of Messrs. Dawes, Garfield, Schofield and Kelly is received on all sides with much satisfaction. The argument used by members for retaining them, since the discussion regarding the formation of the committees began, has been that all who have known these gentlemen personally believe that they are thoroughly honest, and have felt that the house would lose greatly in efficiency if they were taken from the positions they have so ably filled. The committee of ways and means is not as distinctly high tariff as at the last session, and on this question Mr. Kelly will lose the active co-operation of Mr. Maynard. The committee on appropriations is regarded as a strong committee, and one that will exercise proper economy. The chairmanships are distributed as follows: New England 7, Middle States 9, the West 18, the South 9. Among States they stand as follows: Maine 3, Vermont 1, Massachusetts 4, Connecticut 1, New York 3, Pennsylvania 6, Ohio 4, Indiana 3, Illinois 2, Iowa 3, Michigan 1, Wisconsin 2, Minnesota 1, Kansas 1, Virginia 1, North Carolina 1, Alabama 1, Mississippi 2, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2.

A large bear has been slain in Dorchester, close to a house.

It is said by a correspondent that ten persons attended Divine service at Gorham on the day of the National Thanksgiving.

Almon Gaskill of Laconia got a divorce from the wife of his bosom by means of false statements and then took unto himself a fresh rib, going to Vermont. Being green enough to come back, he is under arrest for perjury and adultery.

Dorchester is considered a healthy town because there has not been a death there in a year.

According to a statement of Judge Upton, during the year just closed, 64 complaints have been made against Manchester liquor sellers, who have paid over $2000 in fines into the city treasury; 17 have been bound over; 12 have been indicted, and 11 have been driven out of the business.

Readables.

The war fever was quickened again on Saturday by the intelligence that Spain had made a formal request to modify that portion of the protocol by which it was agreed that the Virginius should be given up to the United States, so as to provide that the vessel should be delivered to some neutral power, to be held until her real character is ascertained. This request was a great surprise to the State department, and an informal consultation was held immediately, at which several members of the senate were present, and after a brief deliberation a despatch was sent to Madrid declining to accede to the request, on the ground that the first agreement had been formally entered into and it was not deemed best to recede from it. The only object of the Castellar government in desiring the indicated change is to avoid the possibility of trouble at Havana and it is understood that serious objection would be made there to the delivery of the Virginius to any neutral power.

Dr. Charles H. Sholes, a Boston abortionist, has been arrested. He is said to have caused the death of several women.

In Mr. Beecher's church, Friday night, it was decided to drop the subject of the Beecher-Tilton scandal, so far as Bowen is concerned. Henry C. Bowen, in a card, states that he has never seen the charges against him, and he has never been cited to appear before the committee of the Plymouth Church, although he was always ready to appear. The committee failed to obtain testimony against him, and recommends the charges be dismissed.

Democratic Congressmen want it to be known that they did not vote down in caucus the resolution that no man implicated in the two last years' scandals should be voted for, as speaker. It was ruled out of order, on the ground that the caucus had no right to control any member's vote. We cheerfully state this fact, if it will do any good, but it is also true that they all voted for Mr. Wood, just as their brethren in the Massachusetts Legislature voted for general Banks.

Secretary Kelly of the National Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry reports that 974 subordinate granges were organized during the month of November last. The total number of subordinate granges is now 8,835, and the reported membership of the order 622,622.

A Political Reminiscence.

Some western newspapers, having been discussing the part taken on the Texas annexation question in the canvass of 1844, the St. Louis Democrat tells an incident of the time:

"Tom Corwin was then in his glory as a strong orator, and was wont to rouse the moral indignation of his Whig auditors by depicting the horrors of war, which he predicted as a result of the annexation of Texas. He produced a startling effect in a speech delivered near Cincinnati, in which, after describing the scenes of battle, the groans of the wounded, and the sufferings of the bereaved whose homes would be made desolate, until the sympathies of the crowd were excited to the highest pitch, he stepped suddenly to the front of the platform, and waving his handkerchief above his head, shouted at the top of his voice, 'Huzza for democracy,' 'Huzza for democracy,' 'Huzza for democracy.' The terrible irony of the orator's looks and tones produced a thrilling effect on the crowd. Corwin was not so successful however, in a speech delivered the same year in the abolition stronghold in the Western Reserve. He went upon the platform brimful of talk for Clay and free soil. While the people were assembling he noticed a small boy with a basket of tracts which he was busily distributing among the crowd, and by the time he was ready to address his fellow citizens every man before him had one in his hands. Mr. Corwin asked for one, and, upon glancing at it, discovered that it was Clay's letter in favor of the annexation of Texas. 'If it could be done without war,' &c. The fountain of the orator's eloquence was suddenly dried up, and he stood there for a couple of hours 'hollering like a frog on the side of a hill,' as he humorously expressed it, with a perfect consciousness all the while that the little boy had utterly spoiled his speech."

"Bridget."

The Boston Pilot in reply to some criticisms upon "Bridget" says in her defense:

The Irish servant girls of America come from the poor, and they love the poor, as everybody who knows them knows well. They may not be ready to assist every proselyting scheme that their employers lay before them; they may turn a deaf ear to the 'philanthropic missionaries' who appeal to them through their employers' influence; but those who know their sympathies and who can enter into their feelings, would never accuse them of want of charity. True charity begins at home; and if Bridget is heedless of 'the situation' of strangers, she is full of hearty feeling for those who ha ve the first claim upon her heart and hand, and who have no one but her to look to for sympathy and assistance. Of all human beings in this country, the servant girl is the only one who is supposed by certain small-souled people to have no right to independence in thought or action. They take her into their houses as a mere slave, unworthy of association—a being of other feelings and sympathies, whose body and soul and obedience they have bought by the wages they pay her. They chill the warm current of her affections by the cold repulsiveness of their Puritan manners. They set her to work in their cheerless kitchens, that are never brightened by a kind word or a cheery smile of human fellowship, and then they judge of her impulsive nature from their own thin-blooded and decayed perceptions. Such people as these never think of winning the affections or gratitude of their servant girls; therefore, they receive cold service, and deserve no other. But to those who know how to touch her warm heart—and, thank God, there are thousands of American ladies and gentlemen who do know—the truest, faithfulest attendant and humble friend is found in the Irish servant girl."

The Face of Shakspeare.

It will be an announcement of great interest to all Shakespearian scholars, and undoubtedly to all who read Shakespeare's works, that at last a representation of his face has been produced which can be relied upon as a faithful likeness. In connection with this fact, it has also been established that the celebrated pictures of him which are universally accepted as standards only remotely resemble him; that the ordinary portraits and busts which abound the world over are really caricatures; and that Shakspeare's forehead was disfigured by an ugly wound. The history of the manner in which this representation has been produced is extremely interesting and substantially as follows:

"In 1843 the effects of an old German family, Von Kesselstadt by name, whose family seat was near Cologne, were disposed of by auction. Among these effects was a picture dated 1637, labelled, 'The Death-bed of the great English Poet, William Shakespeare,' representing the poet on his death-bed crowned with laurel. After the sale of the picture it was not heard of again until 1847, when it was purchased in England by a Mr. Ludwig Becker. He became very much interested in it, and, after examining it very carefully, was convinced that the representation of the face in the picture must have been taken from a cast. He thereupon instituted inquiries, which brought to light the following facts: First that a member of the Von Kesselstadt family was attached to an embassy from his country to the Court of James I. at the time of the death of Shakespeare. Second that a wax mould was taken of the face after death; and, third, that a plaster mask of the poet had hung side by side with the picture for many years, which had the date of Shakspeare's death upon it. He at once reasoned that the mask had been made from the wax mould, and for two years he kept up an indefatigable search for it. He was finally rewarded by discovering it in a pawnbroker's shop, among nails, old iron, and all sorts of odds and ends. It was greatly mutilated, pieces being missing from various features, but on the back of it was the date, A. D. 1616, and, upon closely examining it, there were found indubitable proofs that it had been taken from a wax mould. This cast is now in the library of Prince Louis, of Hesse-Darmstadt, although it is still the property of Dr. Becker, now the private secretary to Princess Alice, the wife o Prince Louis."

From the photographs of this mask, Mr. William Page, the distinguished New York artist, has constructed a mask, which is a faithful copy, and from this copy, and the standard representations of Shakspeare, he has painted a portrait, which is just now creating a very general and interesting discussion in the world of art.

The discovery of the scar on the forehead by Mr. Page is one of the most remarkable features of his interesting study. He at first regarded it as a blotch, or perhaps a chip out of the original mask, but a more careful scrutiny convinced him that it was a deep scar, and some of the most skillful surgeons in the country corroborated Mr. Page's views. Still further strengthening this position, is the fact that when the Chandos portrait was cleaned and restored, there was positive evidence to show that two scars had been originally painted on the forehead. Here, again, the mask corresponds, as the traces of another scar can be seen very easily on it.

Of the mask itself, the following close description has been furnished:

"The forehead is the most striking feature. It is extremely high, full and thoughtful. The capacity it denotes is astonishing, even at the first glimpse obtained of it. The space between the two eyebrows is unusually broad. Thought herself seems to have made there her seat, as the bone upheaves very prominently on each side, hinting what the picture must have been of the brows knit together in deep meditation. The sides of the nose differ very strongly. The left has a slight elevation near the ridge, which makes it just perceptibly crooked when closely examined. The right side is straighter. The nose is well set upon the face, joining harmoniously with the other features. The lips denote a sweet and noble disposition, because there is such a predisposition in them to graciousness. They are eminently the 'gentle Shakspeare's.' Their corners are hidden by the moustache, which, instead of being curled up after the manner of that in the Stratford bust, is brushed down around the mouth. The nether lip is full, and evinces a temperament easy-going and merry—one which, by a happy optimism, saw nothing to fret and fume about in the whirling world, but was more naturally inclined to join in its jollities with a hearty, free, and sprightly air. Its fellow is grave and dignified. The chin reminds us of a gladiator's. There is a marvelous deal of power in it. Yet it is so tempered in its strength and prominency by the oval outline of the face, the lofty forehead, the contradictory mouth, the eloquent eyes (which, close as they are, have a language of their own,) that the fierce and fiery qualities which were apparently somewhere locked up in its possessor we know to have been perfectly under his control. A small 'stiletto beard' graces the chin. The eyes, large, round, and full, have a meaning and a charm, even when they themselves are alone considered."

—They have some very smart business men in New Jersey. Last summer a young man was struck by lightning in a field near Trenton, and when the people began to flock to the spot to look at the victim they found a man standing by the corpse trying to sell lightning rods to the crowd.

—A life insurance man in St. Louis is in the habit of getting himself on to juries in doubtful cases, when business in his line is dull. Then he "hangs" the jury until every man of the eleven is insured in his company.

—A couple recently married themselves at Glidden, Iowa, in the presence of church and congregation. They simply announced their intention, and then they kissed each other.

—A couple of Americans were lately expelled from a theatre in Berlin because they chewed up programmes and "shied" them at the heads of actors.

—Ask a St. Louis man about Chicago, and he will admit there is such a place in Illinois, but will add, "It is all mortgaged to Boston."

Business Notices.

VEGETINE has never failed to cure the most inflexible case of Canker.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and used before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but efficient cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 708

20,000 cures of Piles have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments, and quack nostrums always make them worse. ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple, permanent cure, acts as a bougie, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 40 Walker street, New York.

"Tried and True." What words of confidence and trust are these! It is what many a poor sufferer can say of HELMBOLD'S BUCHU. It is the only reliable medicine of those terrible diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Beware of counterfeits. The genuine has the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. Full direction with each bottle. For sale by all druggists.

The Human Kitchen and its Dumb Waiters. The body is supplied with aliment by vessels which connect the stomach and it auxiliaries with the venous system, and, so to speak, perform the office of dumb waiters in a restaurant. In other words, these modes of communication between the animal kitchen and its dependents supply to each member and organ, near or remote, the quantity and kind of sustenance required to keep it going. When the stomach is derelict in its duty, or the dumb waiters inert or obstructed, it is the peculiar province of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters to strengthen and regulate them. Hence its marvelous cures of chronic indigestion, and the consciation, debility and languor which are generally its concomitants. It is, moreover, a powerful alterative and corrective, and the rapidity with which it checks irregularities of the liver and bowels, and invigorates the nervous system, is a marvel, not only to the general public, but to professional men.

Ordinance No. 41,

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time hereis allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1871.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 15, 1866. n25-1m

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured; for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

More About Dogs

Is rather a queer caption, when my last article was headed "All about Dogs," but the subject ever proves so pregnant to one who loves these faithful brutes that I fear I may inflict even other manuscripts regarding them upon your patience, to be given to your readers or——the waste basket. I want to speak of other dogs known to older "Sons of Portsmouth." The canine race exhibits nearly all the best traits possessed by man, while few of the human vices are imitated. To be sure, some dogs are greedy and some are quarrelsome, but Dr. Watts, or some other undoubted authority, informs us that "'tis their nature to" bark and bite.

Long ago Mrs. G. had a large St. Bernard, "Bevis," whose especial duty was to keep the kitchen wood-box filled with fuel from the shed adjacent. Business one evening caused me to wait in those premises awhile. The box was full of firewood; the huge dog contentedly enjoyed the genial heat from the glowing stove. Lelt alone with me, he soon roused himself, and seemed anxious to perform some feat that should merit my petting. The door to the shed ajar, he saw his chance for distinction. One by one his ponderous jaws clasped the sticks from the well-filled wood-box and conveyed them to the shed from which he had so lately brought them, until the box was empty. It was almost literally a case of "brands plucked from the burning," and I was boy enough to laugh inwardly at the thought of the dismay to be created in the breast of the servant on viewing the depletion of fuel when next she wished to replenish the fire, and I warded an extra pat of the head to the noble animal when he came wagging his tail at the completion of his self-imposed duty. A sudden change came over Bevis, however, when his mistress entered, saw the raid in which he had been engaged, pointed to the wood-box and the shed door. No word was said, but with drooping tail and downcast eyes the dog started at once to replenish the box, and ere I left he was in a fair way to soon have a sufficient supply of fuel for the night in its proper place again.

Mrs. H. C. K., a well-known writer for religious juvenile publications, years ago possessed a beautiful spaniel that had come to regard himself as "one of the family." Unless his chair was set at the table and his cup of tea, properly prepared with sugar and milk, placed ready for him, his complaints soon procured the needed attention. In case he was treated with this respect his conduct was most decorous.

When a boy I had a pointer, "Rover," who was no rover by nature, his favorite trip being to visit the Eastern railroad at the western end of the then long bridge over the North Pond, about train time. When the cars passed, it afforded him intense pleasure to dart with one bound across the track between the swiftly moving wheels, to gather himself on the other side and return through the wheels of the succeeding car. Poor Rover! he died ingloriously, though the cause of his death was strict attention to his duty. A boy, now high in the United States army, was bitten while entering our shed. The dog only performed what the officer would now enforce upon his subalterns under strict penalties; but the faithful sentinel was condemned to be shot for refusing to betray his trust.

"Trix" was a small dog, but she inherited the puzzling qualities belonging to all females. To be the torment of two or three little girls was the crowning ambition of her life, and well was she gratified. No sooner did the children produce their playthings than Trix became remarkably quiet in a distant corner; but no sooner were those playthings properly displayed than a flash of light yellow hair swooped down upon the unsuspecting dolls, and the fairest was borne away by the marauder, to be shaken and torn and only rescued in a dilapidated condition.

The ghastly mingles with these dogged memories. Two pets I drowned, by order of those having authority. The first reached home sooner than I did, although I had locked him in a sail-loft, with a lot of men, after my heart had failed me when he sat up and "begged" while the rope was around my neck. The second reached Piscataqua's depths, but his piteous glance has not yet left your correspondent, who can never be induced to execute like commissions under any pretence.

Old dwellers around "Rock Pasture" remember the roving sheep therein, as well as the shambles wherein the animals were converted into mutton and lamb. They will also recall the visits of a band of Indians who usually encamped on the north side of the pond. One morning a gallows something like that of Haman—"forty cubits high"—held aloft the dead body of a magnificent black hound, who had acted as purveyor general to the Modocs of the north shore. Caught in the act, the dog was shot for his fidelity in pursuing the theft for which he was trained. The darkness of the succeeding night allowed the aborigines to bear away the body of the animal who had served them so well. History sayeth not whether they then burned their dead, but the proprietors of the abattoir were lost in admiration at the ease with which this graceful animal threw a sheep across his shoulder.

"Ponto" was a good and sturdy Newfoundland, nurtured in the clear air of Newington. Instinct asserted itself strongly in him. Our many baths in Great Bay shew this, for although no one was ever at pains to teach Ponto his life-saving mission, we often tested his willingness by crying out when at a distance from shore. The great black head would plough rapidly through the water, the large black muzzle would firmly, yet gently clasp arm or shoulder, and no persuasion or force could induce the noble brute (?) to relinquish his hold until the swimmer had ventured shoreward far enough to walk erect on the bottom.

Among Portsmouth men now in Washington are D. J. Vaughan, Elbridge G. Pierce, George W. Marston, J. Horace Kent, and Gardner Goodrich.

Willie E. Nowell and his violin are soon to appear on the stage of the Music Hall, Boston. They are certain to give a good account of themselves.

Saturday was a good day for the boys and girls, the skating on the ponds being first-class. In the evening the ponds were crowded with young people, enjoying the skating by moonlight.

Uri. Harvey Jennessis the gentleman who is spoken of in influential circles as a candidate for State Senator. He is a citizen of Rye, and a Republican of long-tried fidelity and considerable prominence.

Outside the city, the recent thaw pretty well used up the sleighing, and most of the country teams around Market square on Saturday came in on wheels. Within the city limits the sleighing is still very good.

The sloop-of-war Kearsarge, which sunk the Alabama, has been re-built at Mare Island, California, and is now nearly ready for sea. She was built originally by Mr. Isaiah Hanscom, at this navy yard.

It is proposed by several benevolent persons to give the poor girls and boys of Portsmouth suitable entertainments on Christmas eve, to consist of tableaux, supper, Christmas tree, the whole to wind up with the presentation of gifts to those in attendance. We hope to see the project carried into execution.

The bureau of steam engineering at the navy yard is working part of its force night and day. The boiler-makers work two gangs, night and day. Mr. Toby Burke, the foreman, has charge by day, and Lewis Phillips by night. The blacksmiths and part of the machinists work by night. The Plymouth's boilers are to be ready in sixty days.

The committee on fire department are making decided improvements in the interior of Sagamore steam fire engine house, No. 2. The wooden floor where the engine stands is to be replaced with brick, with a granite track for the machine to run on. It will be much easier to start the machine and the members are much pleased with the alteration.

The police force, with their invited guests, sat down to a clam chowder and oyster supper, Saturday evening, and we judge by the way the good things disappeared that all joined in the general verdict that it was a first-class chowder. Our genial friend Tom presided, and by the taste he displayed in arranging the table you would say he could run a hotel. The boys did not neglect the prisoners or lodgers, supplying them bountifully. We hope the force may all live to enjoy a good many chowders, and may we be there.

The navy department continues to enlist men to fill the quota of the several vessels now fitting for service. Within the past month a number have enlisted at this station. A few of them have deserted. Some will be returned by the civil authorities, and others will not put in an appearance. It is often said by those who listen to stories related by men who are entirely worthless on board ship, that the men are treated with cruelty by the officers. If those who give credence to such statements would acquaint themselves with the system of discipline, and the character of the rules enforced in the navy, they would know that it requires the utmost vigilance and caution to discriminate in all cases of insubordination. It is true that in some cases a more severe punishment is inflicted than strict justice requires. But the officers generally do their utmost to judge fairly, and inflict only such punishment as is justified by the facts and the rules of the navy. We think our naval code is as lenient as that of any government in the world.

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as

Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis,

Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one, but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wider reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its numbers. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I resided at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all the attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Side, Dizziness, Want of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God for its healthy blast through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Tribulations of a Local Editor.

The Danbury News says: Once upon a time a local editor dreamed that he was dead and in another world. He approached the gate of a city before him and knocked for admittance, but no one answered his summons. The gate remained closed against him. Then he cried aloud for an entrance, but the only response were scores of heads appearing above the wall on each side of the gate. At sight of him the owners of the heads set up a dismal howl, and one of them cried: "Why didn't you notice the big egg I gave you?" At this horrid and most unexpected interrogation, the poor local turned in the direction of the voice to learn its owner, when another voice shrieked, "Where's the piece you were going to write about my soda fountain?" and close upon this was the awful demand: "Why did you write a piece about old Peffle's fence and never say a word about my new gate?" Whatever answer he was going to frame to his appeal was cut abruptly off by the astonishing query: "What did you spell my name wrong in the programme for?" The miserable man turned to flee, when he was rooted to the spot by this terrible demand: "Why did you put my marriage among the deaths?" He was on the point of saying the foreman did it, when a shrill voice madly cried: "What made you put in my runaway and spoil the sale of my horse?" And this was followed by the voice of a female hysterically proclaiming, "This is is the brute that botched my poetry, and made me ridiculous!" Whereupon hundreds of voices screamed: "Where is my article? Give me back my article!" And in the midst of the horrid din the poor wretch awoke, perspiring at every pore, and screaming for help. The next day he resigned, and we had to hunt up another local editor.

Tweed in His New Position.

William M. Tweed has been transferred from the Penitentiary to the hospital on Blackwell's Island, according to a recommendation of the physician of the island. The hospital is well ventilated, and is under the charge of competent officers. Here Tweed will have to perform the duties of assistant orderly, which are not in the least degree pleasant or easy. They consist of cleaning the hospital, keeping the surgical instruments in order and holding patients while operations are being performed. Commissioner Stern says the warden exceeded the prison rules in giving Tweed a striped suit, as they are only for those who have been convicted of felony. In consequence of this information an order has been given to make Mr. Tweed a suit of dark woolen stuff, while in the meantime he wears his own clothes. He has been provided with a comfortable bed in the hospital, and his health is rapidly improving.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND TUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the system. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are strikingly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well entertainers of the American mind, for its vast popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid prejudices or depraved taste.—Boston Globe.

The character which this MAGAZINE possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with it in each of the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitles them to a great claim upon the public gratitude. The MAGAZINE has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant repository of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—she lately without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other single or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen, to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longing of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscription must be sent in advance to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical writers, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the Best Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the original Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-ONE, (219,751) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the acknowledged merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book-illustration; everyone who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History, is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scripture, Tradition and Apocryphal sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for one dollar, or $12, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR
TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.
Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.
AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus briefly, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickened; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.
As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is prized for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we are rigid spurred of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent out of the mine in lieu of slate. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs, may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or improperly tuned by pretenders to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.
D. H. MONTGOMERY.

The Naples Coral Fisheries.

Writing from Naples, on October 17, a correspondent of the London Times says: "Last Thursday, the coral fleet, or the great proportion of the vessels engaged in that arduous though lucrative fishery, came in from the African coast. The rule observed is to suspend work on the vigil of the Mandona del Rosario, and neither for love nor money will men work after midnight of that day. Their contract terminates then, and away they speed for Torre del Greco for the most part, whence the crews are distributed to their various homes all around the bay. It was a pretty sight to watch the long line of boats, with their white wings expanded to catch some impulse from the almost breathless air. All the day they remained in sight, from west to east, and it was not until nightfall that they got into port. As a school for sailors none could be better than the coral fishery; and as every Italian is liable to be drawn for the army or navy when he arrives at the age of twenty-one, and as the sea is the favorite element of those who live on the bay, every poor Neapolitan youth on the bay is anxious to get his 'Libretto,' which exempts him from the army, and for the most part engages in the coral fishery. It is a hard service, but a good preparation for the naval service. That, too, is a good preparation for the duties of after life, as schools are established on most of his Majesty's vessels, and rude rustics, when their time is up, return to their homes licked into shape by the discipline they have undergone, and awakened from the lethargy of ignorance. But to return to the coral fishery. The captains of the barks send back their treasures at intervals by the vessel which is sent once a month from Torre with supplies. Thus, the risk of loss is more or less avoided, and, in spite of storm and shipwreck, some of the fruits, at least, of their labors are guaranteed. This season has been very favorable, and at the beginning of this week, by favor of the proprietor of one of the boats, I was permitted to see all that his crew had taken. There were four chests locked and tightly roped, which had been sent home at intervals, and on being opened they presented a spectacle which few outsiders ever witness. On the top lay the fragments and the smaller, wormlike pieces; while underneath, protected against fracture, were the large and more valuable morsels. Every now and then a brawny arm plunged in up to the elbow and a real treasure fished up. It is often said that coral—fine rose-colored coral—is worth its weight in gold, and when made up it cannot be far from the truth. 'This,' said the Captain, pulling out a handkerchief full, which had been stowed away in a corner, 'will sell at 250 lire (£10) the ounce.' It was of a beautiful pink color, 'and this,' he added, putting a not very large branch in my hand, 'is worth 40 ducats,' (between £7 and £8). Altogether the boat had taken 160 kilogrammes, or 5,920 ounces. Had the 'take' been all of pink coral, the profits would have been enormous; but much is of a very inferior character, and so a medium price is fixed. So many ounces of fine coral go to a certain weight of mixed coral, and if the season be good, as it has been this season, the speculation is very profitable. Fortunately, the season did not break during the fishery, so that all hands have returned safe and sound; those from the coast of Algiers having made the voyage in three days. It is not surprising that Torre del Greco is one of the most thriving and improving places on the bay. Its example is being followed by its neighbors, and the Syndic of Castellamare has been stirring up his council this week to enter on the completion of local works. Considered by themselves, these small townships are not, perhaps, of much importance, but as parts of an aggregate more or less affected by the spirit of rivalry every step forward is encouraging."

Cuba—The Autocrat of the Volunteers.

A correspondent of the London Times, Mr. Gallenga, visited and wrote up Cuba for that journal last year. His account of the Volunteers and their head centre, Don Julian de Zulueta, a Spanish millionaire, is thus summed up by the Pall-Mall Gazette:

According to Mr Gallenga, the Captain-General, who used to be so autocratic, has almost ceased to govern at all. He continues to reign no doubt, as nominal Viceroy of the republic, but the actual sovereign is a certain Don Julian de Zulueta. Don Julian is a most remarkable man in every way. He is the son of a laborer in the Basque provinces. He landed in Cuba penniless, and now the aggregate of his wealth of all kinds is enormous. He is the owner of four great sugar estates, each of them valued at £300,000, besides many smaller ones. He has a great mercantile establishment in Havana, is a chief shareholder in the principal joint-stock undertakings, and has placed money out at interest everywhere. His influence is almost omnipotent. Mr. Gallenga assures us that he controls the municipality, the Chamber of Commerce, the bank, the Exchange, the Hospitals, while, as we said, the Captain-General dare take no step of importance without his approval or assent.

How that comes about is easily explained. Don Julian is not only at once the richest and most resolute man on the island, but he is the chosen representative of the system that has made the island so rich and of the ruling caste, who have strength, courage, and military force on their side. The whites are divided into two great classes—the Peninsulares or native-born Spanish immigrants, and the Creoles, or native Cubans. The Peninsulares flourish by slavery, look upon Cuba as a mere place to make money in, and without the profits of slave-grown produce it would not be worth their while to remain in the West Indies. They used to act with the Government and take their orders from the Captain-General, so long as there was no talk of emancipation and the Government was content to share the profits of slavery. Now that the Government has committed itself to abolition they act for themselves and their own interests, and take their orders from Don Julian de Zulueta.

The machinery at his disposal is very formidable. In Havana and each of the other cities there is a "Spanish Club," where the local heads of the party hold their consultations and whence they issue their orders. The rank and file are all enrolled in volunteer battalions, where they are fairly drilled and very well armed. These volunteers are said to number some sixty thousand men, and there is no other force that can make head against them. They are prompt to act on occasion, and as their ardor is quickened by the liveliest self-interest it needs rather to be repressed than stimulated. If they have been comparatively passive of late, except when actually in the field against the insurgents, it is only because their enemies are thoroughly cowed in the meantime. It was the Volunteer Corps of Havana who compelled that horrible judicial massacre of the Creole students charged with outraging tombs in the cemetery; and similar atrocities have established a lasting terror. But they make no secret of their intention of waging a war to the knife should circumstances render it desirable, nor do they hesitate to avow their conviction that they are strong enough to exterminate the Creoles and blacks.

Editorial Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6, 1873.

An agreeable change is this from the cold weather of New England to the summer atmosphere of Washington. The city is making vast strides of improvement. Its future must be great. With the assembling of Congress, one finds the hotels overflowing and the streets "crowded with a living flow." The Cuban question is not as exciting as the contests for the distribution of patronage. The majority of the new-comers fail, of course—while the happy minority are satisfied. A distinguished Senator informs us that the civil service rules so commonly sneered at, interfere sadly with the schemes of office seekers. Yet the latter do not decrease in numbers. The arrival of a New Hampshire delegation on the first of the week gives tokens of interest in several important offices. Movements are on foot to displace Pension Agent Vaughan, of Portsmouth, District Attorney Rolfe, of Concord, and Postmaster Colbath, of Dover. A contest over the Internal Revenue Collectorship is not impossible. The friends who have come here to protest against the proposed change in the Pension Agency have increased in numbers as the week has passed, and a more earnest set of men cannot be found in the city. Mr. Colbath's Dover friends are also coming to the rescue, while Mr. Rolfe's are by no means behind. The imperturbable Croydon philosopher adds to the interest of the occasion by his portly presence, and does not hesitate to absorb the opinions of the situation from all who call themselves posted. Reuel usually wins and is a tower of strength to his friends. The Pension Agency has been in doubt, but may be settled before this reaches home.

Constructor Hanscom is laboring assiduously to have the repairs on our war vessels completed, and one evidence of the confidence shown in Secretary Robeson, is the lack of bluster in Congress, it being patent to all candid men that the country is preparing for war, though it may not come. Congressmen have implicit faith in the President, and he will take no step without mature deliberation. The situation is critical to-day. To-morrow the danger of hostilities may be over.

Ex-Senator Patterson has arrived from Europe, but has not yet visited the Capitol. What may be his intentions for the future is unknown, but his position is a painful one—so much so that his bitterest enemies must pity him. He returns to New Hampshire to-morrow.

Fifth Auditor Ela and Collector Tullock welcome old New Hampshire friends, but are as busy as bees. Our old friend H. S. Vanderbilt, the genial Appointment Clerk of the Treasury Department, is acting as chief clerk during the absence in Europe of Mr. Saville. The obnoxious duties devolving upon Mr. Vanderbilt must of necessity be distasteful to the kind-hearted Appointment Clerk, whose fortune (or misfortune) it was to select a score of ladies acting as clerks for discharge. Most harrowing are the cases brought before him and tales are told which must wring the hearts of those who are obliged to listen. An Ex-Congressman from the Granite State declares that "should Harry enter heaven through the Appointment office, he is a greater man than Cæsar." Notwithstanding the constant annoyance from applicants for appointments, he hears each case placidly and patiently, blandly bows each caller out and turns to the next comer with a cordial greeting and welcome smile.

The National Hotel is as ever the headquarters of the New Hampshire people, and Mr. Tenney is as actively ministering to the comfort of his guests. Model clerks work in unison to satisfy the public and the cuisine is all that can be wished. Few New Hampshire people having been cared for once at this hostelry ever care to change.

The appropriation for the navy is exhausted by the extraordinary expenses incidents to the preparation for war. Efforts are being made for an appropriation for finishing a vessel at the Portsmouth yard, and as it is generally conceded that Congress must appropriate a sum to cover the deficiency of the present fiscal year, it is probable that ere long mechanics and laborers now idle will have an opportunity to resume work.

Speaker Blaine has been fortunate in assigning the House committees. Mr. Pike is a member of the committee on Elections and is also on Public Expenditures. Mr. Small is a member of the committee on Invalid Pensions, and Mr. Parker, the democratic salary grab swallower of the 3d district, brings up the rear on the Mileage committee! Parker's accidental Congressional candidacy brings him to extraordinary honor. Hibbard was fortunate to drop out of Congress at the time he did.

Readables.

There was another trial of the Wiard rifled guns on Saturday. It was as successful as the preceding experiments have proved.

The story of the Ville du Havre disaster from the captain of the Loch Earn is received. He attributes the great loss of life to the drifting of his ship and to the misconduct on the part of the French officers and crew, who he says made no effort to save their passengers.

The warlike attitude of Cuba respecting the surrender of the Virginius appears to have given place quite suddenly to acquiescence in the agreement between the governments of the United States and Spain, and no trouble is anticipated. The proposition to modify the protocol came from Spain merely as a suggestion, it is said, and not as a formal request. The report of the resignation of Captain-General Jouvellar is not confirmed. The trouble with General Sickles has resulted in the minister's resignation.

There is no doubt that Gen. Sickles will be immediately retired from Madrid.

It is stated upon official authority that the Virginius will be delivered to the United States in a few days in a Cuban port.

A despatch to a New York journal supposed to be in intimate alliance with the Administration, says it is expected that the entire sum for the payment of the December pensions will be taken from the legal tender reserves.

The congressional committee on the repeal of the salary bill agreed upon a bill Saturday restoring the old rate of pay, excepting in the case of the judges and the President, and legalizing repayments to the Treasury.

The propeller City of Detroit sunk in Saginaw Bay, Saturday morning. There were twenty men aboard, of whom only eight have been heard from, though four others left in boats. It is feared that the other men went down with the propeller.

The boiler of the Mississippi River steamboat Royal George exploded on Saturday night, killing four men and wounding seven others.

The office of A. & A. H. Howe, in Brighton, Mass., was broken into by masked burglars on Thursday night, the watchman gagged, the safe blown open and robbed of about $2000.

The woman who was murdered on Friday evening in Dorchester has been identified as Bridget Flanagan, for many years a servant in the family of Mr. Shelton Barry. It is believed that a man who first gave his name as James Howard and afterward as James Johnson is the murderer. His clothing was bloody when he was arrested, and he gives contradictory accounts of his whereabouts on the night of the murder.

The number of Representatives in Congress who prefer to take the modified oath of office, increases with each Congress. The number of members who at the organization on Monday declined the "iron-clad oath," and who subscribed to the modified one of loyalty to the Constitution and obedience to the laws, was fifty-two. They gathered in a semi-circle in the area before the Speaker's desk, and together made their vows of fealty to the Constitution. Nearly all were Southern democrats. Of the republicans in the group were two, Pelham and Hayes, of Alabama. The most conspicuous figure in that regenerated semi-circle was that of Alaxander H. Stephens, of Georgia. The feeble old man stood in the centre of the group, supported on the one side by a crutch, and on the other by the arm of a fellow member. Mr. Stephens is in a very feeble state of health, and was obliged to leave the hall long before the session was concluded.

State News.

A storehouse belonging to Faulkner & Colony's woolen mill, at Keene, containing a large amount of dye stuff, about fifteen thousand pounds of assorted wool, and a large quantity of wood, was destroyed by fire Saturday morning. Loss from $15,000 to $20,000. Insured for $10,000.

Zenas Stickney, a deaf mute, was run over and instantly killed by the up passenger train Friday night about two miles above Lisbon Village. He was walking on the track and did not notice the approach of the train. His body was fearfully mangled.

Charles C. Kenniston, an overseer in the Stark Mills, is the prohibition candidate for mayor in Manchester.

Mr. Patrick Doyle, a night watchman of Manchester, who contracted a lung disease last winter by exposure while on duty, has been presented with a purse of $600 by the policemen and other generous citizens.

James W. Tufts, a workman in a lumber mill at Great Falls, got his right arm caught in a belt, on Friday, and it was so badly mangled that amputation was necessary.

—"Your future husband seems very exacting; he has been stipulating for all sorts of things," said a mother to a daughter who was on the point of being married. "Never mind, mamma," said the affectionate girl; "these are his last wishes."

OldTime Chronicles, No. 97.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

COUNTY OF NORFOLK. Some towns in New Hampshire formerly were in a county of this name. This may be news to some. The case was this. In 1641, 18 years after the settlement of Portsmouth and Dover, and three years after the settlement of Exeter and Hampton, these, the only towns then in the Province, were placed under the government of Massachusetts. This union continued till 1680, thirty-nine years. At the time the union was constituted there had been no county in either New Hampshire or Massachusetts. But two years later, that is, in 1643, Massachusetts was divided into three or four counties. Norfolk was one, and embraced the territory between Merrimack and Piscataqua rivers. The towns were six in number and were Salisbury and Haverhill in Mass. and Portsmouth, Dover, Exeter and Hampton in New Hampshire. The shiretown was Salisbury, but courts were held in Portsmouth and Dover once or twice in a year.

Old deeds are now found dated in the county of Norfolk. This history explains what to some has been a mystery.

Massachusetts has a county named Norfolk now. It is south and south westerly of Boston and was constituted in 1793.

Agricultural Papers.

Three that appear well conducted are now at hand. The Country Gentleman is a quarto of 16 pages published in Albany, N. Y., and is in the 38th volume. Probably this is patronized in New England. Two communications are in this number from Maine, one from Massachusetts and one from Vermont. It is a weekly at $2.50 per year.

The Iowa Homestead and Western Farm Journal is published at Des Moines, Iowa, weekly, at $2.00 a year. It is a quarto of 8 pages. On the first page of the number before us, is a cut of a fine short horn bull, owned by Hon. John Wentworth of Chicago, Ill. Mr. Wentworth is a son of New Hampshire, has been a member of Congress, is fond of antiquarian research, and we are glad to know is interested in improved breeds of stock.

The Scientific Farmer, Vol. I. No. 1, is dated in October. It is a quarto of twenty pages. The reading matter is good, and is illustrated. Two pictures, "The wounded Buffalo" and "The Farmer at Home" are beautiful. J. F.

The Boston Tea Party.

The preparations for the tea party in Faneuil Hall on the afternoon and evening of the 16th of December are fully completed. It will be an occasion of rare interest in many ways, and will doubtless bring to light some hitherto unknown, or at least unrecorded, memorials of the destruction of the tea in the harbor a hundred years ago. The committee of arrangements have taken pains to enlist the interest and cooperation of the whole community in their enterprise and to this end have addressed the following card to the public:—

THE TEA PARTY.

Tuesday, December 16, is the centennial anniversary of the famous Boston tea party. It is proposed to celebrate it by another tea party, when the tea shall not be thrown into the harbor, but be put into the tea-pot. A simple collation will be provided, to be preceded and followed by brief remarks, music and conversation. Price of tickets one dollar. They can be obtained at Osgood & Co.'s, 124 Tremont street, on and after Saturday the 6th. For obvious reasons no list of those who took the most prominent part in the daring enterprise was made public at the time. There is, however, a certain historical document in safe keeping which gives some of the names at least in an authentic form. The traditions preserved in many families as to the part taken by some of their ancestors or members in the affair are abundant. All the descendents of those who are credibly supposed to have been engaged in this famous business, and other ladies and gentlemen, are invited to unite in the celebration of this historic event, and will please make known their intention by procuring tickets, that those in charge may know how many pots of tea are required.

FOR THE COMMITTEE.

To Destroy Bugs, Ants, etc.

No insect which crawls can live under the application of hot alum water. It will destroy red and black ants, cockroaches, spiders, chintz bugs and all the myriads of crawling pests which infest our houses during the heated term. Take two pounds of alum and dissolve it in three or four quarts of boiling water; let it stand on the stove until the alum is all melted; then apply it with a brush while nearly boiling hot to every joint and crevice in your closets, bedsteads, pantry shelves and the like. Brush the crevices in the floor and the skirting of mop boards, if you suspect that they harbor vermin.

If, in whitewashing a ceiling, plenty of alum is added to the lime, it will also serve to keep insects at a distance. Cockroaches will flee the paint which has been washed in cool alum water. Sugar barrels and boxes can be freed from ants by drawing a wide chalk mark just around the edge of the top of them. The mark must be unbroken, or they will creep over it, but a continuous chalk mark, half an inch in width, will set their depredations at nought.

Powdered alum or borax will keep the chintz bug at a respectable distance, and travelers should always carry a bundle of it in their hand-bags to scatter over and under their pillows, in hotels, etc. While staying at a hotel in Denver, Col., with a party, most of whom complained sadly of the nightly attack of these disgusting insects, I was able to keep them entirely at bay by its use, and I distributed the contents of my bundle among the party, not only to their great relief, but the utter discomfiture of the bugs, who were forced to seek new pastures.

Business Notices.

VEGETINE has never failed to cure the most inflexible case of Canker.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and until before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual catharics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 706

20,000 cures of Piles have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments, and quack nostrums always make them worse. ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple, permanent cure, acts as a bougee, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

"Tried and True." What words of confidence and trust are these! It is many a poor sufferer can say of HELMBOLD'S BUCHU. It is the only reliable medicine of those terrible diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Beware of counterfeits. The genuine has the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. Full direction with each bottle. For sale by all druggists.

The Human Kitchen and its Dumb Waiters.

The body is supplied with aliment by vessels which connect the stomach and it auxiliaries with the venous system, and, so to speak, perform the office of dumb waiters in a restaurant. In other words, these media of communication between the animal kitchen and its dependents supply to each member and organ, near or remote, the quantity and kind of sustenance required to keep it going. When the stomach is derelict in its duty, or the dumb waiters inert or obstructed, it is the peculiar province of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters to strengthen and regulate them. Hence its marvelous cures of chronic indigestion, and the emaciation, debility and languor which are generally its concomitants. It is, moreover, a powerful alterative and corrective, and the rapidity with which it checks irregularities of the liver and bowels, and braces and invigorates the nervous system, is a marvel, not only to the general public, but to professional men.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of of Portsmouth as follows:

Sec. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all he buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

Sec. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 2, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65.

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n25-1m

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by cleaning it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

Local Matters.

The Thomas Concert.

Everybody knows that Theodore Thomas ought to have come to Portsmouth with his orchestra, instead of stopping at Newburyport, because everybody knows how much bigger and more important our city is than the quiet little town on the banks of the Merrimack. Portsmouth has more newspapers than Newburyport; the United States navy yard is located here, and we are ahead of it on receptions of sons and daughters. Besides, ain't we going to have a monument right out here on Odiorne's Point in honor of the founders of our gallant little State? And where is Newburyport's monument? Had Mr. Thomas been posted on the facts here stated or hinted at, we haven't a doubt that he would have given his one concert for this region in Portsmouth, instead of at the other place. But he was ignorant of our local and historical superiority to all the neighboring towns; at least that is the charitable construction we put upon his action. And as Thomas is not coming to Portsmouth, it follows that all of our citizens who want to hear his unrivalled orchestra will be compelled to go to Newburyport to enjoy that pleasure.

All this is preliminary to the statement that a few more names are required to make up the excursion party to-morrow. No one can say he has heard orchestral music if he has not listened to Theodore Thomas' magnificent combination. The tickets for this occasion, including the ride to and from Newburyport, and a reserved seat at the concert, are dirt cheap at $1.70. Those who do not want to miss this opportunity should go to Preston's and put their names down at once.

The New Ocean Cable.

On Saturday, Gov. Straw, accompanied by Judge Clark of the United States district court, Col. A. N. C. Eastman, Lawrence Oliphant, and F. Ricketts, (the three last named from England,) visited Rye for the purpose of selecting a suitable spot for the landing of the new Atlantic cable, soon to be laid between the western shore of Ireland and this continent. After visiting several localities, a small cove to the south of Straw's Point was determined upon as the best place. On Monday Mr. Ricketts, who is the engineer of the new cable company, and Col. Eastman, the contractor, took passage to the tug Clara Bateman to take soundings and ascertain the condition of the bottom. In soundings of from three to twelve fathoms the bottom was found to be soft and clear of rocks, and finely adapted to the contemptable purpose.

It is thought the cable will be ready to be laid by next May. The job of making it and maintaining it for thirty days has been given to Siemons Brothers, of London and Berlin, the total price being £1,211,000. It is already more than half done, and the finances of the company are in good condition.

Rye.

Mr. Dodge the contractor for the new life-saving station, arrived in town on Friday of last week, with a gang of workmen, and work will be pushed with all possible dispatch.

Things will be lively in town the coming winter. There will be a dancing school, two singing schools, and a lecture weekly, in addition to travelling shows and other incidental gatherings. The second singing school was commenced at Marden's Hall on Friday evening by Mr. John E. Leavitt.

The lecture course arranged by G. H. Jenness is partially announced as follows: Saturday evening, Dec. 13th, Rev. J. K. Aldrich; subject: "Little Things." Thursday evening, Dec. 18th, Rev. C. M. Dinsmore; subject: "Elements of Manhood." Friday evening, Dec. 26th, Hon. Joseph Kidder of Manchester; subject: "Ten miles in the earth, or the wonders of an underground journey."

Rev. D. W. C. Durgin of Newmarket and Rev. A. C. Hardy of Portsmouth are also engaged. Their subjects will be announced hereafter. ATLANTIC.

A Nuisance.

Messrs. Editors: There is a public nuisance that should, I think, be abated. That is the ungentlemanly habit some men, and stripings, have of smoking in the vestibule of the post-office. Ladies and gentlemen who are compelled to wait for the distribution of the mail are often sickened by the smoke of cheap cigars and the smell of strong pipes. Can not "every body's friend," the postmaster, put a stop to this annoying practice. Yours for the public good.

SEMIS.

Laconics.

Schooner Lizzie D. Saunders arrived from Newfoundland with 175,000 herring for C. Sullivan & Co. They will be used for bait by the winter fishermen.

With the starting up of the Kearsarge Mills, business in Portsmouth is again under full headway. The mills are running full time at reduced wages.

The third entertainment of the lyceum course is to be given this evening by the accomplished young actress, Miss Kate Reignolds, who will read choice selections from popular authors.

The schooner Rough and Ready arrived at this port on Sunday from Boston in tow of tug Clara Bateman, and with the G. W. Raitt, will be employed in setting the truss on the P. & D. R. R. bridge at Dover Point.

B. P. Shillaber, who was announced to deliver a lecture at Greenland on Monday evening, was prevented by sickness from filling his engagement. He will serve up his "Square Meal" in Greenland on some future occasion.

Four of our winter fishing fleet landed 50,000 lbs. of fish, Monday morning. All the fishermen at this port are doing well this season, the total catch brought in on Monday amounting to upwards of 100,000 lbs. This is the largest catch of the season.

At a special meeting of the Common Council, Monday evening, the joint resolution amending ordinance No. 113, (increasing the pay of night watchmen from $650 to $690 per annum) was concurred in. The council also passed and sent up a bill in amendment of ordinance No. 104 (increasing pay of assistant marshals from $600 per annum to $730 per annum.

The Right Rev. William Edmund Armitage, Bishop of Wisconsin, who died in New York on Sunday, was formerly assistant rector of St. John's church in this city. Bishop Armitage was a graduate of the General Theological Seminary and was a man of profound learning and scholarly attainments. He succeeded the Right Rev. Jackson Kemper as bishop of Wisconsin on the twenty-fourth of May, 1870.

It cannot be said of Prof. T. P. Moses, that, "dying, he made no sign," for the new ornamental sign he has just raised at his music room and studio in Exchange Buildings, is one of the handsomest in America. It includes an excellent portrait of himself, flute in hand, with other instruments, a music book open, with flowers, &c., the whole surmounted with a "golden lyre," with a bust of Poesy seated beneath. It is a rare and beautiful production, and another evidence of the great and versatile talent of Mr. Moses whose work it is.

We are pleased to observe the increased indications of business in our city. The new blocks now in process of completion contains seven stores, and we learn they are all engaged to parties for business purposes. The stores in the Rogers block, built by Messrs. Main & Winchester, are to be occupied respectively by A. Roebuck & Sons as a cake and confectionery manufactory; M. T. Betton & Co., auctioneers; J. H. Tilton, harness maker; Frye & Co. will have their Boston express office in the same building. The new building of the Mechanics' Association is to be occupied by J. H. Thompson & Sons, wholesale and retail confectioners; George H. Hill & Co., apothecaries; Messrs McGraw & Wilson, hardware dealers; the second story for the association's reading room and offices; and third story for hall. The building presents a handsome front and adds much to the appearance of Congress street.

Thursday a machine called the "Snow Annihilator," designed to take the snow from the streets, was exhibited in New York. It was drawn by four horses, and as it moved through the streets at the rate of four miles an hour, the snow under the wheels was dissolved. The invention is a boiler mounted upon wheels, and connected with the boiler is a superheater discharging its steam between the wheels. This tank is provided with three hundred feet of pipe, through which the superheated steam is ejected upon the snow, as the machine is drawn over the street.

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of the scientific, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever acquired a wide reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Back, Head, Headache, Dizziness and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

A Dignified Man and a Post-Office Clerk.

The human heart, in all its expansive, limitless capacity for enjoyment, takes greater pleasure in nothing more than witnessing a portly, solemn-visaged man, the embodiment of natural dignity, importance in clothes, administer a scathing rebuke to some "smart" petty official. This morning just such a personification of innate dignity loomed up at the stamp-window of the Post-office, and glared in gloomy and majestic displeasure at the busy clerk registering a letter, before he sprang to the window and asked the stately customer what he wished. The great man did not answer for several moments. He gazed steadily and impressively over the clerk's head, and then asked, in ponderous tones:

"Is there any one hear-r-re—who attends to business?"

The embarrassed clerk blushed, faltered for a moment, then recovering himself, said with characteristic and national cheerfulness, becoming an official of the Republic:

"I will see, sir."

And he disappeared. He went into the other department, tortured a carrier with an original conundrum and heard a good story in the mailing-room, and came back.

"Yes, sir," he said to the great one, "there are, in addition to myself, three clerks in the letter department, one in the mailing-room, four carriers, three route agents, the mail driver, and a janitor."

"Ah-h-h!" I am glad there are so many. I may, in all that number, find one who is at his post."

And then he looked as impressive as a special agent, and was silent for three minutes, while the impassive clerk awaited his orders, and impatient men behind him fidgeted and grumbled. Finally the great man said, with deep solemnity:

"I wish one three-cent stamp."

The clerk tore off the stamp and held it, waiting for the consideration. The great man made a somewhat longer pause than usual; he felt in his various vest pockets, he gradually lost his look of impressive rebuke, his chest caved in, and he assumed the aspect of an ordinary frail mortal, and he said:

"Ah—the fact is—I'm sure—ah—in short, I find that I have carelessly left my purse at home. Can you kindly—"

The impassive clerk, with the faintest suggestion of triumph in his eye, waved the great man aside with:

"Sorry for you, sir, but the clerk who sells on credit is not in. What does the next man want?"

And we felt so good to see how that clerk was taken down by the dignified man that we went away and laughed for a week.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up originating and Vitalizing the system. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages of waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in be glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in advising inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of prose, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—she lists defiant competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR VERY TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is gradually yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractiveness any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other, given The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the prospect, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "S. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The picture, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND OLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray; and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus trashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers and the shipping public, will at all times of different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping points, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons, skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market square. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, "difficult or could not be done," that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be as superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old pianos taken right and sold, or taken in part payment for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

Daily Chronicle.

Max Adeler.

We never accepted a nomination to the legislature but once. A political friend of ours named Fetters said the community demanded that we should run, and we consented. Fetters managed the whole thing. Upon the evening of the day on which the convention adjourned, Fetters came around to tell us that an enthusiastic constituency was about to tender us a serenade, and in a few moments a brass band arrived, accompanied by fifty or sixty politicians. Then Fetters said we must ask the band and the company in to have some refreshments; and we did. Fetters had provided a wagon-load of things, including the most expensive kinds of wines by the gross. We could not sufficiently admire the large hearted liberality of Fetters. The company sat down to the banquet until four o'clock in the morning, the politicians making speeches and the band every now and then playing in the dining room, and waking the baby and the neighbors, and rattling the very shingles on the roof loose with its vociferousness. At half-past four the company was in such a riotous and inebriated condition that we went out to hunt for a policeman. When we returned the leader of the band was sitting upon the stairs with the handle of an umbrella in his mouth, vainly endeavoring to play Hail to the Chief with his fingers fumbling among the ribs. Fetters was in the corner supporting himself by the wall, while he endeavored to discuss the tariff question with our bust of Daniel Webster, and to correct Daniel's view of the local option law. The man who played the cymbals was crying on the mat at the parlor door because, as he informed us, his wife's maiden name was McCarthy, while the leader of the delegation in the convention was lying on the piano, the top of which was raised, beating time with his heels on the sounding board and strings, and whooping to "the boys" that there was "only one more county to hear from!" We let the lid down with a slam, and that settled him; and the policeman came just a moment too late to prevent a prize fight between the bass drummer and the trombone man, during which the bald head of the drummer was bolted through our pier glass, and was then dragged out to bleed over the carpet. The company left finally at six o'clock. We began to have doubts about the advisability of running for the legislature, and these were increased when Fetters called around at noon with a bill of twelve hundred dollars for expenses of the band and for refreshments. That settled it. We had thought the serenade a compliment, and the supper a little treat from Fetters. We did not run for the legislature then, and it is probable we never shall; certainly not while serenading by brass bands must be endured by candidates for the office.

Even the best Sunday-school scholars sometimes are so interested in earthly things that the spiritual meaning of their lessons escapes them. There was Miss Slumm's smartest boy. They were studying the history of Solomon, and Miss Slumm wanted to show that in spite of all his splendor and wisdom, his lapse into idolatry in his old age left him without the pure religious devotion needful to perfect peace. So Miss Slumm said, "And now, William, Solomon had more wisdom and knowledge than any one else in the world; he was far richer than any other king; he had built the most magnificent temple that was ever seen; he lived in a gorgeous palace; he had fine clothes, and horses and chariots, and thousands of servants and all the other monarchs of the earth looked upon him with admiration and envy. He needed but one thing to give him absolute contentment and what do you think it was, William?" William paused for a moment, and then suddenly exclaimed, "I know!" Miss Slumm said, "And what was it?" "Why, he wanted to learn how to whistle on his fingers." Then William all at once went down to the foot of the class. He had been putting in his spare time during the preceding week practising that musical accomplishment, and he thought Solomon certainly must have had yearnings in the same direction.

Either the dime novels must be suppressed or the usefulness of Sunday-schools will be permanently injured. The superintendent of our Sunday-school invited his friend Sands to come up the other day and examine the boys. The subject of the lesson was Jonah. Mr. Sands spoke of the unwillingness of the prophet to proceed to Nineveh, and asked the scholars what they thought of his conduct. They said it was awfully wicked. "Correct," said Mr. Sands. "Excellent, excellent," and the superintendent smiled. "And what," asked Mr. Sands, "did the sailors on the ship do to punish Jonah?" "Why, they pitched him overboard," replied the class. And then the superintendent smiled some more. "And what should the prophet have done when he found that his bad behavior caused so much trouble to the sailors? Ought he not have repented?" asked Mr. Sands. "What would you have done, what would any pious boy have done in such a case?" And the oldest boy in the class shouted, "Why, I would have shot the captain and turned pirate, of course." And then the superintendent didn't smile, and Mr. Sands suddenly began to fumble a tune out of the melodeon.

The nomadic organ grinders, having ceased their perambulations of the northern and eastern cities, are now throwing themselves in large numbers upon the tender mercies of New Orleans.

State News.

Col. Bedel, of Colebrook, raised 28 bushels of wheat to an acre this year, w hich is 20 per cent. less than usual.

Col. M. W. Tappan, of Bradford, has a pair of native steers three years old, which girt 7 feet and weigh 3050 lbs.

Another Indian skeleton was dug up at Laconia, on Saturday, making the third one that has been found there recently. This was found near the Free Will Baptist Church, within a few rods of the bank of the river. The skull and most of the larger bones were found, and were those of a female, without doubt.

George Washington Hall, a negro, supposed to be nearly 100 years old, and who lived alone in Gilmanton, was fou en to death in his house, on Thursday last. It is supposed that he had been dead sometime.

No more ale for the Dartmouth students. The faculty has secured the closing of every saloon in the village.

The officers of the State agricultural society will hold a grand farmers' festival in Manchester some time in January.

Bee-Keeping.

Bee-keeping has, in some instances, been made very profitable. It is, however, uncertain. Much depends on the season and on the pasturage. Mr. M. Quinby, in "Mysteries of Bee-keeping Explained" (New York, 1865), says that an area of a few square miles in the vicinity of St. Johnsville, N. Y., in some favorable seasons, has furnished for market more than 20,000 pounds of surplus honey; and it is estimated that, in good localities, every acre in the country would yield a pound. A single colony has been known to give a profit of $35 in a season; ninety stocks have given $900 profit; and a New York apiarian reports, for 130 hives, $1800 profit in a single season. Owing to the difference in the seasons, it is impossible to know how many stocks can be kept in given localities in the United States. In 1860 a few colonies of the Italian or Ligurian bee (Apis ligustica), which had long been a favorite with European apiarians, were imported into the United States, where they are now among the most popular, prolific, and profitable beeskept in the country. Their superiority over the native bee appears in their larger size and greater beauty; they are more prolific, longer-lived, more industrious, less sensitive to cold, and they swarm earlier and more frequently, and continue later than common bees.

Foster on Parker.

Foster's Democrat has the following vigorous language:

"We have one Representative in Congress from New Hampshire whose pockets contain $5000 of back pay—$5000 more than the price for which he agreed to serve. Though he took it under the forms of law, yet it is no better than stolen money. He has no business with it, and has no business to call himself a Democrat, or pretend to represent Democrats in Congress. These are our sentiments; and whether he likes them or not is wholly immaterial. He will find us and the great mass of New Hampshire Democrats standing right there all the time. If he does not believe it, let him wait until the party speaks in the coming convention in this State, and then he will get an eye-opener."

The Growth of Commerce.

The revival of ship building amounts to an increase of 628 in the number of vessels of all kinds, built in the year ending June 30, over that of 1872, being an increase also of 159,194 tons. The total construction, this year, was 2,271 vessels, of 350,246 tons, the tonnage being 75 per cent. larger than last year's. The total tonnage of the country is about 4,700,000. No iron sailing vessels are now built, but the iron steamers comprise 16,548 tons. The tonnage of the cod and mackerel business is steadily increasing, while that of the whale fishery is falling off. The construction of the last year exceeds that of any year since 1865, and is attributable to the great losses on the sea and the high wages prevalent in competing countries.

—Fat men are encouraged to go to the theatres in St. Louis, because one of them happened to be in the way the other evening when a gymnast missed his hold and the gymnast wasn't hurt a bit.

Brigham Young's Household.

A correspondent who heard at Salt Lake City, on the 25th ult., one of the lectures which Mrs. Ann Eliza Webb Young has prepared to deliver in the Eastern States during the coming winter, writes as follows concerning it to the Chicago Inter-Ocean:

Mrs. Young was born in 1844 and was first married when she was eighteen years of age. She lived with this husband three years, and had two boys born to her. From this husband she was divorced by the Probate Court, Brigham Young and Daniel H. Wells assisting her. She then lived with her mother in South Cottonwood, and at a meeting there over which Brigham presided, she noticed his eye upon her during the whole service. When the meeting was over Brigham proposed to go home with her. Arriving at her house Brigham proposed to her father for his daughter in marriage, and to save her father and brother from ruin, and being cut off from the church she married Brigham. The ceremony was quietly performed in the Holy Endowment House by Heber C. Kimball, the First Chancellor to the President, with injunctions from the Prophet to keep it a secret. Mrs. Young makes many disclosures concerning the Holy Endowment House that are new to the outside world.

After three years of wedlock with the Prophet she separated, the first intimation which any of her relatives or Mormon friends received being obtained from the newspapers. Her story is one of neglected love, abuse, the want of necessary comforts, the need of medicines and medical advice, and of base and unprincipled treatment by her husband; avers that beyond monthly rations of food of the commonest character she received only $30 per year in an order on the co-operative store for her and her children's wearing apparel.

In regard to the prophet's partiality for Amelia Folsom, she says it is owing to his fear of her, she having a violent temper of which he stands in great dread. There may be something in this, but it has been said by parties familiar with Brigham's families that his partiality for Amelia is attributable to the wonderful magnetic power she exercises over him, and not to any love for her. It cannot be denied that, in every separation from her, the Prophet is not well, and is only restored in returning and living with her.

In Brigham's public declarations he has stated that he only has sixteen wives. Mrs. Young declares he has nineteen wives, and gives the maiden name of each one; also, the names of forty-five living children. Of these wives fifteen are married to the Prophet for this world and for eternity, four are married to him for this world alone. These four were the wives of Joseph Smith when living, and are to be his in eternity. The children of these four wives by Brigham, are also to be Joseph's for his exaltation in the great hereafter. Brigham acting as proxy husband for this world.

Of the Prophet's habits, we learn that he rises with Amelia at 10 o'clock, when his barber calls and makes him as good a looking man as possible, immediately after which breakfast is served by one of the older wives, they eating alone. At dinner, the Prophet, Amelia, Eliza Snow, the poetess, and the housekeeper of the beehive have a table by themselves at one end of the room, with all the delicacies of the season, while the rest of the wives with their families, six of which reside in this house, dine at another table on the plainest of fare."

Damage to Pacific Fisheries.

The San Francisco Bulletin says that a steady decline in the quantities of fish of most varieties taken in the waters of California has been noted for some years, but the effects of a destructive agency of some character has been particularly remarked the present season. Salmon and other choice species of fish have been scarce in the market as compared with former times, and the prices have ruled high. In fact, fish are not as cheap or abundant in the market as in eastern cities where the supplies are produced from remote fisheries. The Bulletin continues: "The poor man's reliance, the herring, which formerly swarmed the water in dense shoals, is becoming a luxury, from the decreased supplies, and only the unsavory sturgeon seems to hold its own defiantly and multiply in the muddy sloughs. The belief has been expressed that the sea-lions are principally responsible for the depopulation of the waters, but those who are acquainted with the habits of those animals assert that such is not the case, and very plausibly too, for the monsters were doubtless quite as numerous and as voracious a score of years or a century ago, as at the present time. Another explanation which is now given is the ravages which the Chinese are making upon the young fish. Hundreds of these assumed despoilers of every blessing are employed constantly in catching the young fish, including every species in the bay, just developed from the ova, by which work they employ fine nets, scoops and other effective methods. This material is esteemed a prime delicacy among the heathen, large quantities being consumed in the city, and the business of preserving the young fish and shipping them to China has become an important enterprise. Thousands of young salmon, from two to four inches in length, may be found among the large supplies brought in daily to the fish-shops in the Chinese quarters, and this is undoubtedly the true explanation of the alarming decline in the quantities of the best fish. This process continued for a few years will render salmon and other favorite species a rarity in these waters, and some enactment seems to be called for to afford protection from this particular encroachment of the Chinese scourge."

—A New York chiropodist announces that he has "removed corns from several of the crowned heads of Europe."

Cold Sleeping-Rooms.

An erroneous idea seems to prevail in regard to the healthulness of our sleeping apartments; it is often asserted that they should be cold in order to be healthy; in alluding to this, a medical journal states that "a moderate amount of heat is needed in a bed-room, but that moderate amount is needed in winter-time. There is no advantage in going to bed in a cold room, nor sleeping in a cold room, nor in getting up and dressing in a cold room. Persons may survive it; many have lost health by it. To have the chill take off the air on going to bed and when dressing is comfortable and healthful. A room under 45 degrees is a cold room for a sleeping apartment, and sleeping in an atmosphere almost lower than that is always hurtful, is always positively pernicious, for the simple reason that such a temperature causes the carbonic acid g is of a sleeping apartment to condense and settle in the lower part of the room, where it is breathed into the lungs with all its pernicious results. Sleeping in a room cooler than above named is especially dangerous to feeble and aged or invalid persons, as it tends to cause inflammation of the lungs. Persons may sleep out-of-doors with impunity when the thermometer is many degrees lower; that is because the out-door air is pure, is full of life, full of oxygen, without any admixture of indoor poisons; hence gives a vigor of circulation which keeps the whole body warmed to its natural point, resisting cold and all diseased conditions." Cold, free, fresh air, outside the house, is indeed quite a different thing from cold, putrid air inside the house; a fact which, in examining the causes of diseases, is too often lost sight of. Chimneys and flues that have no fire in them, far from ventilating, may rather become the means of hoarding and sweeping down disease into the room.

The Franking Privilege.

The special to the N. Y. Evening Post says there is no longer any doubt but that a determined effort is to be made to restore the franking privilege, and the present indications are decidedly favorable to a successful result. Many prominent Republicans say that they are not willing to vote to repeal the salary law passed last session, without having a franking privilege accorded to them, and a reduction of salaries will in all probability be followed by a re-enactment of the franking privilege. Speaker Blaine is quoted as being favorable to such action.

The Boston Globe's special says on this same subject:

"Will the franking privilege be restored?" is one of the questions most frequently asked. Congressmen are beginning to see "how the thing works," and from faint murmuring already heard it is not improbable that some measure will be adopted which will revive, although, perhaps, in a modified form, the much abused franking privilege. Already a bill has been introduced providing for the transmission of newspapers free in the country in which they are published; this is wedge number one. Public documents are accumulating at the capital, and the constituents of country members are beginning to clamor for them. To pay postage on these ponderous pamphlets would require an additional appropriation for postage; this will afford one good argument. Then again mail matter is received by Congressmen every day which the senders neglect to properly prepay, and when the end of the month comes round, the Congressman's bill for unpaid postage will be larger than he will care about paying, especially if Mr. Hale's bill reducing the salaries should happen to pass."

Painters' Revenge.

In the Princess Lichstenstein's late work, "Holland House," a curious anecdote is told of one of Hogarth's pictures. A nobleman refused to pay for a portrait he had ordered, and the artist, being in want of money, informed him that if he did not do so in three days, he would add to it a tail and other appendages, and sell it to Mr. Hore, the famous wild beast exhibitor. A similar threat was executed sixty years ago, by a painter named Du Bost, who, failing to extract an enormous price for a picture of Mr. and Mrs. Hope, showed it in Pall Mall as "Beauty and the Beast," which so enraged the lady's brother that he cut it in pieces. The case was tried before Lord Ellenborough, who decided that the picture being a libel, the plaintiff could only recover for the loss of the paint and canvas. Something of this kind is related by Senor Castelar in "Old Rome and New Italy." Biagio, master of the ceremonies to Paul III, offended Michael Angelo by imploring him to drape his figures. As punishment for his want of taste, the artist painted him with the ears of an ass in the depths of hell. The master of the ceremonies ran to complain to Paul III of the insult put on his respectable person. "I beseech your holiness to take me out of that," he cried. "But where has he placed thee?" demanded the pontiff. "In hell, your holiness, in hell!" replied Biagio, sobbing. "If thou hadst been in purgatory," said the pope, "I would have removed thee; but I have no authority whatever in hell."

Mr. Jewell's Idea of Russia.

In a letter to a friend, United States Minister Jewell gives his impressions of Russia briefly as follows: "This Government is of its kind perfection and clock-work itself. The Emperor is a man of brains, force, and progress, and I think has a real love for his people. They certainly appear very fond of him, all classes. He appoints the Council, Senate, and courts, and these make and execute the laws. His displeasure is not a pleasant thing to incur. The people may be no more honest than ours, but exposure is too risky. So the shelis are never filled with sand nor do the troops run. The most powerful man here after the Emperor is 'Tipoff,' Chief of Police—a man of wonderful executive ability—always at a fire, a row, or a parade. He is always just behind the Emperor when out, and says who may come and who may go, and who shall be tried too, I think, and perhaps who may be convicted. He just runs this city, and does it to perfection. He is accountable to nobody but the Emperor. I send to him to get Americans out of scrapes, or out of the country, or to do anything else. All I know is that it is done. His dispatch to the frontier lets anybody in or out or stops them for examination. He is said to be a very just man, as he certainly is a very active one."

—The Danbury News man imagined a facetious fellow who addressed a letter to "Boston (Blue) Mass." The Lafayette (Ind.) Journal saw it, and thought it a splendid joke. In fact, it was so good it would copy it. And it did so, and this is the way it read: "A ridiculous Danbury man directed a letter to 'Boston (Blue), Massachusetts.'"

—Forty-one citizens of Denver want to be Postmaster of that city—salary not so much of an object as a steady place.

Business Notices.

For Eruptive Diseases of the skin, Pimples, and Blotches, VEGETINE is the great remedy, as it removes from the system the producing cause.

Calamities will come upon us in spite of all precaution; but it is gratifying to learn that HELMBOLD'S CELEBRATED BUCHU can still be obtained at all the drug stores, and that it can be relied on to cure all diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Look out for counterfeits! The genuine bears the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. For sale by all druggists.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and used before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 706

is claimed to be far superior to any ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it gum thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar, gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy at first, and also after months after a letter is written with it. It will not clot or blur, smut or rub off. This ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin glassy coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any ink in the market. This ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by

"J. D. L." and the First Settlers.

EXETER, Dec. 8, 1873.

Messrs. Editors: In a late number of your paper I am surprised to find that our excellent friend Miller, in an article upon the proposed memorial stone at Odiorne's Point, says that "J. D. L. of Exeter also has an article in the last Enquirer, in which he speaks rather slightingly of the old aristocrats who first settled Portsmouth." Now, if the court understands itself, no reference was made in the sentence to Strawberry Bank or Portsmouth at all, but simply to the Little Bay settlement, neither then or now a part of Portsmouth. Secondly, nothing was said of the character of the settlers at Little Bay. Incidentally, in a single sentence, the Manor-house system and the failure of the managers to impose the system of lords and tenants or serfs upon our state, was mentioned. The people's rejection of such a system I regard just as dishonorable as the conduct of the Bostonians in rejecting English tea or of Americans rejecting British taxes—no more, no less so. The history of no other town in the state has occupied a quarter the number of my hours that I have spent upon that of Portsmouth, my boyhood's delight was in reading a Portsmouth paper. I have bought to read and give away, and advised others to buy, those charming Rambles of Brewster. I have always found some of my warmest friends and most pleasing, intelligent and gentlemanly associates in Portsmouth. I never doubted but that the first settlers of Portsmouth were as good as the first or last settlers of any other town in this or any other land. "The past," so far as Portsmouth is concerned, "is secure." Hoping there will be no distraction and that the memorial stone will arise on Odiorne's Point and after that one upon the site of the first house in the state for the worship of Almighty God, I remain yours very truly, J. D. L.

Hampton.

The saloon owned by Godfrey & Batchelder at Hampton Beach was totally consumed by fire, Saturday night last, caused by defect in chimney. Loss $1,000; insured for $525.

The new and elegant school house in district No. 1 and 2 were dedicated, Saturday last, with appropriate exercises. No town of its size can boast of better school houses than Hampton.

George Palmer, ten years of age, killed son of John C. Palmer, a wild goose at eighty yards distance, on the wing.

Mr. Charles Perkins killed 12 wild geese one day, two weeks since, and in one day of the same week, killed 66 other fowl off Boar's Head.

Large quantities of hay and potatoes are daily sent from Hampton depot to Boston; potatoes bring 60 cents per bushel, hay $23 per ton.

The winter term of Hampton Academy commenced Wednesday, Dec. 10th, under the charge of Mr. Foss, who has been remarkably successful during the past year.

Hon. John H. Bailey had a valuable harness stolen from his barn, Monday evening.

The thaw has taken a new start, and is rapidly using up what is left of the sleighing.

To-day has been set for placing in position the truss on the Portsmouth and Dover railroad bridge.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, the old colored lady who was so badly burned a few days since, died from her injuries on Monday.

Don't forget the Temperance tea-party to-night. Those who go, we doubt not, will hear something about "the cup which cheers but not inebriates." That quotation is admissible on such an occasion. Aside from that, those who attend will have a merry time, and encourage a most worthy cause.

The many friends of Mr. Fletcher D. Locke were pleased to greet him in Portsmouth once more on Tuesday. Mr. Locke, for the past three or four years, has been acting as paymaster's clerk on board the U. S. S. Narragansett, cruising in Pacific waters.

Mr. Wm. Fernald has begun the construction of a three-masted schooner for the owners of the T. J. Trafton. The frame will be of New Hampshire oak, planked with hard pine. Her carrying capacity will be from 650 to 700 tons of coal. She is to be commanded by Capt. Talpey, the successful master of the Trafton.

Miss Reignolds entertained one of the largest audiences of the season at the Temple, Tuesday evening, with readings from favorite authors. The selections were well chosen, and they were not only read, and well read, but were rendered with just enough of the art of the stage to deepen and intensify the effect.

Mr. Greenleaf C. Langley, of Newmarket, a stone-mason, was instantly killed on Tuesday afternoon, while at work laying a cellar wall for W. R. Bunker at Epping. In lowering a heavy stone, it fell quicker than expected, and striking one end of a crowbar, brought the other end with great force up under his chin, throwing him into the air, and his body fell dead. He was a brother of Mr. Joseph Langley of this city.

A Manchester despatch, received last night says the Democrats elected ex-Gov. Weston Mayor of that city yesterday, by a plurality of 511, together with a majority of the city council. This looks as if Mr. Hatch's gubernatorial cake was dough.

A High-day at South Seabrook.

[Newburyport Herald.]

Last Thursday was the time and the new bell was the occasion. All day it was bell, bell, bell, and nothing but bell. Everybody was belling. You couldn't meet any one but he'd tell you about the new bell. The little folks dreamed bell, the old folks talked bell, and the preacher Ran bell.

Wednesday evening things looked a little blue. The bell was to have been here ere this, but it had not yet come, nor could they find out its whereabouts. Night was coming on and still no bell, and no one could guess where it was. But the people were in earnest, determined that the bell should go up the next day, but it couldn't go up unless they had it. So they concluded to go on the hunt for it, and hunt they did. It was still in Boston and would have remained there, too, if Rand had not seen to it. He said it would be at Salisbury at 2 o'clock. That was bad news. The town all said, "that is too late; it will not go up to-day then any more." Rand said it would, and I knew then that it would. A little after dinner a number started to the depot after it. Soon the train came. The bell was there. It was all right. They loaded it on a sled and started for the village. Aunt Liza got aboard and rang it all the way home. As soon as the villagers heard it they went to meet it, and it was brought, with cheers and shouts, to the village. In two hours and twenty minutes after its arrival it was snugly tucked in the belfry. When it was fairly in its place three rousing cheers were given. Then cheer upon cheer rent the air until, at last, the bell, with a clear, rich, melodious voice, joined the chorus. It was good to be there. All were happy, but Rand was happier. When he saw it swing in the belfry he was entirely overcome. His cup ran over. He saw his prayers answered; his fondest hopes were realized.

In the evening the friends came in and had a jolly good time. A table covered with good things extended all along one side of the room. All hands came in and were helped to chicken and turkey. After supper came business in earnest. Everything was there you could think of; promenading, playing, singing, speaking; little folks tumbling and jostling, old folks talking, gossiping and looking on; young men and maidens laughing, and, and—well—anyhow, they had a good time. And what added specially to the interest of the occasion was the music by the band. They furnished excellent music all the evening. South Seabrook may well be proud of its excellent band. Many returns to the good people of South Seabrook.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

Sec. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respect ive premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow and ice, the same to be swept from the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from the commencement of morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

Sec. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay the sum of ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 3d, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall sprend ores and sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are so wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purpose."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation; and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one, but many nations, must have extraordinary virtue. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their attacks, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would sometimes jump up and go to my door for strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 7, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. I have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Want of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuff and Douches are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, particularly in the head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors, Ocean Collisions.

"There is a good deal of mourning," says the Springfield Republican, "over the failure of the compartment plan of building vessels in the case of the Ville du Havre, which had seven compartments. We cannot doubt that compartments have saved a good many vessels and we see no ground for losing faith in them, now that a steamship, which was cut nearly in two in the middle, fell in pieces and went to the bottom. The very fact that her masts fell upon the passengers, as they were swarming on deck, shows how completely she was broken up. The theory of compartments supposes that the vessel shall have backbone enough left, not only to support her ordinary burden, but to carry one compartment full of water besides. We must abide the recovery of Capt. Surmont and the arrival of the Loch Earn before we can know more of the particulars of the wreck. It should be a solemn suggestion to the student of navigation that most of our recent disasters have been due to collisions. The Oneida disaster in the harbor of Yokohama, the loss of the Metis on Long Island Sound, of the North Atlantic in the English Channel, and now of the Ville du Havre, are all attributable to this cause. Is it not probable that some vessels met the long-missing 'City of Boston,' in an encounter so fatal that both went down together, before the boats could be manned? The burning at sea is a thing of the past, apparently; our steamers outride the gales and stop the leaks, even the engine-boilers have become safe berth-fellows. But collision remains the awful skeleton of the ocean passage."

—The origin of the epithet "blue," which is sometimes bestowed upon Presbyterians, is accounted for as follows: The distinct dress of the Scotch Presbyterian clergy was a blue gown and broad blue bonnet. The Episcopalian clergy, on the other hand, wore a black gown. From this arose the contrasting epithets of "Black Prelacy" and "True Blue Presbyterianism."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Vitalizing Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. EDDY as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decisive views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the crowning matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874--SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best Paintings, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Produce and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ Implements and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAIN OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

'Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry'

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most Preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINEBEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, Historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR
TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.
Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.
AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.
As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN EGG ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons, skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and when being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also
LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON
And other first class coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thoroughly practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments needed or pronounced by tuners desirous to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.
D. H. MONTGOMERY.

Details of the Virginius Massacre.

A New York dispatch says that the recent arrival in that city of Capt. Pryor, from Santiago de Cuba, furnishes another description of the massacre of the thirty-seven passengers of the Virginius, he having been the only American who witnessed the outrage. As soon as the prisoners were landed they were marched together in fours up the wharf to the prison near by. They evidently expected to be released without delay, and were therefore in the best of spirits, laughing and joking with each other, and wholly unprepared for the terrible tragedy that was so soon to be enacted. At the prison thirty-seven were selected, including Capt. Fry, who were marched to one side, closely followed by a body of men-of-war's men armed with Spencer rifles. Then these prisoners knew they were to be shot.

Their companions were locked up in the prison, and all the condemned company were put in irons except Capt. Fry, who marched at the head of his men with firm step and head erect. The party marched up the street until they reached the cemetery gates, where the prisoners were aligned with their faces toward the cemetery wall, and the men-of-war's men who made up the firing party were drawn up behind them. In a semi-circle behind the firing party were the Volunteers in strong force, cavalry and infantry, and behind them a dense throng of the populace. The six carts which were to carry off the dead bodies were drawn up on the other side of the cemetery. The officer in command of the firing party ordered the prisoners to kneel.

Capt. Fry took off his hat as he knelt, and a volley from the firing party at once followed. The victims fell on their faces, the shrieks of the wounded filled the air, and the scene was most terrible. While the wounded were writhing in their agony the firing party advanced and fired six more volleys into their victims. The muzzles of the guns almost touched the bodies. Capt. Fry was killed at the first volley. Capt. Fry had been shot through the head and heart both. At the command of the officer, Capt. Fry's body was thrown into the bottom of the first cart, and six others were pitched on top of him. Four of the men's heads hung over the edge of the cart, the blood dropping from the hair and their eyes wide open, rolling with every motion of the cart.

The carts were filled with six bodies, and they were drawn into a field just beyond the town, and all dumped in a large hole. The men in the prison knew by this time that they had all been condemned to die. But their spirits were not dampened, and all night they sang and made themselves as merry as possible. The next morning eleven more men were selected, marched to the cemetery and shot like the others. They were mere lads, but not one flinched or showed the least trepidation, and as they were on their way to the place of execution they taunted the Volunteers with their cowardice. The authorities meant to shoot the remainder of the prisoners, and had made the arrangements; but the arrival of the Niobe and the release of the American Consul stopped the butchery. Gen. Burriel, Capt. Pryor states, did not show himself during the executions.

Why Letters Don't Come.

That the public themselves, in many instances, are responsible for the non-delivery of letters, some people, like Bailey, Jr., in "Martin Chuzzlewit," supposing that one opening is as good as another for depositing mail matter, is illustrated by the Boston Postmaster thus: "At the old office at the Merchants' Exchange in State street we were obliged to close every aperture in the windows and doors of the postoffice story of the building to prevent the public from using them as letter depositories, and a month after the postoffice had been transferred to the Old South Church, we found nearly a peck of letters and newspapers that had been mailed among the rubbish in the passage-way by putting them into holes that had been cut for a stove funnel. Similar to this is the statement that in London not long since, in removing an old pump that had been long disused, and from which the handle had been removed, a large quantity of mail matter was found which had been deposited in the hole where the handle had been taken out. 'A discriminating public' had mistaken it for a street pillar letter-box."

Living High.

The highest inhabited spot in the world is the Buddhist cloister of Hable (Thibet), where twenty priests live, at the enormous height of 16,000 feet. There are other cloisters at a nearly equal height which are inhabited all the year round, in the province of Guari Khorsum, upon the banks of Lakes Mansaraour and Bakous. In these equatorial regions one can live easily for ten or twelve days at an altitude of 18,000 feet, but not for a longer time. In August, 1856, the brothers Schlagintwelt, exploring the glaciers of the Ibi Gamin in Thibet, encamped for ten days at these elevations, which are rarely visited by a human being. At first they suffered a good deal at 17,000 feet, but gradually became accustomed to 19,000. In 1856 they ascended as high as 24,339—the highest altitude man has ever reached on land. The highest inhabited point in America is the post-house of Apo, in Peru, 14,377 feet. Potosi, in Bolivia, which has a population of 100,000, is 12,828 feet high. The highest land in America is the Aconcagua, in Chili, 22,422 feet. But this is only a baby peak compared with the Gaurisaukar (Himalaya,) which rises 29,000 feet.

Editorial Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8, 1873.

Postmaster Peirce has succeeded with the help of Senator Cragin, and Congressmen Small and Pike, in obtaining an increase of work at the navy yard, particularly in the Steam Engineering department. The Nantasket's engines will probably be changed to compound engines. This will require quite an increase of employees immediately. The Marion will be launched in a few days and be put in condition to receive her machinery, which is nearly completed at the Charlestown yard—with the exception of her cylinders, which will be shipped from the Washington yard shortly. Our laboring men and mechanics may almost feel assured of a steady winter's employment.

It is proposed to erect in Portsmouth harbor a large marine hospital, for which an appropriation will be asked before many days. The location is considered superior to that of any other station, by the Board having charge. The earthworks at Jerry's Point and Gerrish's island will be enlarged and hurried to completion when springtime. Immediately on the launching of the Marion, one of the new sloops ordered built will be commenced. There is a strong probability that the Nantasket will be practically rebuilt from the appropriation on repairs.

The signal office has finally determined to grant Postmaster Peirce's request to have the weather probabilities sent to the Portsmouth office, where they will be conspicuously displayed in the vestibule at the opening of the mail. This will be of great benefit to the fishing interests.

Congressman Small has decided to nominate Mr. Joshua Varney for Postmaster at Dover. Capt. Geo. W. Colbath, the present incumbent, is here, and is inclined to contest the matter before Postmaster-General Creswell. Major Vaughan's re-appointment hangs fire—the delegation being equally divided. Senator Cragin is endeavoring to settle the matter satisfactorily to both candidates, and Col. Marston has been offered a position more lucrative than the Pension Agency, which it is hoped he will accept. Should he do so, the only obstacle to the re-appointment of Major Vaughan will have been removed. The situation is well understood by each member of the Congressional delegation. Congressman Small urges a change on the ground that rotation is the best principle. It is evident, however, that it would be poor policy, judging by the remonstrances flooding the mails. The republican party cannot afford to replace Major Vaughan by Col. Marston.

The Salary Bill in the House.

The debate on the salary bill commenced in the House on Tuesday. The Boston Advertiser's Washington despatch thus describes the discussion:

Mr. Cox of New York opened the discussion. He first defended himself from the attack of General Negley a few days since, and closed by ridiculing those who led in the movement to secure the passage of the bill, who were now so quiet or so strong in favor of the repeal, and brought down the house by inquiring where the leonine Butler was, and how it came to pass that he was lying down with the lamb. Mr. Lawrence of Ohio followed with an extremely virtuous attack all along the line, but he was suddenly brought into a most embarassing position before the house by Judge Wilson of Indiana asking if he had not taken four thousand dollars back-pay in the thirty-ninth Congress, to which Mr. Lawrence replied, with a marked wildness, that in common with all the rest he had. The awkwardness of the question, just as Mr. Lawrence was expending his vials of wrath upon the back-pay measure, was so keenly appreciated that both house and galleries broke out with loud and prolonged laughter. Mr. Wilson followed it up with questions in regard to back-pay which in their turn convulsed the house, and later, when Mr. Wilson himself was speaking, Mr. Lawrence interrupted again, only to have the house repeat its hearty laughter. Mr. Dawes obtained an admission that he (Lawrence) was opposed to the back-pay of last session because it was too much, and he followed it by asking exactly how much back pay he did approve of. A new member here rose to a point of order, and the speaker requested him to state his point. It was a constitutional objection that that instrument provided that no unnecessary and cruel punishment should be inflicted. In the course of his speech Mr. Lawrence had referred to the Greeks and Romans in a way that greatly amused the house. When Mr. Lamison of Ohio got the floor, he went on to say that doubtless everybody would be pleased if the portraits of the characters Mr. Lawrence had named could have been preserved; but he was glad to inform the house, and he thought it would share his delight at finding that as long as one stone of our national capitol rested upon another, the features of his friend, Judge Lawrence, would be preserved to unborn generations. With this he held up to the house a large volume with an excellent steel-plate engraving of Judge Lawrence. The book proved to be a copy of the report of the evidence on the matter of the New York election frauds, printed by order of the house as a public document, and Mr. Lawrence, the chairman, had caused his portrait to be inserted. This was deemed quite enough for one member for one day; but Mr. Lamison followed by reading from the Globe for the thirty-ninth Congress a speech made by Mr. Lawrence to the effect that since the Constitution provided that members should receive fixed compensation, those who had sworn to obey the Constitution were bound to take the pay. With this Mr. Lawrence was allowed to rest for the day. Mr. Negley of Pennsylvania thought there had been indecent haste in crowding this salary business in before the financial questions, and while the industries of the country were languishing; but underneath this thin disguise, it was easy to see he was lot back-pay, forward pay, and all the pay he could get. With very few exceptions, there was an indication of a purpose to restore the salaries to the former rates.

General Butler is preparing to answer Mr. Cox, and to stir up several who refunded their pay, and some of these are preparing to make the day interesting for Butler.

The canons of republican United States Senators has nominated Carpenter for temporary president. Of course he will be elected, and in case of Vice President Wilson's death, becomes the Vice President.

The present loyalty of the ex-rebels is an agreeable development arising from the recent Cuban controversy. Gen. N. B. Forrest is the latest volunteer. He offers to raise from one to five thousand men, if needed for service, and General Sherman applauds and endorses him. General Sherman does not think there will be war, however.

There were elections for municipal officers in several New England cities on Tuesday. In Boston S. C. Cobb was elected Mayor without opposition; the republicans have a majority of the Aldermen. In Lynn, the contest was wholly on local and personal issues, Jacob M. Lewis being re-elected Mayor. In Worcester, Edward S. Davis, citizens' candidate, was elected Mayor by 93 majority over Clark Jillson, republican; the republicans carried five of the eight wards for the common council and school board. In Lowell Francis Jewett republican, was almost unanimously re-elected Mayor.

At the annual meeting of the Boston & Maine Railroad, in Boston on Wednesday, it was stated the money to pay the last dividend was hired at 7 per cent. It was voted to issue bonds to the amount of two millions at interest not to exceed six per cent. gold, to run not more than twenty years.

The House on Wednesday passed the bill increasing the number of seamen in the navy to 15,000, for two years, the limit after that time to be 10,000. The Appropriation committee reported the bill placing four millions at the disposal of the navy department.

State News.

In the Manchester city election, the vote was as follows: Weston, democrat, 1,578; Newell, republican, 1,067; Keniston, prohibition, 189. The democrats elect four out of eight aldermen, and the republicans have the other officers.

The State convention of prohibitionists at Concord, Wednesday, nominated Dr. John Blackmer for governor, and David Heald for railroad commissioner. Two hundred delegates were present.

The Centennial Exhibition.

By the 1st of March, 1875, the director-general will acquaint each State board with the amount of space at its disposal, and the State board must at once apportion it among the exhibitors of its district. Before October 1st, 1875, the State boards must furnish he director-general with detailed plans of heir alloted spaces, showing the space of each single object to be exhibited, and also with lists of the exhibitors, and all other information necessary for the preparation of the official catalogue. The general reception of articles at the exhibition buildings will commence on January 1st, 1876, and no articles will be admitted after March 31st. Space not occupied on the 1st of April, 1876, will revert to the director-general for reassignment. Exhibitors will not be charged for space. Steam power and water will be supplied gratuitously, under rules to be hereafter announced. It will be necessary, in making application for either of these, for the exhibitor to state the quantity required, and the manner in which it is to be employed. The exhibitors of State boards must provide, at their own cost, all cases, shelving, counters, fittings, etc., which they may require; and all counter-shafts, with their pulleys, belting, etc., for the transmission of power from the main shafts, in the machinery hall. All arrangements of articles and decoration must be in conformity with the general plan, and under the inspection of the director-general.

The ground plan of the Centennial exhibition building, to be erected in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, shows the following dimensions of the various halls:—The grand pavilion in the main exposition building will have a length of 2075 feet, and the width at the centre ends of 1000 feet. The length of the agricultural hall will be 1420 feet; of the machinery hall, 2275 feet. The area of the ground appropriated for the exposition includes 450 acres. The area covered by the grand pavilion is 36.5 acres. The edifice is to be constructed with a capacity for expansion, so that it may be made to extend over a space of 440 acres. The machinery hall will occupy 9.5 acres and the agricultural hall 4.5 acres.

Manufactured Dwarfs.

The business of manufacturing dwarfs by mutilating children, unhappily, was at one time followed as a profession by a body of villains who had reduced it to a system. In the preliminary chapters to L'Homme Qui Rit, Victor Hugo gives an account of the operations of these persons, which is full of painful interest. They called themselves "Comprachicos," and they labored to supply the demand which existed a couple of centuries ago, in almost every European country, for dwarfs and distorted human beings for the royal palaces and for the homes of the wealthy nobility. The king must have his misshapen jester; the fine lady her fantastic page or footman; the nobleman his hunchback lackey; and even the sultan his grotesque buffoon for the seraglio. The demand was far greater than the supply afforded by the freaks of nature, and the Comprachicos undertook to make good the deficiency. They fabricated monsters on a large scale. The headquarters of this infamous fraternity were in England, but its ranks were recruited from all countries, and its operations were extended to other countries. The organization had its origin, we believe in Spain.

The Comprachicos procured children for their purpose in various ways. Sometimes there was an heir to an estate who was in the way of somebody, and he would be sold into the hands of the order to be mutilated beyond recognition. Sometimes pauper and orphan children would be disposed of by relatives who did not wish to take care of them; and often again, when the raw material was not offered in sufficient quantities, the Comprachicos would kidnap children for their purposes. Once in their hands there was no possibility that a child could be rescued without mutilation. Taken when very young, they were, as Victor Hugo expresses it, "touched up, so that their parents would not recognize them." Sometimes the Comprachicos would operate on the spine in such a way that the child would have a humped back; or they would leave the dorsal column straight and alter the countenance. They would cut the muscles so that the little one would wear a perpetual and diabolical grin, or would have its face permanently set in some fantastic shape. By a peculiar process the growth of another would be stunted so that the child would be a dwarf; while in other cases the joints and muscles of the limbs would be so treated that they would acquire unnatural suppleness. The patients would be sold to showmen, who trained them as gymnasts. Sometimes also the throat would be manipulated for the purpose of giving children peculiar vocal powers. Charles II. had a being thus manipulated, whose office it was to move around the palace at night, signaling the hours by crowing like a cock. A certain Dr. Conquest, of London, wrote a volume on this kind of surgery, in which he describes the processes as if they had a rightful place among the practices of science.

The Comprachicos were suppressed by statute under William and Mary. Their counterparts are said, however, to exist at this day in China. The Chinese operators take a child of two or three years old, and put it in a porcelain vase of some odd shape, but without lid or bottom, so that the head and feet are exposed. In the daytime the vase is kept upright; at night it is laid upon its side, so that the child may sleep. Thus the child grows, filling up the spaces in the vase with its compressed flesh and twisted bones. This growth in the bottle lasts for several years. At a given period it is without remedy. When the mould has taken, and the monster is made, they break the vase, and the child comes out of it.

Bran and Corn Meal for Cows.

The Practical Farmer says: "It is well settled in the opinion of all our best dairymen that bran greatly promotes the milk secretions in cows, and it is fed almost universally. About equally mixed with corn meal in the usual proportions, this mixture seems to promote both quantity and quality of milk. From several sources we hear that buckwheat bran is a great producer of milk, and it is now being used considerably among our Chester dairymen, in about the same proportion as the other. Thomas Gawthrop, near West Grove, Chester county, also by repeated trials with his own cows, has fully satisfied himself that they do as well with corn and cob meal and bran as with pure corn meal and bran. The amount of nutriment in corn cobs is so very small that the result will have to be explained on the supposition of the ground cob acting to promote digestion by distending the stomach. The presence of bulky material being necessary to promote distension and fill up the stomach of ruminating animals, before digestion can be accomplished, is frequently lost sight of. Hungarian grass is also found for milch cows to be rather superior to the ordinary run of hay. The last year or two Hungarian grass has loomed up wonderfully in the estimation of our dairy farmers; and a very large scope of land will be sowed with it the coming season. It matures for cutting in about sixty days, and produces two to four tons per acre—the latter of course on good soils. Three pecks to the acre is the usual allowance of seed. Where a good hay market is convenient this substitution of Hungarian grass for common hay in home feeding will be a clear additional source of profit."

Business Notices.

For Eruptive Diseases of the skin, Pimples, and Blotches, VEGETINE is the great remedy, as it removes from the system the producing cause.

Calamities will come upon us in spite of all precaution; but it is gratifying to learn that HELMBOLD'S CELEBRATED BUCHU can still be obtained at all the drug stores, and that it can be relied on to cure all diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Look out for counterfeits! The genuine bears the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. For sale by all druggists.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and used before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 7o6

Quack Medicines.—We never puff, but ANAKESIS, the great western pile remedy, has cured thousands, after lotions, ointments, and all manner of nostrums have failed. It is the discovery of DR. SLEGEL, an eminent western physician, and has been endorsed by medical men of all schools. It is a simple medicated suppository, acts as an instrument, poultice and medicine, affords instant relief from pain, and is pronounced an infallible cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The Cook-room of the Body.

The food that has been cooked in the kitchen must be recooked in the stomach before it can be applied to the nourishment of the body. As a means of facilitating this second cooking, in cases where the process is slowly and imperfectly performed, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is invaluable. It promotes the generation of heat in the living laboratory in which the crude materials for building up and recruiting the human frame are turned into convertible aliment. But this is not all. It acts powerfully upon the cellular membrane which secrete the gastric juice, upon the liver, which produces that natural laxative, the bile, upon the vessels which receive the digested food, and upon the absorbents which connect the digestive organs with the channels of circulation. If any portion of this complex machinery is out of order the Bitters will set it right, thus promoting vigorous digestion, healthy secretion, and the production of pure, rich, life-sustaining blood.

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured; for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

The Boston & Maine Railroad won't consolidate with the Eastern, having elected anti-consolidation directors on Wednesday.

Mr. Ricketts, the engineer, and other gentlemen connected with the new Atlantic cable, are to make a thorough examination of the bottom of the ocean a long distance from shore and will take the steam tug Clara Bateman and necessary apparatus to make the investigation.

The placing of the truss on the Dover Point bridge was postponed until this morning, it being too windy yesterday afternoon to make the attempt. The steam tugs Clara Bateman and Nettie Sargent, of Newburyport, were on hand. A large crowd had collected to witness the operation. The job will be attempted this morning, between the hours of four and five.

Fire.

This morning at twenty minutes past twelve, night police C. Wesley Rand and George Fernald discovered fire in the third story of the building occupied by True W. Jones stove dealer. The Fire Department were promptly on hand and efforts were made to control the fire with the Extinguishers but the fire being so situated it was found impossible without the use of water. The damage cannot be estimated at this time but will be heavy. We are informed that the stock was insured with the F. W. DeRochemont & Son.

The Watchmen's Pay.

Messrs. Editors :—The city government, by joint resolution, has amended the ordinance regulating the pay of watchmen, and voted an increase of pay, so that these worthy public servants now receive $2 per diem, and in our judgment they deserve it. The night police have orders to walk their beats continually, except a few minutes for lunch, and to extinguish the gas lights at certain hours, some of them being on the out streets of the city, making a long and tedious walk on a cold night. Other duties appertain to the position of watchman, which should be rewarded by a fair compensation. We believe in paying our servants and employees sufficient wages to encourage them to be honest and to supply the wants of the employers. They can perform no other labor, being subject to a call at all hours of the day and night. Sometimes, in arresting a prisoner, their clothes are torn ane mutilated, causing a large expense to replace them. We have faith to believe that our police are efficient and at all times ready to perform any duties required of them. We trust the assistant marshals will have an increase of pay as part of their duty is by night as captains of the watch. CANDOR.

Americans too High Livers.

[Dr. J. G. Holland, Scribner.]

Our whole American life is keyed too high. If a man go into business, he will not be content with either a moderate business or moderate profits. Everything must be on a large scale—business, living, hospitality—everything. The hotels are like the rest, and their proprietors expect to make fortunes in ten years, and many of them do it. There really seems to be no respectable place for a respectable family of moderate means. The low-priced hotels are not genteel; the low-priced houses are either unfit to be lived in or are in mean localities; and thus the great need of the time—respectable homes for respectable men of moderate incomes—is unprovided for. If the Saratoga hotels should reduce their prices to $2.40 or $3 per day, and give their guests plain, wholesome fare, minus the splendor and the music, they would not only be crowded, but they would make money. If a nice three-dollar hotel could be established in a respectable quarter of New York, it would be crowded from year's end to year's end, and give a remunerative income to all connected with it. If plain, comfortable houses could be built in districts now unoccupied, for what their owners were willing to take a fair rent, people would not be driven by thousands, as they are now, either into hotels or into the suburban towns. We have now in New York only the rich and the poor. The middle class, who cannot live among the rich, and will not live among the poor, and take the risk of living among the vicious, as all do here who live among the poor, go out of the city to find their homes. So the words "To Let" stare upon us from the windows of a multitude of houses, which many would take at a fair rent, but which nobody can afford to hire. Real estate is very high, and considering the scarcity of money, wonderfully firm; but a change will come sooner or later. Our greatest fear is that it can only come through a great commercial disaster involving the overthrow of all existing prices, and another beginning at the bottom of the ladder.

The Crow's Value to Farmers.

[Atlantic Monthly.]

What wrong the crow commits against the cultivators of the soil may, by a little pains-taking, be materially lessened or wholly prevented. The benefits he confers are both numerous and important. During the time he remains with us he destroys, so says no less authority than Wilson, "myriads of grub worms, mice, caterpillers, grubs, and beetles." Audubon also affirms that the crow devours myriads of grubs every day of the year,—grubs which would lay waste the farmer's fields. Dr. Harris also, one of the most careful and accurate observers, in speaking of the fearful ravages sometimes wrought in our grass lands and gardens by the grub of the May beetles, adds his testimony to the services rendered by the crow in keeping these pests in check. Yet here in Massachusetts, regardless of such testimony in their favor, we have nearly exterminated these birds, and the destructive grubs having no longer this active enemy to restrict their growth, are, year by year, increasing with a fearful persistence. We have seen large farms, within an hour's ride of Boston, in which, over entire acres the grass was so completely undermined and the roots eaten away, that the loosened turf could be rolled up as easily as if it had been cut by the turfing spade. In the same neighborhood whole fields of corn and potatoes, and almost every kind of garden vegetables, had been eaten at the roots and destroyed. Our intelligent farmers, who have carefully studied out the cause of this unusual insect growth, have satisfied themselves that it is the legitimate result, the natural and inevitable consequence, of our own acts. Our short-sighted and murderous warfare upon the crow has interrupted the harmonies of nature, disturbed her well-adjusted balance, and let loose upon agriculture its enemies, with no adequate means of arresting their general increase.

A Ludicrous Scene.

[Washington Chronicle.]

A citizen living on B, between Ninth and Tenth streets, desiring to take an early train yesterday morning, fixed his alarm-clock in a servant's room, telling her what to do when it sounded. It rattled off at the proper time, when the girl with one bound went from the bed through a window on the back porch, carrying sash and all with her as clear as any circus-rider ever leaped through a paper screen. She then ran down stairs, and out the front door, crying "Murder" and "Police" at the pitch of her voice, and it was with much difficulty that she was persuaded to return to the house at all.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all he buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining such premises free from snow, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind, the time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of the ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 18 years old; thus it had all the time. It ran all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August, and I begin to gain now before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running of the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief. I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Mr. Prudhomme, in the decline of life, was talking with his nephew, to whom he related stories of his youth, "But, uncle," suddenly exclaimed the young man, "what struck you most during your life?" "My dear boy, it was your aunt!"

A young lady from Hoboken came to New York the other day to have her picture taken. When the artist showed her the "proof," and asked her how she liked it, she placidly remarked that he "put too darned much mouth on it to suit her."

Said Anna Dickinson of a bath in Idaho: "You may laugh as much as you please, and say I have no business to gush at my age, but, girls, the delight of a bath in that Idaho water is like the rapture you find in your lover's tender clasp. I've tried both, and I know."

A gentle Quaker had two horses, a very good and a very poor one. When seen riding the latter it turned out that his better half had taken the good one. "What! said a sneering bachelor, "how comes it that you let your wife ride the best horse?" The only reply was: "Friend, when thee be married thee'll know."

A reporter has made an interesting philological discovery; he says that the phrase, "not worth a tinker's dam" is not profanity but simply an inclosure, made commonly of bread, around the hole to be mended, that the melted solder may be retained till it cools off around the bread. After being subjected to this process the bread is burned and spoiled, and is a fitting type of utter uselessness.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, secures the health of the muscles, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon as from foundation.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms. Careful researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of Inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability in his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we believe is unequaled by any journal, and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its practical designs for economical slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproachably unrivalled competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to "THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longing for home of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be made to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-similie signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practitioners, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, which will be strictly adhered to: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

'Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry'

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to FIVE HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (519,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and withouta dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for 25 cents, or $2, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR
TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.
Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus briefly, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickened; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Nothing can be more simple and harmless. It cures the druff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.
As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, and rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of our coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and that all care is taken, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no mines will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market Street, I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desirous to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irregularly traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.
D. H. MONTGOMERY.

Daily Chronicle.

DANIEL O'CONNEL AND MRS. MORIARTY.

It was at an Irish court of justice that Mr. O'Connell could be seen to the greatest advantage. He showed research and perfect mastery of his profession, and he exhibited his own great and innate qualities. Who that ever beheld him on the Munster circuit, when he was in the height of his fame, but must have admired his prodigious versatility of formidable powers. His pathos was often admirable; his humor flowed without effort of art. What jokes he uttered! what sarcasm! How well he worked his case through, never throwing away a chance, never relaxing his untiring energies.

One of the drollest scenes of vituperation that O'Connell ever figured in took place in the early part of his life. Not long after he was called to the bar, his character and peculiar talents received rapid recognition from all who were even casually acquainted with him. His talent for vituperative language was perceived, and by some he was, even in those days, considered matchless as a scold. There was, however, at that time in Dublin a certain woman, Biddy Moriarty, who had a huckster's stall on one of the quays nearly opposite the Four Courts. She was a virago of the first order, very able with her fist, and still more formidable with her tongue. From one end of Dublin to the other she was notorious for her powers of abuse, and even in the provinces Mrs. Moriarty's language had passed into currency. The Dictionary of Dublin slang was considerably enlarged by her, and her voluble impudence had become almost proverbial. Some of O'Connell's friends, however, thought that he could beat her in the use of her own weapons. Of this, however, he had some doubts himself, when he had listened once or twice to some minor specimens of her Billingsgate. It was mooted once whether the young Kerry barrister could encounter her, and some of the company (in O'Connell's presence) rather too freely ridiculed the idea of his being able to meet the famous Madame Moriarty. O'Connell never liked the idea of being put down, and he professed his readiness to encounter her, and even backed himself for the match. Bets were offered and taken. It was decided that the match should come off at once.

The party adjourned to the huckster's stall, and there was the owner herself, superintending the sale of her small wares. A few loungers and ragged idlers were hanging round her stall—for Biddy was a "character," and, in her way, was one of the sights of Dublin.

O'Connell was very confident of success. He had laid an ingenious plan for overcoming her, and with all the anxiety of an ardent experimentalist, waited to put it into practice. He resolved to open the attack. At this time O'Connell's own party and the loungers about the place formed an audience quite sufficient to arouse Mrs. Moriarty, on public provocation, to a due exhibition of her powers. O'Connell commenced the attack:

'What's the price of this walking stick, Mrs. What's-your-name?'

'Moriarty, sir, is my name, and a good one it is, and what have you got to say agen it? and one-and-sixpence's the price of the stick. Troth it's cheap as dirt—so it is.'

'One and-sixpence for a walking stick! Whew! why, you are no better than an impostor, to ask eighteen pence for what cost you two pence.'

'Two pence, your grandmother,' replied Biddy, 'do you mean to say that it's cheating the people I am? Impostor indeed.'

'Aye, impostor, and it's what I call you to your teeth,' rejoined O'Connell.

'Come, cut your stick, you cantankerous jackanapes.'

'Keep a civil tongue in your head, you old diagonal,' replied O'Connell, calmly.

'Stop your jaw, you pug-nose badger; or by this and that,' cried Mrs. Moriarty, showing her fists, 'I'll make you go quicker nor you come.'

'Don't be in a passion, my old radish—anger will only wrinkle your beauty.'

'By the hokey, if you say another word of impudence, I'll tan your dirty hide, you bastely common scrub; and sorry I'd be to soil my fists upon your carcass.'

'Whew! boys, what a passion old Biddy is in! I protest, as I'm a gentleman—'

'Jintleman! jintleman! the likes of you a jintleman! Wisha, by gar; that bangs Banaghar. Why, you potato-faced pippin sneezer, when did a Madagascar monkey like you pick enough of common Christian decency to hide your Kerry brogue?'

'Easy, now; easy, now,' cried O'Connell, with imperturbable good humor; 'don't choke yourself with fine language, you old whiskey-drinking parallelogram.'

'What's that you call me, you murderin' villain?' roared Mrs. Moriarty, stung to fury.

'I call you,' answered O'Connell, 'a parallelogram, and a Dublin judge and jury would say that it's no libel to call you so!'

'Oh, tare an' houns! Oh, holy Biddy! that an honest woman like me should be called a parrybellygrum to her face. I'm none of your parrybellygrums, you rascally gallow's bird; you cowardly, sneaking bliggard!'

'Oh, not you, indeed!' retorted O'Connell; 'why, I suppose you'll deny that you keep an hypothenuse in your house?'

'It's a lie for you, you dirty robber! I never had such a thing in my house, you swindling thief.'

'Why, sure all the neighbors know very well that you keep not only a hypothenuse, but that you go out to walk with him every Sunday, you heartless old heptagon!'

'Oh, hear that, ye saints of glory! Oh, there's bad language from a fellow that wants to pass for a gintleman. May the devil fly away with you, you nicher from Munster, and make celery sauce of your rotten limbs, you medallyun of garbage.'

'Ah, you can't deny the charge, you miserable submultiple of a duplicate ratio.'

'Go rinse your mouth in the Liffey, you nasty uncle-pitcher; after all the bad words you speak, it ought to be filthier than your face, you dirty chicken of Beelezebub.'

'Rinse your own mouth, you wicked unfaded old polygon. To the devil I pitch you, you bolstering intersection of a stinking superficies!'

'You saucy tinker's apprentice, if you didn't cease your jaw I'll—' But here she gasped for breath, unable to hawk up any more words, for the last volley of O'Connell had nearly knocked the wind out of her.

'While I have a tongue I'll abuse you, you most inimitable periphery. Look at her, boys! there she stands, a convicted perpendicular in petticoats! There's contamination in her circumference and she trembles with guilt down to the extremities of her cotangents. Ah! you're found out, you rectilinear antecedent, equiangular old fudge! To with you the old one will fly away, you porter swiping similitude of the bisection of a vortex!'

Overwhelmed with this torrent of language Mrs. Moriarty was silenced. Catching up a sauce-pan, she was aiming at O'Connell's head, when he very prudently made a timely retreat.

'You have won the wager, O'Connell—here's your bet,' cried the gentleman who proposed the contest.

O'Connell knew well the use of sound in the vituperation, and, having to deal with an ignorant scold, determined to overcome her in volubility, by using all the high sounding words which occur in Euclid. With these, and a few significant epithets, and a scoffing, impudent demeanor, he had for once, imposed silence on Biddy Moriarty.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1873.

Congress.

In the Senate, Wednesday, petitions were received for the regulation of the traffic in alcoholic liquors. A bill was reported from the finance committee to authorize the organization of national banks without circulation. A bill was introduced authorizing the issue of the $44,000,000 reserve as a part of the circulation. Two resolutions, majority and minority, were reported from the finance committee to test the sense of the Senate on the question of redemption and specie resumption, and they were specially assigned to Monday next for consideration. In the House the discussion of the salary bill was continued at much length. Mr. Dawes was among the speakers. A resolution was offered by Mr. Dawes, and adopted, for an inquiry as to whether correspondence in the New York or Boston post-offices has been tampered with to obtain evidence of fraud on the revenue or for any other purposes. The naval committee reported bills to increase the strength of the navy from 8500 to 10,000, and for a special appropriation of $4,000,000 for the department. The former bill was passed, amended so as to authorize the increase only until January 1, 1875.

Readables.

Marshal Bazine was found guilty, Wednesday and condemned to degradation and death, but his judges united in an appeal for mercy, which the Duc d'Aumale conveyed immediately to President MacMahon.

A colored delegation from Louisiana to the national convention of colored men at Washington called on President Grant, Wednesday. The President informed them, in a brief speech, that a civil rights bill would probably be passed during the present session of Congress, and if defeated it would probably be because an extreme measure would be urged "by a person claiming to be a particular friend to the colored men."

A cold-blooded murder was committed in St. Louis, on Tuesday, an expectant bridegroom being killed by a brother of the bride. The cause of the the crime was opposition to the marriage on the part of the bride's family.

Matt. Carpenter was elected temporary president of the Senate on Thursday.

A resolution has been adopted by the House directing the Postmaster General to report the number of persons necessary to be added to the public service in case the Postal Savings Banks and Postal Telegraph schemes shall be adopted.

In a raid on Nueces river, Texas, Dec. 5th, the Indians killed 24 persons, mostly sheep-herders. The Indians are supposed to be Comanches. They came upon two Mexicans, one of whom jumped into a well to save himself, and they caught the other, stripped and threw him into the same well. At another ranche, where thirteen herders were drying sheep, the Indians killed seven men and hung them to trees. The whereabouts of the other six is not known.

There was a decided sensation in the House of Representatives, Thursday, when Alexander H. Stephens, assisted by a page, and by a fellow member, and supported by his crutch arose to speak. The members grouped themselves silently around him, and many seated themselves upon the floor. His voice was strong and clear, much more vigorous than his feeble pulse indicates. Mr. Stephens' speech was an unqualified argument in favor of the constitutional right to increase the salary.

A day nursery has just been established in Detroit, where the laboring women of the city can leave their children during the the day while they are at work. Ten cents a day is the cost for the kind care and feeding they receive. These nurseries have long been established in the principal cities of Europe.

The special committee of the Boston Board of Trade has made a report on the pork-packing business of Boston, showing that the exports of pork, ham, bacon and lard amount to ten millions annually, and form forty-five per cent of the total exports from Boston.

The panic seems to be pinching some of the daily newspapers in Connecticut. The office of the New Haven Press was attached, Monday, by the compositors, who brought suit for their pay, and the forms were locked up by the sheriff instead of by the foreman. In another office the men struck for their back pay, and the proprietor struck down their wages.

An important decision has been rendered by the Massachusetts Supreme Court in a liquor suit in Boston. One George Dowling was tried and convicted of maintaining a liquor nuisance. The defence was that Dowling was only bar-tender, and not liable. The Supreme Court decides that the fact of his having sold liquors in the absence of the proprietor makes him liable to the penalty of aiding and abetting in the maintaining of the nuisance.

New York has a milk bath establishment, which is patronized chiefly by ladies, who think the baths improve their health and complexions. Cost of a dip, five dollars.

Some Chinese officials are examining the American schools in the Atlantic States, with an idea of reforming the educational system of the Celestial Empire.

The trustees of the estate of the late Sir Edwin Landseer have decided to sell the whole of his collection of pictures, and they will be disposed of the coming season.

State News.

A fox, being chased near the shores of Lake Winnipissaukee, coolly went out to thin ice, on which it could travel, but which broke under the hound. He got away.

Newport counts 21 buildings erected this year—more than in the same time since its settlement. The value of the structures is about $100,000, exclusive of anything in the way of repairs and improvements.

Last Saturday near midday Mr. Samuel Tufts of Alton hung himself in an out-building on his place, with the long reins of his horse harness. He was found by his wife soon after, dead. He was a working man of occasional intemperate habits.

Independent Journalism.

[From the New Orleans Picayune.]

It is astonishing what a political power is wielded by the so-called independent journals! They publish ponderous leaders against what they call Bourbonism and Chambordism. They deride party as a 'putrid reminiscence.' They studiously refuse to carry principles to their legitimate results, and are forever flaunting their banners, lustily from a half-way house. They are like the independent candidate for Congress in the Tuscaloosa District of Alabama, who being asked by the regular party nominees what his principles were, replied that he was a better Democrat than the one, and a better Whig than the other.

Independent journalism may be a splendid success, but it is difficult to discover its fields of victory. Thus the Courier-Journal of Louisville, has spent several years tilting at a wind-mill which is styled "Bourbonism," and the net result of its labors is to leave Kentucky about the only State which has a hearty detestation for "the new departure." The St. Louis Republican, also, has been amusing itself with fault-finding and counsels for the Democratic party of Missouri, and the end of it all is that the party has grown so strong under its frowns and apologies that hardly another journal of the State can be found to follow the same course. So, too, of the Cincinnati Commercial, a journal whose independence, one would think, should make it a power in aid of one party and decisive of the downfall of the other. We find that paper ridiculing the Democracy of Ohio and laughing heartily over the nomination of an old fossil. But, notwithstanding its merriment, "Old Bill Allen" taught it that he laughs best who laughs last. The Democracy of Ohio and New York, and of New Jersey and Massachusetts as well, brought forward their skeletons and fossils, their corpses and putrid reminiscences, their Bourbonism and Chambordism, and found it endorsed by the people.

So, too, the Chicago independent journals. Both the Times and Tribune of that city belabor the poor democracy unmercifully. They run side by side in denunciation of "the putrid reminiscences," but it appears that every time they attack a putrid reminiscence, the putridity comes off victorious. Thus at the recent election, both the Times and Tribune supported the municipal ticket, which last year had been elected by 11,000 majority. The result of their joint labors was to see their ticket defeated by 10,000 majority. The Times was furiously indignant over the democracy of Ohio because they rallied under the old banner and prophesied the political death of Thurman. The Tribune put the probable majority of Noyes at 75,000; the prophetic journals, as the fruits of their labors, see the election of Allen and the elevation of Thurman to a higher place in the affections of the people.

The moral we draw from all this is that the people care less for the opinions of the so-called independent journals than they imagine, and that to hold a seat in one party and an honorary membership in the other is not exactly the way to win victories.

Regular Eating.

[W. W. Hall, M. D.]

Half of all ordinary diseases would be banished from civilized life, and dyspepsia become almost unknown, if everybody would eat but thrice a day at regular times, and not an atom between meals, the intervals being not less than five hours, that being the time required to digest a full meal and pass it out of the stomach.

If a person eats between meals, the process of digestion of the food already in the stomach is arrested, until the last which has been eaten is brought into the condition of the former meal, just as if water is boiling, and ice is put in, the whole ceases to boil until the ice has been melted and brought to the boiling point, and then the whole boils together.

But if food is more than well cooked, it glos to decay, to rot, after exposure to heat and moisture for a certain time. If a meal is eaten and in two hours another, the whole remains undigested for seven hours, before which time the rottening process commences, and the man has his stomach full of carrion—the very idea of which is horribly disgusting; but that such is the case the unendurable odor of the belchings demonstrate.

As, then, all the food in the stomach is in a rotting condition, in a state of fermentive decay, it becomes unfit for the purpose of nutrition and for making good, pure blood. Small wonder is it that dyspeptics have such a variety of symptoms and aches and complaints in every part of the system, for there is not one drop of pure blood in the whole body; hence the nerves, which feed on this impure and imperfect blood, are not properly nourished, and, as a consequence, become diseased. They "complain;" they are hungry—and like a hungry man are peevish, fretful, restless. We call it nervousness, and no one ever knew a dyspeptic who was not restless, fretful, fidgety, and essentially disagreeable, fitful, and uncertain.

The stomach is made up of a number of muscles, all of which are brought into requisition in the process of digestion. But no muscle can work always. The busy heart is in a state of perfect repose for one-third of its time. The eye can wink twice in a second, but this could not be continued five minutes. The hands and feet must have rest, and so with the muscles of the stomach; they can only rest when there is no work for them to do—no food in the stomach to digest. Even at five hours' interval, and eating thrice a day, they are kept constantly at work from breakfast until the last meal is disposed of, usually ten o'clock at night. But multitudes eat heartily within an hour of bed-time; thus, while the other portions of the body are at rest, the stomach is kept laboring until almost daylight, and made to begin again at breakfast time. No wonder is it that the stomach is worn out—has lost its power of action. Many girls become dyspeptic before they are out of their teens, in consequence of being about the house and nibbling at everything they lay their eyes on that is good to eat.

A Pedestrian's Feat.

James Smith recently undertook, for a purse of $200, to walk 100 miles within twenty-four hours, and the feat was accomplished in a public hall at Racine, Wisconsin. After the hall had been carefully measured, a special telegram says, Smith commenced walking at 9 o'clock on Friday evening, Nov. 28, and reached his fiftieth mile in eleven hours, and showed some signs of fatigue. He reached his eightieth mile in eighteen hours and eight minutes. During the walk he ate nothing except a small piece of chicken. Tea and beef tea was the only nourishment he took. On Saturday morning he undertook to partake of an egg, but it made him sick. He made a stop at a quarter to twelve, on Saturday, and it was with great difficulty he was started again. His feet and legs were terribly swollen. Round and round he went, varying his gait, and at times it was painful to see him; but he still kept on, doling off his miles in an average of about fifteen minutes. He made his ninety-ninth mile in eleven minutes. The excitement at this time was intense. He struck out on the 100th mile, which he walked in less than nine minutes, accomplishing the feat of walking 100 miles in twenty-two hours and thirty-three minutes, being the fastest time on record. Deducting the time of rest, he accomplished the feat in less than twenty-two hours.

Curious Scene on a Stage.

An Indianapolis paper of recent date says:—'Miss Clara Louise Kellogg, whose English opera company sang here for three nights this week, became very much incensed at one of the members of the troupe for a gratuitous display of temper while on the stage at the second performance. The murical critic of the Sentinel had occasion to comment in pretty severe terms upon the voice of Mr. Seguin. The same night Mr. Seguin sang Devilshoof, in the 'Bohemian Girl,' and in the chamber scene, taking a book, as usual, from the table, he threw it violently upon the floor, remarking, in an audible tone: 'The Sentinel's criticisms; they don't amount to much.' Just at this point, Miss Kellogg, as Arline, came upon the stage, and was very angry, publicly rebuking the actor who had made display of such ill-breeding. Miss Kellogg was so indignant over the matter that she could hardly go through her part. She was greeted with an overflowing house each night of her stay."

—A young man in Indiana sues his father for loaned money, which his father claims was his own property. The father's counsel, in summing up the case of his client, remarked: "Twice has this prodigal returned to the father's house; twice has he been received with open arms; twice for him has the fatted calf been killed, and now he comes back and wants the old cow."

Business Notices.

For Breakfast Dishes of the 4th, Pimples, and Blotches, Vaseline is the great remedy as it removes from the system the producing cause.

Calamities will come upon us in spite of all precaution; but it is gratifying to know that HEGELOCH'S CELEBRATED BUCHU can still be obtained at all the drug stores, and that it can be relied on to cure all diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Look out for counterfeits! The genuine bears the private proprietary signature of T. Hegelock. Now sale by all druggists.

Most of all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and used before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 706

Quack Medicines.—We never puff, but ANAKESIS, the great western pile remedy, has cured thousands, after lotions, ointments, and all manner of nostrums have failed. It is the discovery of DR. SILSBEE, an eminent western physician, and has been endorsed by medical men of all schools. It is a simple medicated suppository, acts as an instrument, poultice and medicine, affords instant relief from pain, and is pronounced an infallible cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The Cook-room of the Body.

The food that has been cooked in the kitchen must be recooked in the stomach before it can be applied to the nourishment of the body. As a means of facilitating this second cooking, in cases where the process is slowly and imperfectly performed, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is invaluable. It promotes the generation of heat in the living laboratory in which the crude materials for building up and recruiting the human frame are turned into convertible aliment. But this is not all. It acts beneficially upon the cellular membrane which secrete stomach gastric juice, upon the liver, which produces that natural laxative, the bile, upon the vessels which receive the digested food, and upon the absorbents which connect the digestive organs with the channels of circulation. If any portion of this complex machinery is out of order the Bitters will set it right, thus promoting vigorous digestion, healthy secretion, and the production of pure, rich, life-sustaining blood.

Local Matters.

Fatal Railway Accident.

On Thursday afternoon a sad accident occurred at the Conway junction, better known as Brock's crossing. A buggy containing a gentleman and two ladies, Mr. Shaw and his two sisters, Miss Shaw and Mrs. McIntire, residents of York, drove towards the track as the train was approaching. Mr. Shaw jumped from the buggy to take the horse by the head, and in doing so slipped and fell. The horse became frightened, and dashed across the track. The engine struck the buggy, throwing the ladies violently on the ground. Miss Shaw was thrown a distance of twenty-five feet into a ditch. When the Conway freight train left Brock's crossing it was reported that Miss Shaw had died of her injuries. Mrs. McIntire lies in a critical condition. Mr. Shaw escaped without any injuries. The sad accident caused a gloom in this neighborhood as the parties were well-known and highly esteemed.

The Childrens' Fair.

The Children's Fair at the Unitarian Chapel held yesterday afternoon and evening, was a pretty entertainment. The conception of such an occasion was as happy as the Fair was successful. The disposition of the proceeds also being of a nature so laudable that the enterprise was well worthy of even more liberal patronage than it received. Among the many beautiful donations sent in by the friends of the little ones we deem the following to be worthy of especial mention.

A basket of wax flowers of rare beauty and of such exquisite finish as to compel the most critical examination to determine whether they were natural or artificial, was conspicuous among the articles for sale. This beautiful tribute was the gift and the work of the accomplished artiste, Mrs. Samuel Lamprey.

Mrs. Seavey contributed a handsome cross wrought of forest leaves and ferns in so skillful a manner as to elicit admiration from all who saw it. This lady also presented the Fair with other specimens of her artistic skill in the shape of bouquets of autumn leaves besprinkled with ferns wrought up in different shapes.

Miss Foster donated an oil painting of a view near the White Mountains, consisting of a foaming cataract with rocks and surrounding scenery,—very natural, and pretty.

Messrs. Robeck & Sons, the new pastry venders and caterers, who are soon to open a store in the Rogers building on Market Square, contributed a tempting variety of cake and pastry. Mr. James N. Tarlton also sent in an assortment of confectionery and cake. Mrs. Winchester and others, whose names do not now occur to us, helped supply the table of edibles to such an extent as to fill it to repletion with everything that was toothsome and palatable.

At the left of the hall was an apartment where ice cream was served, while up one flight of stairs was shown us a room in which hot coffee, tea, oysters and refreshments of different kinds were dispensed, and wherein the veriest epicure might come forth satisfied.

And so throughout the entire arrangement, (though not so extensive as that of many Fairs that have been held in our midst from time to time,) there was a coziness and neatness about the occasion that well became the children under whose auspices it was given.

The entire proceeds of the Fair are to be donated to the S. P. C. A. The storm reduced the attendance, and the entertainment will be continued this evening, commencing at 6 1-2 o'clock, and closing with an auction sale.

Laconics.

Sailmaker Isaiah E. Crowell has reported for duty on board the United States receiving ship Sabine.

The fire in the store of True W. Jones caught from a portable furnace. The damage by fire was trifling, the loss being caused chiefly by water. Mr. Jones estimates his stock at $12,000; insured for $9,000.

The executor of the will of the late Miss Arabella Rice, has appointed as trustees of the fund for the free public library of Kittery, Messrs. Ichabod Goodwin and W. H. Y. Hackett of this city, and Ephraim C. Spinney, John Wentworth and Daniel Austin of Kittery.

About one hundred and twenty ladies and gentlemen went to Newburyport, Wednesday evening, to attend the concert by Theodore Thomas' orchestra. All were delighted with the music, and were brought back to Portsmouth by special train, arriving about midnight.

The weather bulletin will hereafter be displayed in the post-office vestibule, all necessary arrangements for that purpose having now been completed. The first bulletin bore the inscription; "Wind westerly, falling temperature, clear weather." And soon after it was posted it began to snow!

The immense truss at the Dover Point bridge was placed in position, Thursday morning, at 5.30 the time occupied in the work was about twenty minutes. A large number of spectators were present from Portsmouth and Dover, including a number of ladies. Miss Emma Bean of Newington had the honor of being the first lady who passed over the truss.

The following is a list of the vice-presidents chosen at the last meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals: Mrs. Charles Burroughs, Mrs. Ichabod Goodwin, Mrs. Albert Jones, Mrs. Stanton Parker, Mrs. Winchester, Dr. Daniel Peirce, Mrs. Wm. T. Parrott, Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, J. S. H. Frink, Esq., Hon. Frank Jones. Dr. C. A. Norton was elected Secretary at a salary of $75.

The Kearsarge Mills had a narrow escape from fire Thursday. The cotton in the picker room became ignited, and a serious conflagration was threatened, but by the strenuous exertions of the workmen and the use of the fire pumps, the flames were subdued without giving a general alarm. The fire is supposed to have caught from a lighted match thrown amongst the cotton, a considerable amount of which was destroyed.

Doing Farm Work Successfully.

The American Agriculturist says:—"An American farmer is, or ought to be, a gentleman. He should recognize the inherent dignity of his position. His life should not be spent in the mere routine of daily toil. Work he must; but he should not be slow about it. It is said a farmer's work is never done. Whatever truth there may be in this remark is due not to the nature of the work, but to the character of the man. The writer is himself a farmer, and speaks from experience. The ordinary labors of the farm in winter can as a rule be done in half the time they now occupy. If you doubt it, test the matter tomorrow. Write down all you have done today, and how long it took to do it. Then write down all you will have to do tomorrow, and make up your mind to do it in the best manner and shortest possible time. Do this day after day until it become a habit. Before night prepare for the next morning's work. Good managers always do this, and it is one secret of their success."

Mr. Beecher, in a late Friday evening lecture, illustrated the impossibility of interpreting Divine Providence by comparing himself with his brother Charles, who, he said, was his twin in everything but birth. Charles had a better head than his brother and promised to make a shrewder man. But somehow if an accident happened to anybody, it was sure to be Charles. It was Charles that broke his leg, that had a white swelling on his knee, that was blown up with gunpowder, that fell down stairs and cut a gash in his cheek, and then, as if symmetry was needed, fell down and cut the other one. He grew up and had a lovely family. His oldest son was shot in the rebellion, hobbled back and was shot again, and then went into the regular army. On the border he was surrounded by Indians and killed, and the judgment day will have to search all over the plains for his bones. His own boy, on the contrary, went through the war, and came out with only a bruise. His brother Charles had two daughters. They went sailing on a lake in the very sight of his house, and were drowned. All this was a mystery to Mr. Beecher, but it was only left for him to believe blindly, implicitly in the overruling wisdom and justice of Divine Providence.

A German had made a fortune in Philadelphia by selling milk. He started home with two bags of sovereigns. On shipboard he counted one bag of his treasure. A mischievous monkey was watching his operations. As soon as it was replaced and tied up, and the other bag emptied, Joco snatched up the full one and was soon at the masthead. He opened the German's bag, and after eying the gold he proceeded to drop one piece upon the deck and another in the water, until he had emptied the bag. When he had finished the Dutchman threw up his hands exclaiming, "He must be the tuyvil, for what came from de water he does give to de water, and what came from de milk he gives to me!"

—A young lady had coquetted until the victim was completely exhausted. He rose to go away. She whispered, as she accompanied him to the door, "I shall be at home next Sunday evening." "So shall I," he replied.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners of all buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and every part thereof, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance, shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution, and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 2d, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n23-1m

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN:

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy; clear impressions three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. Upwards of one-quarter of a million pen lip chamfrings it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any ink in the market. This ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, those who have tried it not they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Such is no one over secured a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most efficacious cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to black, at the discretion of the applicant. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or coughs. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 7, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Smith and Lozenges are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

Gems of Thought.

Never speak to deceive, or listen to betray.

Riches cannot purchase mental endowments.

Years are carried off on the wings of moments.

Marriage, with peace, is this world's paradise.

We possess only that which we comprehend.

Confidence may not be reciprocal, but kindness should be.

Merit is mostly discovered by accident, and rewarded by destiny.

Great places are great burdens; distinguished conditions in life exact great servitude.

The envious man is made gloomy not only by his own cloud, but by another man's sunshine.

It is apparent to a parent that a great many children get on the wrong track because the switch is misplaced.

A man can do without his own approbation in much society, but he must make great exertions to gain it when he lives alone.

Has any one wronged you? Be bravely revenged; slight it, and the work is begun; forgive it, 'tis finished. He is below himself who is not above an injury.

Thoughts come into our minds by avenues which we never left open, and thoughts go out of our minds through avenues which we never voluntarily open.

Suspicion is not less an enemy to virtue than to happiness; for that is always corrupt is naturally suspicious, and he that becomes suspicious, will quickly be corrupt.

The more and the greater are life's difficulties, the more honorable it is to carry off the victory. Man may be disappointed in his greatest hopes in life, without, on that account, becoming unhappy.

—The first prize for the best conundrum was awarded to a Vermont printer at the conclusion of an entertainment the other evening. It was this: "Why was the Shah of Persia during his visit to England the best card player in the world?" Because the swells gave up their clubs, the workmen threw up their spades, and the ladies were within an ace of losing their hearts, when he came to show his diamonds.

—When she told him he was a flat, Jones said it was all her fault, because she wouldn't have him a round. Jones thinks he got square on her then.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND RUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an element, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing waste and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Skin and Blood Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms. Rejected cases prosecuted anew, to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, and has been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 100,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive political, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"A Repository of Fashion, Pleasure, and Instruction."

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of lactand talent that we seldom find in any Periodical, and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Transcript.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for our enamelled slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.
